Unit description

Liveability is used to define the quality of social, environmental, economic and infrastructural life in cities and regions. 'Liveable' is often seen as an antidote to a range of problems, such as urban sprawl and the lack of connectivity between different infrastructures, land-uses and communities. In this unit, students will analyse the meanings of liveability and consider policies and projects related to making cities and regions more liveable, such as smart and green infrastructure, transport and mobilities, urban activation and place-making. The unit focuses on the role of planning in making connections that improve the relationships between infrastructure, mobility and place. Overall, students will gain critical insights and practical knowledge of urban policies, governance structures and plans, as well the ethics and values, that underpin the goal of creating more liveable and connected cities.

Important Academic Dates

Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at <https://www.mq.edu.au/study/calendar-of-dates>

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this unit, you will be able to:

ULO1: Critically discuss the interconnections between infrastructure, mobility and place

ULO2: Engage with and critique theoretical concepts related to liveable cities

ULO3: Evaluate how ideas of liveability are interpreted and adopted in a range of urban and regional contexts

ULO4: Communicate to diverse audiences using appropriately selected written, oral and visual means

Delivery and Resources

GEOP3030 Liveable Cities: Infrastructure, mobilities and place-making is a subject that is offered internally and externally. Internal students must attend lectures on campus on Fridays 9-11am - these will be interactive lectures where you get to engage with new ideas about liveability!

Friday lectures are held at 12 Second Way - 430 Active Learning Space. External students will engage with recorded material from the lecture and do online activities weekly. Internal students will participate in compulsory tutorials on Fridays at 11am or midday (depending on your enrolment).

Each week you are expected to complete assigned readings available on Leganto prior to the tutorials and participate in face-to-face tutorials (internal students) or online discussion forums (external students).

All students are required to complete all assessments and these will be due at the same time for internal and external students.

GEOP3030 Liveable Cities uses a diverse range of digital resources, including an iLearn page where slides and audio from lectures will be posted, the Macquarie University Library for access to peer reviewed journal articles accessed via Leganto, and the Internet for news about, and discussions of, liveable cities. You will be required to have access to word processing technology and access to iLearn to complete and submit assignments.

Changes from Previous Offering

In this offering of GEOP3030, students are able to choose from a range of selected plans to do their Planning Report. This will make it easier for you to do the assessment task and apply theories about liveability to existing plans. The Liveable Cities Portfolio has been adjusted to reduce complexity and clarify student's expectations of the Digital Media component.
