Unit description

The unit introduces the big philosophical questions about human nature, personal identity and the meaning of life. Are human beings somehow unique in nature? Do we have distinct selves that endure through time? Do we have free will? What is the relation between our identity and the things that matter to us? The main theme is whether there is such a thing as human nature at all. We begin by asking whether mind is entirely physical or could in principle survive bodily death. We also explore the links between the self, time, and memory. The remainder of the unit introduces some key thinkers of the twentieth century; and we explore their views on freedom, lived experience, and our relations to others. The unit as a whole offers a detailed introduction to controversial questions about the nature of the mind, showing how historical understanding animates current debates, and demonstrating the relevance of philosophy to live modern issues about science, human nature, and culture.

General Assessment Information

Detailed assessment information and rubrics

Detailed information about each of the assessments, including rubrics, will be available in iLearn. Please make sure you read the assessment information carefully, and contact the convenor if you have any questions.

Submission and return of assessments

Written assessments in this unit are to be submitted through the appropriate 'Turnitin' links in the unit website. They will be marked through 'Grademark', which will allow you to access your marked assignments directly through the website. For information about Turnitin and Grademark, see:

<https://students.mq.edu.au/support/study/tools-and-resources/ilearn/ilearn-quick-guides-for-students/assignments-and-grades>

Special Consideration

Requests for extensions should be submitted via a Special Consideration request, which is available in the <http://ask.mq.edu.au> portal. Your request should be submitted no later than five days after the due date and should be accompanied by appropriate documentation. Please see <https://students.mq.edu.au/study/assessment-exams/special-consideration> for further details and instructions. Read this information closely as your request may be turned down if you have not followed procedure, or if you have not submitted a request in a timely manner. The Macquarie University Special Consideration Policy can be found at the end of this document.

Late Submission Penalty

Unless a Special Consideration request has been submitted and approved, a 5% penalty (of the total possible mark) will be applied each day a written assessment is not submitted, up until the 7th day (including weekends). After the 7th day, a mark of, 0 (zero) will be awarded even if the assessment is submitted. Submission time for all written assessments is set at 11.55pm. A 1-hour grace period is provided to students who experience a technical issue.

This late penalty will apply to non-timed sensitive assessment (incl essays, reports, posters, portfolios, journals, recordings etc). Late submission of time sensitive tasks (such as tests/exams, performance assessments/presentations, scheduled practical assessments/labs etc) will only be addressed by the unit convenor in a Special consideration application. Special Consideration outcome may result in a new question or topic.

Academic Integrity

In Philosophy, academic honesty is taken very seriously, and a range of methods, including but not restricted to the use of Turnitin, are used to detect plagiarism. Misrepresenting someone else's work as your own may be grounds for referral to the Faculty Disciplinary Committee. If you have questions about how to properly cite work or how to credit sources, please ask the convenor for help and see also the Academic Integrity Policy <https://staff.mq.edu.au/work/strategy-planning-and-governance/university-policies-and-procedures/policies/academic-integrity>

Please note that the policy also prohibits resubmitting work you have already submitted in another unit or unit offering. This counts as self-plagiarism. To avoid self-plagiarism, if you have done this unit previously, you should write on another topic this time. If this presents you with any problems, please contact the unit convenor as soon as possible.

All assessment tasks in this unit are individual tasks. Using other students' work or making your work available to other students counts as collusion, which also puts you in breach of the Academic Integrity policy.

A helpful resource if you would like to know more about referencing and avoiding plagiarism is Macquarie's Academic Integrity Module, available here: <https://students.mq.edu.au/support/study/skills-development>. You will need to complete this Module before accessing the unit content, if you have not already done so. More information is available in iLearn.

Policy on the use of Generative AI/Chapt GPT in Philosophy:

In this Unit, and unless notified otherwise in writing by the Unit Convenor, substantive assessment content that has been generated by AI will be regarded as not the student's own work and potentially in breach of Academic Integrity standards. This applies to all assessments, including online forums. In submitting assessments all students will be required to confirm their agreement with the following:

In submitting this assessment, I certify that this submission is my own work and demonstrates my own understanding, analysis, research, reflection, critical thinking, and writing. I am not submitting anything that I cannot myself fully explain and defend, if called upon to do so. I understand that if my teachers have concerns about whether this submission is my own work or an AI-generated output, I may be required to attend an interview with the Unit Convenor/Integrity Officer/academic staff to verify my research methods, my understanding of the content, and my close familiarity with all sources I have cited. If I am found to have submitted work that is not my own, my work will be further investigated, and I may be found to be in breach of the MQ Academic Integrity Policy.

Delivery and Resources

Lectures

Lectures will be delivered live on campus from 12noon-2pm on Monday of each week in 29WW T1. Internal students are strongly encouraged to attend, but the lectures will also be streamed and recorded for online students, and those unable to attend. All students need to have attended or watched the lectures before attending tutorials or engaging in weekly discussions, since each week's tutorials and discussions will focus on content from the same week's lecture. Internal and zoom students should take this into consideration when choosing a tutorial time.

Tutorials

All students will engage in the discussion and related activities with their classmates and member of teaching staff, but the mode of participation will depend on how you've enrolled:

- Students enrolled in the 'in-person scheduled' offering will attend one tutorial each week (Weeks 2-11) on campus. Check the timetable for details (<http://timetables.mq.edu.au>). Your participation in tutorial is a crucial element of learning in this unit and is based on pre-tutorial preparation activities as well as discussion. Tutorial participation is required in order to complete the Reflective Portfolio assessment task.
- Students enrolled in the 'online scheduled' offering will attend one tutorial each week (Weeks 2-11) on Zoom. Zoom links will be available in iLearn. Check the timetable for details (<http://timetables.mq.edu.au>). our participation in tutorial is a crucial element of learning in this unit and is based on pre-tutorial preparation activities as well as discussion. Tutorial participation is required in order to complete the Reflective Portfolio assessment task.
- Students enrolled in the 'online flexible' offering (either in PHIL1031 or via OUA in PHIX1031) will engage in discussion activities flexibly, through the asynchronous discussion forums in iLearn (Weeks 2-11). Tutorial participation is required in order to complete the Reflective Portfolio assessment task. More information will be available in iLearn.

Reading

All the essential readings and some supplementary readings for the course will be available electronically through the library, with links from iLearn. A list of weekly readings will be available through iLearn in week 1. You should do the essential weekly reading before your tutorial/discussion.

Website

The unit website is available through iLearn (<http://ilearn.mq.edu.au>). It contains essential resources for the unit, and you are expected to log in on a regular basis.

Unit Schedule

SECTION 1 - HUMAN NATURE: TRADITIONAL DEBATES

Lecturer: Dr Jenny Duke-Yonge

Week 1 (week beginning 24th February) No tutorials or assessed discussion this week	Introduction A general introduction: What is Philosophy? What is Human Nature? This week we will have a general introduction to the methods of Philosophy, and to the concerns about human nature that we will be examining over the unit.
Week 2 (w/b 3rd March)	The Mind/Body Problem This week we discuss the mind-body problem: Are we purely physical beings, or do we have a mind that cannot be explained in physical terms? If we have an immaterial mind, how does it fit into the material world? But if we don't, how can we make sense of our experience?
Week 3 (w/b 10th March)	Personal Identity What makes you a person? And what makes you the same person over time? This week we'll look at some classic and contemporary arguments and thought experiments to help us understand what it is for you to be you .
Week 4 (w/b 17 th March)	Free will and Determinism Do we have free will? Or are our actions determined by causes outside our control? What implications does this question have for our sense of agency and responsibility?

SECTION 2 – EXISTENTIAL QUESTIONS

Lecturer: Professor Robert Sinnerbrink

Week 5 (w/b 24 th March)	The Problem of Existence; Absurdity and Authenticity Albert Camus claimed that 'the only serious philosophical problem' is that of the meaning and value of existence. This week introduces existentialism by exploring the problem of existence and the experience of existential 'absurdity'. How might we live an authentic existence in an absurd world? Media Presentation due Sunday 30/03
Week 6 (w/b 31 st March)	Human Freedom and Consciousness What is human freedom and how does it relate to consciousness? Are human relationships inevitably conflictual? Do we accept our freedom, or do we exist in 'bad faith' (self-deception)? This week we examine Jean-Paul Sartre's existentialist account of freedom, consciousness, and our difficult relations with others.
Week 7 (w/b 7 th April)	Being-in-the-world and Mortality An introduction to phenomenology as a philosophical method focusing on practical everyday existence. Martin Heidegger's anti-dualistic account of human existence as 'being-in-the-world'. Why we are 'skilled copers' rather than disengaged knowers. How we deal with our environment but also with time and our mortality. (Mid-Semester break 14/04-25/04)

Week 8 (w/b 28 th April)	Literature and Art as Philosophical Tools The importance of art and literature as alternative ways of exploring philosophical questions. Sartre on literature and why it helps us understand human freedom and social relations. Maurice Merleau-Ponty on visual art as a way of exploring the 'phenomenology of perception' What painting can show us about embodied perception and experiencing nature.
SECTION 3 – FROM THE NARRATIVE SELF TO SELF-NARRATIVE PRACTICES Lecturer: Dr Regina Fabry
Week 9 (w/b 5 th May)	Narrative and Selfhood How are we able to conceive of ourselves as selves that continue to exist across time? This week, we explore and discuss one influential answer to this question that emphasises the importance of narratives for the psychological continuity of selfhood: Marya Schechtman's (1996, 2007) narrative self-constitution view .
Week 10 (w/b 12 th May)	Embodied Narratives Many philosophers claim that human agents are both embodied and narrative creatures. But what is the relationship between our lived embodied experiences and our self-narratives? This week, we will explore Richard Menary's (2008) embodied narrative account and more recent philosophical accounts that can provide answers to this question.
Week 11 (w/b 19 th May)	Cognitivist Approaches to Self-Narrative Proponents of 4E (embodied, embedded, extended, enactive) accounts of cognition and affectivity argue that self-narration is not only embodied, but causally dependent on our interactions with our socio-culturally shaped niche. To what extent, then, does the niche influence how we make sense of our experiences through self-narration? This week, we look at Richard Heersmink's (2020) account of distributed self-narratives and recent critical engagements with this work. Reflective Task due Sunday 25/05
Week 12 (w/b 26 th May) No tutorials or assessed discussion this week	Self Narratives and Cultural Niches Previous research on 4E cognition and affectivity has tacitly assumed that the socio-culturally shaped niche has a beneficial impact on self-narrative practices. More recently, however, philosophers have started to paint a more nuanced, complicated picture of the relationship between self-narrators and their niche. This week, we will explore the potentially harmful constraints that the niche imposes on processes of self-narration by discussing Lucy Osler's (2024) account of narrative railroading and cognate philosophical considerations.
Week 13 (w/b 2 nd June)	There are no lectures or tutorials this week: Use the time to finalise your Reflective Portfolio We hope you have enjoyed PHIL/PHIX1031! Reflective Portfolio due Sunday 08/06
