Unit description
This unit introduces students to anthropological approaches of studying religion and to some of the core themes of the anthropology of religion. We will explore multiple religious beliefs, meanings, experiences, expressions and practices across diverse sociocultural environments both in the past and within the contemporary moment. Topics to be examined include religious myths, symbols and rituals; material religion; religion and art practices; shamanism; theocracy; secularism; and interplay between religion and politics. Special attention will be paid to how anthropologists conduct ethnographic fieldwork, the central method for anthropologists, on the religious. Students will gain a sense of the range of challenges and issues that professional anthropologists engage with when doing extended field research on religious worlds and lives. Through studying these topics, students will gain new theoretical knowledge and analytical tools that will enable them to critically examine sociocultural dimensions of religion.

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this unit, you will be able to:

UL01: Demonstrate mastery of knowledge on key themes in the anthropology of religion.
UL02: Evaluate anthropological theories of religion.
UL03: Examine ethnographic texts on religious experiences, practices, and lives.
UL04: Evaluate methodological dimensions of ethnographic research and data collection.
UL05: Write cogently about the sociocultural dimensions of religion.
UL06: Critically evaluate commonly held assumptions about other cultures and socio-religious differences and adopt an open-mindedness about other’s practices.

General Assessment Information

Participation

Lecture attendance, or watching the Echo-live stream or recording, is strongly advised. The lecture content will provide information that you will need to participate in the tutorials and for the quizzes. External students will participate in the online discussion forum in lieu of attending on-campus tutorials.

Participation will be assessed based on presentations and your engagement in discussions, both of which will be graded.

During weekly tutorials, each student must prepare a response to at least one of the discussion questions posted on iLearn. The tutor will select several students to present their responses during the tutorial. If chosen, you will need to read your response aloud; ideally, you should stand up and use the whiteboard. Your response should be approximately five minutes long.

Failure to present your response will result in a participation mark of zero for that week.

Responses will be graded on a scale of 0-10, based on the following criteria:

1. Addressing at least one of the discussion questions posted on iLearn (2 points)
2. Referencing at least one of the week’s readings (2 points)
3. Incorporating lecture content from the week (2 points)
4. Presenting within the five-minute timeframe (2 points)
5. Formulating a convincing response to questions asked after the presentation (2 points)

Tutorial Discussion: While one student presents, all other students must prepare a relevant question. After the presentation, the tutor will ask students to present their questions to the presenter. If you are chosen and fail to ask a question you will receive a participation mark of zero for that week. The tutor will grade your question on a scale of 0-5 based on the following criteria:
1. Asking a question (1 mark)
2. Referencing lecture content in the question to make a point (2 marks)
3. Referencing at least one of the readings to make a point (2 marks)

Ethnographic Essay
For this assignment, internally-enrolled students will work in groups of 3 or 4 and attend a ritual activity that exhibits religion in practice. If possible, external students can also undertake this assignment in groups but we understand that this may not be possible, so you will have the option of working individually.

The aim is to attend and observe a religious ritual or worshipping ceremony of your choice, which might take place, for example, at a local church, temple, mosque, synagogue, etc. Based on your observations of the ritual activity, you will then write an individual essay, which should analyse and discuss the following essay question: In what ways is ‘sacredness’ generated and expressed in this ritual event?

Essays will be marked individually according to the marking rubric. When you conduct your observational activity try to take detailed notes. You might also want to sketch out a map of the social space and how people use it. You should divide up the workload amongst the group. You may each choose to observe and record different things, or you may all decide to observe the same thing but from different angles.

Quizes
You will complete two online quizzes, each containing 15 multiple-choice questions. These quizzes are based on lecture materials and tutorial readings. These are open-note quizzes, so if you take the time to listen to lectures and do the readings, you will be able to answer them.

Quiz 1 will consist of questions that cover the unit material from Week 1 to Week 6 (included).
Quiz 2 will cover the unit material from Week 7 to Week 12 (included).

You will have 25 minutes to complete each quiz. The quizzes will open and close at a fixed time.

Take-home exam
The take-home examination is designed to assess your understanding of the material covered throughout the session. The questions are centred around the subjects explored in the course readings and lectures.

The examination comprises two sections. In Section 1, you are required to select any four out of seven questions and craft a 200-word response for each question. Section 2, entails a single question, and you are expected to provide a response of 500 words, with a permissible variation of plus or minus ten percent in the word count.

Special consideration
Unless a Special Consideration request has been submitted and approved, a 5% penalty (of the total possible mark) will be applied each day a written assessment is not submitted, up until the

2 Indicative time-on-task is an estimate of the time required for completion of the assessment task and is subject to individual variation

Delivery and Resources

This unit will be delivered via 13 lectures, 12 tutorials and an online forum. Every week, several scholarly but enjoyable readings will be made available to the students. Building on these readings in the anthropology of religion and the specialisation of the lecturers and tutors, the unit introduces students to anthropological approaches of studying religion.

In the lectures, we will explore multiple religious beliefs, meanings, experiences, expressions and practices across diverse sociocultural environments both in the past and within the contemporary moment. Topics to be examined include religious myths, symbols and rituals; material religion; religion and art practices; shamanism; secularism; and interplay between religion and politics.

During the tutorials and via a hands-on ethnographic observation exercise, students will learn how anthropologists conduct ethnographic fieldwork on the religious. Students will gain a sense of the range of challenges and issues that professional anthropologists engage with when doing extended field research on religious worlds and lives.

All lectures in this unit are delivered in person and made available via the ECHO platform.
