Unit description This unit draws on knowledge from across the International Relations program, requiring candidates to apply their earlier learning to urgent and/or controversial themes in international relations - i.e. international political problems. Assessment components include a participatory exercise (a simulation that involves role playing), an essay, and an end of semester exam. This holistic and balanced range of tasks enables students to acquire (i) some specialist and general theoretical knowledge; (ii) to develop and apply negotiation, communication and practical problem solving abilities; iii) enhance research and writing skills.
