Unit description

Introduces students to foundational skills and concepts in the study of modern history from the late eighteenth century. Students will traverse the world from 1789 to 2001 looking closely at the role of revolution and the emergence of the nation-state, as well as the cost to humans and the natural world of economic growth and colonisation. Beginning with the French Revolution, the unit investigates conflict and change in the quest for equality and citizenship, telling the story of democratic aspirations in the modern world, including competing visions of modernity. It considers those excluded along with the new forms of solidarity and enmity created against the backdrop of rapid industrialisation, capitalism and environmental change. Students will build a foundational chronology of the modern world and develop skills such as critical and analytical thinking, effective communication and empathy.

Reflective Essay

Assessment Type ¹: Essay

Indicative Time on Task ²: 30 hours

Due: Week 12

Weighting: 40%

The reflective essay forms the major assessment task of the course and requires a high degree of thought, effort and preparation. Students need to make use of the unit's materials from across the semester to make their argument.

The purpose of this assessment task is to provide you an opportunity to develop and exercise skills in collecting and synthesizing evidence from a wide range sources in order to demonstrate a specific argument

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Identify core issues and problems in building historical knowledge.
- Treat information in an ethical manner.
- Build scholarly arguments in response to historical questions, drawing upon primary and secondary sources

Participation

Assessment Type ¹: Participatory task

Indicative Time on Task ²: 9 hours

Due: Weekly - Weeks 1-13

Weighting: 20%

Students will be required to complete a weekly blog and respond to questions about weekly content. In the final week they will critically reflect on what they have learned across the unit.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Identify core issues and problems in building historical knowledge.
- Treat information in an ethical manner.
- Build personal and communication skills through participation in seminar discussion.

Document Exercise

Assessment Type ¹: Qualitative analysis task

Indicative Time on Task ²: 30 hours

Due: Week 5

Weighting: 40%

Students are required to pick one primary source and one secondary source that they plan to use for their essay – they must summarise them both and explain why they are useful.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Identify core issues and problems in building historical knowledge.
- Treat information in an ethical manner.
- Build scholarly arguments in response to historical questions, drawing upon primary and secondary sources

¹ If you need help with your assignment, please contact:

- the academic teaching staff in your unit for guidance in understanding or completing this type of assessment
- the Writing Centre for academic skills support.

² Indicative time-on-task is an estimate of the time required for completion of the assessment task and is subject to individual variation
