Unit description

This unit explores the practical and political realities of creative and media production as it applies to fiction, non-fiction, public relations, advertising, journalism, screen, radio, and other sorts of representational strategies. Drawing from the unit title students are exposed to major debates around: 1) the structural elements required to represent reality, both in and off media; 2) the politics of representation as a social practice; 3) the ethics of representing as an individual act; and 4) the unstable nature of representation received, modified, and re-circulated as "renewed reality", especially via private, gated, public and "super-public" spheres.

Important Academic Dates

Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at <https://www.mq.edu.au/study/calendar-of-dates>

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this unit, you will be able to:

ULO1: evaluate how media content can be represented across a range of formats, genres, and platforms.

ULO2: apply independent scholarly research to cases with global/multicultural/transnational foci.

ULO3: communicate and present information in modes suited to a range of audiences, and in a range of text-based and audio-visual media.

ULO4: analyse the political and economic impact of media representations.

General Assessment Information

- All assessment submissions must be done using TurnItIn (text based) and the relevant clearly identified iLearn submission section (for media work, audio, video etc). Provide correct permissions for teacher to access anything submitted outside of iLearn. See information on iLearn for other media submission types or options where technical difficulties arise. In general paper or emailed submissions will not be accepted. iLearn Student Guide on Assignments and Turnitin
- LATE SUBMISSION OF ASSESSMENTS. The Faculty policy in relation to late assessment submissions is as follows: Unless a Special Consideration request has been submitted and approved, a 5% penalty (of the total possible mark) will be applied each day a written assessment is not submitted, up until the 7th day (including weekends). After the 7th day, a mark of, 0 (zero) will be awarded even if the assessment is submitted. Submission time for all written assessments is set at 11.55pm. A 1-hour grace period is provided to students who experience a technical issue. This late penalty will apply to non-timed sensitive assessment (incl essays, reports, posters, portfolios, journals, recordings etc). Late submission of time sensitive tasks (such as tests/exams, performance assessments/presentations, scheduled practical assessments/labs etc) will only be addressed by the unit convenor in a Special consideration application. Special Consideration outcome may result in a new question or topic.

Assessment Tasks

Name	Weighting	Hurdle	Due
Presentation	30%	No	In class Wk4-10 – submit 1 week after
Project Proposal	20%	No	16/04/2025
Final Project	50%	No	06/06/2025

Presentation

Indicative Time on Task <sup>2</sup>: 19 hours

Due: In class Wk4-10 – submit 1 week after

Weighting: 30%

Once this semester, you will be responsible for giving a five minute “provocation presentation”, based on an assigned weekly reading. In this presentation, you will be expected to: introduce and teach your peers one CONCEPT (or argument, or observation) of your choosing, taken from the class readings on offer that week. introduce and detail one CASE STUDY of your choosing that you found to be a useful illustration of the concept (or argument, or observation) you just taught the class about. ? introduce and consider one QUESTION you have, connected to your case study, and/or concept, in a way that invites and encourages class conversation. Refer to iLearn for further information.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- apply independent scholarly research to cases with global/multicultural/ transnational foci.
- analyse the political and economic impact of media representations.

Project Proposal

Assessment Type <sup>1</sup>: Plan

Indicative Time on Task <sup>2</sup>: 29 hours

Due: 16/04/2025

Weighting: 20%

For this assessment, you will provide a written proposal that explains what you are planning to create for your final project in this class (see more on that in Assessment 3.) In class, you will receive a template to guide you as you prepare your proposal. At minimum, your proposal should indicate: - Your desired media format and narrative position for this project. - A detailed description of what you wish to create (i.e. “a ____ about ____”). - A rationale explaining how this project dialogues with issues from class. - A detailed explanation of an objective you hope achieve with their project, and why (e.g.” I want to teach people about X, because Y,” or “I want to show how I felt during X because Y”. - An intended timeline for completing your project. Refer to iLearn for further information.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- evaluate how media content can be represented across a range of formats, genres, and platforms.
- communicate and present information in modes suited to a range of audiences, and in a range of text-based and audio-visual media.

Final Project

Indicative Time on Task <sup>2</sup>: 50 hours

Due: 06/06/2025

Weighting: 50%

Drawing on the ideas that have been investigated through the course of this semester, you will produce an original project that engages with at least one key concept or debate from the unit readings/lectures. When we say “engages with,” we don’t necessarily mean “agrees with.” In your project, you can feel free to question, critique, reframe, expand on, or otherwise interact with ideas from class. Format: Your project can take any form you wish (with Convenor approval): it could be an essay (academic, or directed at a suitable media outlet); a short story; a short video or podcast, a photo text essay series.** We’ll discuss ideal lengths for different formats during tutorials. Regardless of format, you’ll need to ask yourself, questions like: am I interested in creating a project that deals in facts, in fictions, or in a mix of these? Why? - Do I want readers/viewers to perceive my media work or essay work in this project as well researched, reliable, cogently argued etc., or if hard to verify, or using other fictional genres to explore a topic dealing with reality, what am I trying to achieve using these forms? Do I want readers/viewers to experience my narration of reality or ideas as objective, omniscient, personally invested/affected, or something else? Why? **Please be advised that the range of format options above has been provided to allow students across all areas of the department to exercise their existing creative strengths. However, this is NOT a production class, and we do not teach production-oriented skills. If you are in doubt about format, we urge you to choose the essay approach, as it is one most students have encountered in the past. Refer to iLearn for further information.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- evaluate how media content can be represented across a range of formats, genres, and platforms.
- communicate and present information in modes suited to a range of audiences, and in a range of text-based and audio-visual media.

<sup>2</sup> Indicative time-on-task is an estimate of the time required for completion of the assessment task and is subject to individual variation

Delivery and Resources

Delivery of unit

This unit will begin in WEEK 2 of the semester. Sessions or classes will be face to face and a hybrid face to face and online class option if required. I.e. Options for in person delivery on campus (preferred enrolment choice), and if enough demand, an online two-hour class mixed with face to face interactive seminar (same time as in person class or with added class times depending on numbers). Consult iLearn and Timetable updates for days/time and location. The seminar features illustrated lectures presented by the Convenor and interactive style material with guided inquiry, presentations, workshops where possible, small group activities and discussions. Online link for online attendance will be provided. Lecture portions of the class will be recorded for review purposes. Workshops, discussions, or activities may not be recorded (TBA). Slides and or notes to lectures given will usually be posted to iLearn to assist your learning and revision. These will usually be available a few days after each class. See Echo 360 block on iLearn or Zoom recording for more information.

Attendance policy

Students are advised that attendance in the seminar is essential to success. Assessments require you to be familiar with a range of content and scholarly techniques you probably have not encountered before. This content and techniques will be taught to you during the seminars, and you will also be expected to participate in discussions, activities and presentations. Class attendance is considered mandatory for those wishing to pass the unit. Contact Convenor in case of unavoidable absences. In addition to attendance/reviewing of seminar material you will be expected to be making headway on your assessment projects. To ensure this is happening and demonstrate your engagement in this unit, we will periodically ask you to share ideas online or in classes or upload written materials (class notes, brainstorming from groups or individual preparation, screenshots from research). This material will not be marked, but will be referenced in the case of students requesting last minute assistance, or disputing marks.

Reading

All required readings will be available online and most accessed via the Leganto system or MQ library link. Recommended readings will also usually have a Link to the Library provided. Each week on iLearn, you'll also receive links to case studies or examples discussed during lecture, or in tutorials (some of these will be on external sites, and may also include podcasts, articles and audiovisual works, but none will have a cost). It is your responsibility to check these and be enriched through reading/watching/listening etc.

Laptop Policy

Please DO bring your own devices for use in class (laptops or tablets + mobile phones). The library has laptops and iPads available for lending if you don't have your own. <http://www.mq.edu.au/about/campus-services-and-facilities/library/facilities/computer-facilities> and there are other computer labs on campus. Please also bring a pen or pencil and paper or notebook to class.

Other Technology Matters

Students are expected to make use of everyday information technologies to complete their assignments (i.e. Personal Computers, mobile phones, freely available editing software and online publishing platforms). As this is not a production unit, students should not contact the department's technical staff for equipment or support. Feel free to challenge yourself but work within your technical abilities. Other iCloud software available to the Arts Faculty may also be available for students to use, Adobe Suite. The Convenor will update you on iLearn.

Recess/Easter period and Study Break

Students are advised that we will NOT physically meet in class during the break, although preparation is expected during some of this time. The Convenor will be available in these weeks by appointment only.

Unit Schedule

Unit schedule will be available to students via iLearn prior to the start of classes and is subject to updates and change.

Policies and Procedures

Macquarie University policies and procedures are accessible from Policy Central (<https://policies.s.mq.edu.au>). Students should be aware of the following policies in particular with regard to Learning and Teaching:

When using the University's IT, you must adhere to the Acceptable Use of IT Resources Policy. The policy applies to all who connect to the MQ network including students.

Changes from Previous Offering

While the content and approach will be similar to the 2024 iteration of this unit, this unit now focuses much more on the creative industries sphere (although media industries representations remains a strong component and intersects with creative and cultural industries). There will be newly introduced lecture material, exercises, case studies, readings and media materials as this unit endeavours to include recent and highly relevant examples of creative industries representation engaging with the key themes covered in this unit, plus the technologies, forms, platforms, organizations and key figures/players etc., and as these change and transform. Media material, forms and applications, plus critical and creative ideas which engage with representational strategies and effects/affects will also be grounded in informed and rigorous scholarship or practice. These examples and critical materials will also be drawn from a wide range of sites and disciplinary sources as the unit endeavours to be international in scope and relevance, although English language sources will predominate. Students are encouraged to reflect on and engage with international material relevant to the themes of creative industries representation (including relevant media industries), and bring to class informed commentaries drawing on their 'home' countries contexts or other representations from the global and transnational spheres particularly where this might be of interest or significance and these examples can be conveyed to the class as valuable casestudies or contributions.
