Unit description
In order to provide students with a deep understanding of the nature of money, the role and characteristics of financial markets, along with the instruments and institutions that inhabit them, this unit examines the evolution of money and finance from pre-history until the present. Although the workings of the Australian financial system are explored, the unit has a very global focus. Topics may include: the meaning and nature of money; interest rate determination and the yield curve; central banking and the actions of monetary authorities; the innovations of behavioural finance and crypto-currencies; in-depth analyses of money markets, bond markets, equity markets, and derivatives markets. All these topics are examined both in terms of theoretical foundations and in contemporary practical applications. The central theme of the unit is that innovation in money and finance has been as important as innovation anywhere else in shaping the modern world.

Important Academic Dates
Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at https://students.mq.edu.au/important-dates

Learning Outcomes
On successful completion of this unit, you will be able to:

ULO1: Identify, define and analyse contemporary issues in money and finance.
ULO2: Demonstrate a capacity to work independently, including the ability to research, form arguments, and write professionally proficient short-discussion pieces.

ULO3: Critique the academic literature, striving for alternative and creative ways of thinking in financial markets, and in business and policy environments.

General Assessment Information

Please note that since there are only SIX weeks in the first half of S1 2021, the Online Test 1 will take place in WEEK 6 (the week before the session break). More specifically, the test will be opened between 12pm and 6pm Wednesday March 31, 2021 (i.e., you can begin the test anytime within this 6-hour window. However, once you start the time will run consecutively until one hour is over). No submissions will be accepted after 6pm (AEST) on March 31, 2021.

1 If you need help with your assignment, please contact:
  - the academic teaching staff in your unit for guidance in understanding or completing this type of assessment
  - the Learning Skills Unit for academic skills support.

2 Indicative time-on-task is an estimate of the time required for completion of the assessment task and is subject to individual variation

Delivery and Resources

Each week, there will be a pre-recorded lecture posted on the unit iLearn page, along with the lecture slides.

Starting in Week 2, there will be one-hour live zoom class, Wednesday 12-1pm, to discuss questions regarding the lecture topics.

All materials for the unit, such as pre-recording lectures, lecture notes, readings, and discussion... questions will be available to students on the unit iLearn site at http://ilearn.mq.edu.au. Students are strongly encouraged to check the unit iLearn page weekly for announcements as well as the unit schedule, additional readings, assessment information, and discussion questions.

There is no prescribed textbook for Econ2050.

Recommended Texts and/or Materials

(ii) Madura, J. 2018, Financial Markets and Institutions (12th edn), Cengage Learning,

This book provides an overview of the history of money and finance. What makes this different to most books recommended for courses such as this is that it is also great fun to read – full of drama, violence, scandal, passion, crime, and so on – in short, all the things that really drive money and finance. It takes its story all the way up to mid-2008. A television series on the book was also made in 2008, and it is available on YouTube at https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=fsrtB5lp60s.
