A Note on AI Use in this Unit

AI cannot be used for quizzes. Your assignments cannot report content generated by a third party or AI sources. While AI tools (e.g. Multisearch, Google Scholar, ChatGPT and other generative AI tools) can be useful sources of information and ideas it is fraudulent and a breach of academic integrity to pass off the content generated by these tools as your own writing and ideas. Please note that information or references generated by a third party or AI (e.g. Multisearch, Google Scholar, Chat GPT, etc.) needs to be checked for accuracy and reliability. AI and third party information generators are notorious for providing wrong, false, and incomplete information.

Units with Quiz Assessments

Quizzes are an individual assessment task and MUST BE COMPLETED by each student individually. Similarities in responses between students will be checked and investigated for possible collusion. Note that information generated by third parties or AI cannot be used for these quizzes in this unit.

University policy on grading

Delivery and Resources

Structure

The unit has 8-weeks of teaching. Each week there are TWO (2) recorded online lectures and ONE (1) tutorial. Tutorials are offered in two modes: a weekly face-to-face class on campus, or a weekly online class hosted on Zoom. You must register in one of these tutorial modes and attend your registered tutorial.

In the tutorial students will discuss issues and questions arising from the lectures and prescribed readings and will complete activities designed to reinforce key concepts. You are expected to base your tutorial contributions, any arguments or discussions on evidence from these readings, published research and other relevant material, particularly that supplied in the Unit.

In both face to face and online modes all students are required to participate in small group activities, whole class discussion, to read the weekly material in advance, and to complete brief tasks either as individuals or in pairs. There is an expectation that cameras and microphones are turned on in Zoom during all online activities. Please ensure you have internet access to attend your Zoom class in an appropriate location where you can speak aloud and participate in group discussions. e.g. public areas of the Library, are typically not an appropriate place to attend your Zoom class due to quiet space rules in the library.

The weekly program for the course with the accompanying readings/ preparation is available on the unit iLearn site.

Required and Recommended Readings

Required readings are located in the Leganto tool in iLearn or in the library.

Important assessment information will be posted here, as will other relevant unit notices and materials, including assessment tasks such as Quizzes or Tests which are to be completed in the iLearn site.

Weekly recorded lectures are available on the iLearn site through the ECHO360 lecture component. You must listen to all lectures as the content is mandated content for new teachers and is therefore assessable.

Changes from Previous Offering

The unit will change from year year and this will include some lecture topics, reading and tutorial activities. Assessment tasks topics and foci will change each year.

The 5Rs Framework

The 5Rs Framework, developed by the School of Education at Macquarie University, is embedded throughout your teacher education course.

Your use of the 5Rs Framework will help you develop the capabilities that will make your teaching career sustainable and fulfilling.

In this unit, you will learn using the 5Rs framework in the following important ways:

Resilience: This unit explicitly teaches concepts of resilience and students will interact with these concepts; assessment and feedback is a formative process that requires the competencies of self-regulation, self-efficacy and support seeking, which are critical components of our capacity to be resilient.

Reflexive: This unit teaches key concepts of adolescent development and learning in a reflexive stance that requires students to interact with and engage with their own beliefs and understandings of adolescence.

Responsive: Activities and tasks require students to practice the application of concepts to teaching and learning activities and demonstrate practical and reflexive engagement with concepts.

Ready to learn: This unit contains a condensed structure to accommodate professional experience placements and therefore students must be ready for a higher level of weekly activity which is supported and scaffolded with a structured iLearn site however they must demonstrate readiness to learn by scheduling their own listening time for online lectures/podcasts, completion of weekly readings and activities, and preparedness for tutorials and assessment tasks. Assessment tasks support readiness skills by promoting revision of weekly learning materials and readiness to engage in research so support evidence-based practice.

Research Engaged: You will directly engage with research to address practice-related questions and develop your own practice-related applications in assessment tasks. Unit readings and assessments tasks draw on published and/or peer reviewed research and students are offered a choice of assessment topics with which to demonstrate research engagement.
