Unit description

This unit provides a comprehensive overview of Japanese contemporary culture through critical reflection and analysis of Japanese media. Placing a particular focus on the study of popular culture as a site to acquire sophisticated understandings of Japanese society, students will gain advanced insight into the socio-cultural, political, and economic influences which shape contemporary Japan. Working with authentic Japanese media texts, the unit builds students' Japanese cultural literacy and prepares them for careers in either Japan or which require significant engagement with Japan. Further, the unit situates the study of Japanese contemporary culture within the broader context of the global media landscape, extending students' intercultural communicative competence through engagement with a range of sources in both Japanese and English. Students will complete reflective and persuasive writing tasks based in critically engaging with Japanese media, developing advanced skills in research and communication.

Delivery and Resources

JPNS3015 adopts a partial "flipped classroom" approach in which students complete various study activities each week before entering the classroom (either physically or virtually). In order to successfully participate in seminars/forum discussions, each week starting from Week 2 students will be required to:

1. Watch the pre-recorded lecture
2. Read the required readings
3. Complete a pre-seminar online quiz
4. Complete participation activities in seminars/online forums (depending on nature of enrolment).

More information concerning the study schedule can be found in iLearn.

Please note that there is no pre-recorded lecture in Week 1, but students must complete the relevant participation activities in their seminars/online forums (depending on nature of enrolment).

This unit has an online presence.

Login is via: <https://ilearn.mq.edu.au/> home).

Students are required to access the online unit in iLearn by the end of Week 1 and follow any relevant instructions and links for downloads that may be required.
