Unit description

Geologists are investigating whether we have entered a new geological epoch known as the Anthropocene in which humanity is a driving force of global environmental change. With human activities increasingly connected to processes of planetary degradation there is an urgent need for multidisciplinary research that overcomes traditional divides between physical scientists, social scientists and environmental humanities researchers. This unit offers an interdisciplinary and critical introduction to Anthropocene studies, an important area for current and future research. The unit focuses upon how we should live in the Anthropocene and respond to the knowledge that current socioecological practices are not sustainable. Some key themes include: histories of the Anthropocene; human-nature relations; social and environmental justice; Indigenous knowledges; non-human agency; environmental governance; activism and impacts. The unit is team taught involving leading thinkers from across the university. It is designed to be accessible to students from a wide range of backgrounds and incorporates considerable flexibility to steer assessments towards your research interests.

Important Academic Dates

Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at <https://www.mq.edu.au/study/calendar-of-dates>

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this unit, you will be able to:

ULO1: Develop advanced multidisciplinary knowledge and understanding of the challenges posed by the Anthropocene.

ULO2: Identify and reflect on novel areas of research and engagement across human and non-human boundaries.

ULO4: Develop and apply research design and practice skills that engage with emergent themes of the Anthropocene.

ULO3: Conceptualise links between Anthropocene issues and personal research interests.

ULO5: Improve skills in written, verbal and conversational forms of research communication.

General Assessment Information

Late Assessment Submission Penalty

Unless a Special Consideration request has been submitted and approved, a 5% penalty (of the total possible mark) will be applied each day a written assessment is not submitted, up until the 7th day (including weekends). After the 7th day, a mark of, 0 (zero) will be awarded even if the assessment is submitted. Submission time for all written assessments is set at 11.55pm. A 1-hour grace period is provided to students who experience a technical issue.

This late penalty will apply to non-timed sensitive assessment (incl essays, reports, posters, portfolios, journals, recordings etc). Late submission of time sensitive tasks (such as tests/exams, performance assessments/presentations, scheduled practical assessments/labs etc) will only be addressed by the unit convenor in a Special consideration application. Special Consideration outcome may result in a new question or topic.

Assessment Tasks

Name	Weighting	Hurdle	Due
Anthropocene Field Project	45%	No	23.55 29/05/2023
Living in the Anthropocene Blog	25%	No	Fridays 23.55, from weeks 3-10
Weekly Reflective Summaries	30%	No	23.55 20/03/2023

Anthropocene Field Project

Assessment Type ¹: Essay

Indicative Time on Task ²: 60 hours

Due: 23.55 29/05/2023

Weighting: 45%

A small field 3000-word research project informed by ideas, theories and debates associated with the Anthropocene. The 'field' is flexibly defined in this task and can involve a combination of textual, media and observational analysis.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Develop advanced multidisciplinary knowledge and understanding of the challenges posed by the Anthropocene.
- Identify and reflect on novel areas of research and engagement across human and non-human boundaries.
- Develop and apply research design and practice skills that engage with emergent themes of the Anthropocene.
- Conceptualise links between Anthropocene issues and personal research interests.
- Improve skills in written, verbal and conversational forms of research communication.

Living in the Anthropocene Blog

Assessment Type ¹: Non-academic writing

Indicative Time on Task ²: 20 hours

Due: Fridays 23.55, from weeks 3-10

Weighting: 25%

A substantive 1500-word blog linked to a unit theme. The blog is written in a topical and engaging style that competently engages with complex concepts associated with the topic and the broader challenges associated with living in the Anthropocene.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Develop advanced multidisciplinary knowledge and understanding of the challenges posed by the Anthropocene.
- Identify and reflect on novel areas of research and engagement across human and non-human boundaries.
- Develop and apply research design and practice skills that engage with emergent themes of the Anthropocene.
- Conceptualise links between Anthropocene issues and personal research interests.
- Improve skills in written, verbal and conversational forms of research communication.

Weekly Reflective Summaries

Assessment Type ¹: Log book

Indicative Time on Task ²: 18 hours

Due: 23.55 20/03/2023

Weighting: 30%

Thoughtful and reflective record of the weekly required readings assigned the unit. It will include a summary of the reading material and a reflection on new insights gained, what was interesting, and any points of disagreement.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Develop advanced multidisciplinary knowledge and understanding of the challenges posed by the Anthropocene.
- Identify and reflect on novel areas of research and engagement across human and non-human boundaries.
- Develop and apply research design and practice skills that engage with emergent themes of the Anthropocene.
- Improve skills in written, verbal and conversational forms of research communication.

- the academic teaching staff in your unit for guidance in understanding or completing this type of assessment
- the Writing Centre for academic skills support.

² Indicative time-on-task is an estimate of the time required for completion of the assessment task and is subject to individual variation

Delivery and Resources

FOAR7005 will be taught through a series of two-hour discussion-based workshops hosted by researchers from across the University. Students will be set required readings before the workshop and these readings will form the basis for in-depth workshop discussions. The unit is supported by an iLearn website – where readings and assessment instructions and criteria will be made available. Please note that this unit requires compulsory participation in the workshops.
