Unit description
This unit provides students with the necessary skills to undertake research relating to Indigenous Australians in an ethical manner. Students will explore contemporary Indigenous research methodologies and consider how Indigenous research exists alongside Western approaches to knowledge creation and dissemination. The unit highlights the importance of clear and transparent research strategies and promotes outcomes that provide significant benefit to Indigenous communities. The importance of research partnerships and collaboration is explored in detail.

Important Academic Dates
Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at https://www.mq.edu.au/study/calendar-of-dates

Learning Outcomes
On successful completion of this unit, you will be able to:

ULO1: Recognise the historical legacies of research and subsequent effects on research practices with Indigenous peoples today.

ULO2: Justify your role as an Indigenous or non-Indigenous researcher or practitioner undertaking research or work with Indigenous communities.

ULO3: Explain the principles of a range of Indigenous Research Methodologies appropriate for application in research with Indigenous peoples.
ULO4: Apply appropriate Indigenous Studies theoretical frameworks to resolve a range of ethical problems in Indigenous research.

ULO5: Interpret and communicate the principles of current Australian Institute of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Studies guidelines to Indigenous community and professional audiences.

Book Review

Assessment Type: Essay

Indicative Time on Task: 20 hours

Due: 9th September

Weighting: 30%

In this task you will self-select one Indigenous research methodologies text from a list provided. You will produce a book review essay which will be discussed in class.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Recognise the historical legacies of research and subsequent effects on research practices with Indigenous peoples today.
- Explain the principles of a range of Indigenous Research Methodologies appropriate for application in research with Indigenous peoples
- Apply appropriate Indigenous Studies theoretical frameworks to resolve a range of ethical problems in Indigenous research.

Tutorial Activities

Assessment Type: Participatory task

Indicative Time on Task: 26 hours

Due: Weekly

Weighting: 30%

Actively participation in weekly online tutorial activities. These will be available on a weekly basis on iLearn.
On successful completion you will be able to:

- Recognise the historical legacies of research and subsequent effects on research practices with Indigenous peoples today.
- Explain the principles of a range of Indigenous Research Methodologies appropriate for application in research with Indigenous peoples
- Interpret and communicate the principles of current Australian Institute of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Studies guidelines to Indigenous community and professional audiences.

Research Proposal

Assessment Type: Essay
Indicative Time on Task: 40 hours
Due: 4th November
Weighting: 40%

This assessment task requires you to develop a research proposal for a hypothetical project. This proposal will demonstrate you have a clear understanding of appropriate Indigenous research methodologies and your position conducting research with Indigenous peoples. You will draw on your background research in the other two assessment tasks.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Recognise the historical legacies of research and subsequent effects on research practices with Indigenous peoples today.
- Justify your role as an Indigenous or non-Indigenous researcher or practitioner undertaking research or work with Indigenous communities.
- Explain the principles of a range of Indigenous Research Methodologies appropriate for application in research with Indigenous peoples
- Apply appropriate Indigenous Studies theoretical frameworks to resolve a range of ethical problems in Indigenous research.
- Interpret and communicate the principles of current Australian Institute of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Studies guidelines to Indigenous community and professional audiences.

1 If you need help with your assignment, please contact:

- the academic teaching staff in your unit for guidance in understanding or completing this type of assessment
- the Writing Centre for academic skills support.

Protocols for Indigenous Studies

In Australia there are two distinct Indigenous peoples: Aboriginal people and Torres Strait

Unit guide INDG7001 Research Ethics in Indigenous Australian Contexts
Islander people. When writing about Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islanders do not use the acronym 'ATSI', write in full. Capital letters should always be used when referring to Aboriginal peoples and or Torres Strait Islander peoples. While Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander are acceptable terms to use, it should be recognised that these are collective terms and often used improperly to impose a single identity on the many different communities. Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people generally prefer to be known by the language/cultural groups or communities, to which they belong, that is, own names rather than terms such 'the Aboriginals' or 'the Islanders'. For example, Aboriginal people in the area surrounding Macquarie University may refer to themselves as Dharug. It is important that you always check the correct name or terms to use for people in the area/region. The use of incorrect, inappropriate or dated terminology is to be avoided as it can give offence. Many historical terms or those in common usage some years ago are now not acceptable, including terms such as ‘aborigine’ ‘native’, ‘savage’ and ‘primitive’. Similarly, do not use the terms ‘half-caste’, ‘part-Aborigine/Aboriginal’ or any reference to skin colour or physical features, as they do not signify that a person is Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander and may cause offence. When quoting from academic or other sources that uses inappropriate, dated terminology or racists language, use (sic) directly after the inappropriate term of phrase, thus calling attention to the fact that it has been sourced from the original and that you understand it to be outdated, inappropriate or problematic in the contemporary context.
