Unit description

Grammar is the powerhouse of language. This unit will introduce you to the relationship of grammar and meaning, through understanding the three functions of language: the experiential function (how we use language to construe our experience of the world around us, and the world inside us); the interpersonal function (how we enact our social relationships through language); and the textual function (how we organise our language into coherent text). The lexicogrammatical analysis you will learn about in this unit can be applied directly to the texts that you create and consume on a daily basis. The framework you learn in this unit is also applied in many different fields of study, including computational linguistics, translation, literary studies, child language development, political and media discourse, the language of health professionals, the language of education, etc. This is a unit for people who love language, and who understand that language is important to all aspects of life.

Important Academic Dates

Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at <https://www.mq.edu.au/study/calendar-of-dates>

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this unit, you will be able to:

ULO1: Differentiate the three functions of language: the experiential function (language construing experience), the interpersonal function (language enacting interpersonal relations), and the textual function (language creating coherent text)

ULO2: Apply grammatical concepts to the study of naturally occurring text

ULO3: Analyse grammatical patterning in naturally occurring text

ULO4: Appraise the effects of the grammatical patterning in text in relation to the nature of the social and cultural context of the text

General Assessment Information

Assignment submission

Assignments are due by 11.55pm on the due dates via the Turnitin links.

If you have any concerns about your assignment, please contact me directly so I can support you.

Collaboration

You are free to discuss the assignments with other students. However, you MUST submit your own work. Please ensure you have read the Academic Integrity Policy below.

Use of Generative AI

You are free to use Generative AI tools to complete this assignment. If you use Gen AI, please write a statement of acknowledgement of how you have used it for your assignment. Generative AI often gives you incorrect information, so do not rely on it for the content of your assignment.

Check this useful page from Sheffield University about how to use Gen AI for getting help and using it for planning and developing your essay, including for getting help with proof reading of your work: <https://www.sheffield.ac.uk/study-skills/digital/generative-ai/essays-reports>

Requesting an extension to assignment due date

On occasion, you may be in a situation when you aren't able to submit an assessment task on time. Extensions are only given in special circumstances, by completing a Special Consideration request. For more information on Special Consideration, see <https://students.mq.edu.au/study/my-study-program/special-consideration>

Late submission of assignments

If you haven't been approved for an extension and you submit your assessment task late, penalties are applied. Please contact me if you are in this position. Late submissions will receive a 5% per day penalty. If you submit the assessment task 10 days or more beyond the due date, without an approved extension, you will be awarded a maximum of 50% of the overall assessment marks. Weekends and public holidays are included.

Assessment Tasks

Name	Weighting	Hurdle	Due
Text analysis Part 1	30%	No	14/04/2025
Text analysis Part 2	50%	No	06/06/2025
Interpreting and appraising textual patterns	20%	No	12/05/2025

Text analysis Part 1

Assessment Type ¹: Case study/analysis

Indicative Time on Task ²: 24 hours

Due: 14/04/2025

Weighting: 30%

In this assignment, students will apply constituency and experiential grammatical categories to naturally occurring text. They will identify the grammatical patterns in the text, and explain the relationship of these patterns to the social context of this text.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Differentiate the three functions of language: the experiential function (language construing experience), the interpersonal function (language enacting interpersonal relations), and the textual function (language creating coherent text)
- Apply grammatical concepts to the study of naturally occurring text
- Analyse grammatical patterning in naturally occurring text
- Appraise the effects of the grammatical patterning in text in relation to the nature of the social and cultural context of the text

Assessment Type ¹: Case study/analysis

Indicative Time on Task ²: 40 hours

Due: 06/06/2025

Weighting: 50%

Using the same text as assignment 1, in this assignment students extend the analysis to apply the grammatical categories of the interpersonal and textual metafunctions. They will identify the grammatical patterns in the text, and explain the relationship of these patterns to the social context of this text.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Differentiate the three functions of language: the experiential function (language construing experience), the interpersonal function (language enacting interpersonal relations), and the textual function (language creating coherent text)
- Apply grammatical concepts to the study of naturally occurring text
- Analyse grammatical patterning in naturally occurring text
- Appraise the effects of the grammatical patterning in text in relation to the nature of the social and cultural context of the text

Interpreting and appraising textual patterns

Assessment Type ¹: Quantitative analysis task

Indicative Time on Task ²: 12 hours

Due: 12/05/2025

Weighting: 20%

Students are provided with a text that has already been analysed in relation to its experiential and interpersonal lexicogrammatical elements. Students identify, summarize and interpret the significance of the lexicogrammatical patterns in this text through a written submission.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Differentiate the three functions of language: the experiential function (language construing experience), the interpersonal function (language enacting interpersonal relations), and the textual function (language creating coherent text)
- Analyse grammatical patterning in naturally occurring text
- Appraise the effects of the grammatical patterning in text in relation to the nature of the social and cultural context of the text

- the academic teaching staff in your unit for guidance in understanding or completing this type of assessment
- the Writing Centre for academic skills support.

² Indicative time-on-task is an estimate of the time required for completion of the assessment task and is subject to individual variation

Delivery and Resources

This unit involves a two hour weekly lecture, and a 1 hour online weekly tutorial (beginning in Week 2). The unit has a choice of textbooks:

1. Butt, Fahey, Spinks, Yallop, Feez. 2012. Using Functional Grammar: An Explorer's Guide. Palgrave Macmillan. This is only available in hard copy in the library. It is a shorter, simpler version of the content. The book is currently out of print. You can get it second hand - or you can access this pdf of the 2nd edition on line. There is also a copy of the third edition available at <https://archive.org/>.

2. Halliday and Matthiessen. 2014. An Introduction to Functional Grammar, Taylor and Francis. 2014. This book is available online through the library.

Butt et al. is a shorter, simpler introduction. Halliday and Matthiessen is a more comprehensive overview of the content covered in this unit.

Unit Schedule

Week	Lecture topics	Readings
1	What is language? What is grammar? We begin this unit by exploring some ideas about the nature of language including how it is that we come to be users of language. Language is more than grammar, so we also need to understand the place of grammar within language. While often thought of as 'rules', grammar is a resource for meaning. I'll illustrate this point by looking at what verbs do. The verb is a structure that allows us to represent and construe process, flux and change. It's time to move beyond the 'verb is a doing word' definition, to explore the power and beauty of the grammar of verbs. Also, see my column here for background on the way grammar is explored in this unit.	Halliday's and Matthiessen's An Introduction to Functional Grammar (IFG): Chapter 1 – section 1.1; Chapter 2 – section 2.1 Using Functional Grammar: An Explorer's Guide-Second Edition (UFG): Chapter 1&2
2-3	Constituency: units in grammar In weeks 2-3, we extend our picture by looking at the other important units in grammar. We will look at the grammatical units of clause, group and phrase, word, and morpheme. To understand what we can 'see' in language structure we have to understand what motivates it, and relate it to the motif of 'choice'.	IFG: Chapter 6 UFG: Chapter 1&2
4	What is a clause? To use language in the many and varied ways we interact, we need to put words into structures. The most important grammatical unit is the clause, because it is through the clause we create 'experiential', 'interpersonal' and 'textual meanings'. In this lecture, we will build on the two previous weeks by looking at whole clauses, and different types of clauses. We will even see clauses inside (i.e. 'embedded in') other clauses.	IFG: Chapter 2 - section 2.5-2.7 UFG: Chapter 2

5-6	Clause as representation: language construing experience Humans use language for meaning making of three kinds. In weeks 5 and 6 we begin exploring how grammar allows us to make sense of experience, to turn experience into meaning that we can share with our nearest and dearest, or complete strangers. We will come back to the verbal group, and look at different kinds of verbs/processes, and how we use grammar to construe action, saying and thinking, and relations of identity and similarity.	IFG: Chapter 5 UFG: Chapter 3
7-8	Clause as exchange: language enacting social relationships Humans don't produce linguistic structure as an end in itself. We don't just talk, we talk to someone, even when that someone is someone we don't know or can never know. There is always an audience for our talk. There are many dimensions to our social relations. For instance, how do you talk to people who have some kind of power over you? How does your talk reflect a relation of familiarity or intimacy? When you talk to very young kids, or to elderly people, how does your language vary? These kinds of distinctions are reflected and made through linguistic choices.	IFG: Chapter 4 UFG: Week 7: Chapter 4 Week 8: Chapter 5
9-10	Clause as message: language for creating coherent text Language allows us to make meanings of two kinds simultaneously: meanings about the world, and meanings about the social relations that pertain to a given situation. How do we make all this hang together? The textual function is the grammar for creating coherent texts. In weeks 9-10 we look into the options in grammar for the order of elements in a clause, and how this order has consequences for text structure and coherence.	IFG: Chapter 3 UFG: Chapter 6
11	Building up text This week we look at the grammatical resources for linking and binding clauses together to create more complex clausal structures. We look at the choices speakers and writers have to give more or less prominence to meaning, and to create the 'logical' meanings that join clauses together.	IFG: Chapter 7 UFG: Chapter 7
12	Review and consolidation This week we work through all the analysis we have done so far, to bring out the patterns of meaning in a sample text.	No new readings this week
13	Language in society, society in language We analyse real data in linguistics to help us understand the nature of language. But we also apply our insights to understanding all kinds of language-related issues, from language as an aesthetic resource in the study of literature, to language used to divide communities for political purposes. In this final lecture I examine some of the many applications of the tools you have studied in this unit.	See iLearn for suggested readings.

Policies and Procedures
