Unit description

Are you satisfied with your professional career? Where do you see yourself in the near or even distant future? No matter where you are on your professional journey, everyone can benefit from some planning. This course will help you adapt to these changes successfully by enabling you to enhance your self-knowledge and confidence to explore wider career options and opportunities. In this course you will learn how to create a career development plan to help you reach your professional goals and aspirations. This course will provide you valuable and practical guidance for your career planning and self-management based on evidence-based models of goal setting (self-determination theory and goal setting theory), career adaptability (career construction theory, social cognitive career theory, and job crafting theory), and career success (social capital theory and psychological capital theory). Via structured learning activities (video lectures, quizzes, discussion prompts, industry interviews, and written assessments) you will come to appreciate that career planning and management is an ongoing process of assessing one's career identity, setting new learning goals, creating new career vision and goals, developing effective career strategies, and celebrating accomplishments as one develops and becomes more skilled.

General Assessment Information

Late submissions of assessments Unless a Special Consideration request has been submitted and approved, a 5% penalty (of the total possible mark) will be applied each day a written assessment is not submitted, up until the 7th day (including weekends). After the 7th day, a grade of '0' will be awarded even if the assessment is submitted. Submission time for all written assessments is set at 11.55pm. A 1-hour grace period is provided to students who experience a technical concern.

For any late submissions of time-sensitive tasks, such as scheduled tests/exams, performance assessments/presentations, and/or scheduled practical assessments/labs, students need to submit an application for Special Consideration.

Special Consideration To request an extension on the due date/time for a timed or non-timed assessment task, you must submit a Special Consideration application. An application for Special Consideration does not guarantee approval.

The approved extension date for a student becomes the new due date for that student. The late submission penalties above then apply as of the new due date.

Word limits Anything beyond a stated assessment word limit (other than your reference list) may not be marked. Seek any further clarification from the unit convenor.
