Unit description

Why do we need theoretical concepts to think critically and reflectively about human geography and planning? This unit offers you an advanced introduction to key theoretical paradigms and to the ways in which they have influenced geographical and planning imaginations. A key focus of the unit is the use of theory to develop critical, situated and ethical standpoints that inform academic and professional practice. 'Thinking Space' will help you to develop these skills by learning how to identify your own theoretical perspectives in relation to the perspectives of others. You will work individually and in groups on themes related to the critical study of space and apply theoretical perspectives to the historical and lived conditions experienced by different groups over time.

Important Academic Dates

Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at https://www.mq.edu.au/study/calendar-of-dates

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this unit, you will be able to:

ULO1: Identify and discuss the key paradigms and concepts that inform contemporary geographical and planning theory.

ULO2: Develop an understanding of the use of theory in formulating critical perspectives and ethical standpoints in addressing real world issues and in recognising the perspectives and standpoints of others.

ULO3: Apply theoretical perspectives to the historical and lived spatial conditions experienced by different social groups

ULO4: Develop your own theoretical and ethical standpoints and relate these to your professional and/or academic practice.

General Assessment Information

Unless a Special Consideration request has been submitted and approved, a 5% penalty (of the total possible mark) will be applied each day a written assessment is not submitted, up until the 7th day (including weekends). After the 7th day, a mark of '0' (zero) will be awarded even if the assessment is submitted. Submission time for all written assessments is set at 11.55pm. A 1-hour grace period is provided to students who experience a technical issue. This late penalty will apply to non-time sensitive assessment (incl. essays, reports, posters, portfolios, journals, recordings etc). Late submission of time sensitive tasks (such as tests/exams, performance assessments/presentations, scheduled practical assessments/labs etc) will only be addressed by the unit convenor in a Special Consideration application. Special Consideration outcome may result in a new question or topic.

Assessment Tasks

Name	Weighting	Hurdle	Due
Scoping Task	20%	No	23/03/2025
Methods and Data Collection Report	40%	No	21/04/2025
Thinking Space Final Project Report	40%	No	01/06/2025

Scoping Task

Assessment Type 1: Plan

Indicative Time on Task 2: 15 hours

Due: 23/03/2025 Weighting: 20%

Development of a scoping brief for a place-based research project. The task will include site identification and background, the identification of three sources of literature, the scoping of methods to be deployed, a draft abstract and a timeline for project deliverables. 800 words.

On successful completion you will be able to:

 Identify and discuss the key paradigms and concepts that inform contemporary geographical and planning theory. Develop an understanding of the use of theory in formulating critical perspectives and ethical standpoints in addressing real world issues and in recognising the perspectives and standpoints of others.

Methods and Data Collection Report

Assessment Type 1: Report Indicative Time on Task 2: 40 hours

Due: 21/04/2025 Weighting: 40%

This assessment has three components (1) identification and discussion of methods such as historical, observational, or media analysis; (2) data collection and (3) presentation and preliminary analysis of data. 2000 words.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Identify and discuss the key paradigms and concepts that inform contemporary geographical and planning theory.
- Develop an understanding of the use of theory in formulating critical perspectives and ethical standpoints in addressing real world issues and in recognising the perspectives and standpoints of others.
- Apply theoretical perspectives to the historical and lived spatial conditions experienced by different social groups
- Develop your own theoretical and ethical standpoints and relate these to your professional and/or academic practice.

Thinking Space Final Project Report

Assessment Type 1: Report

Indicative Time on Task 2: 30 hours

Due: 01/06/2025 Weighting: 40%

Synthesis of tasks 1 and 2 into a full final research report. The report will include an introduction and discussion of relevant literature (synthesis and further development of task one) and the presentation, analysis and discussion of data (synthesis and further development of task two). In addition, the report will include a fully developed conclusion. The overall quality of the presentation of the report in a professional format and evidence of response to feedback are assessable components of this task. 5000 words.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Identify and discuss the key paradigms and concepts that inform contemporary geographical and planning theory.
- Develop an understanding of the use of theory in formulating critical perspectives and ethical standpoints in addressing real world issues and in recognising the perspectives and standpoints of others.
- Apply theoretical perspectives to the historical and lived spatial conditions experienced by different social groups
- Develop your own theoretical and ethical standpoints and relate these to your professional and/or academic practice.
- ¹ If you need help with your assignment, please contact:
 - the academic teaching staff in your unit for guidance in understanding or completing this type of assessment
 - · the Writing Centre for academic skills support.

Delivery and Resources

GEOP3090 is an in-person only offering. It is taught in a 3 hour lectorial format. Each lectorial will incorporate time for working on the unit assessments, including workshops on academic writing, literature reviews, and research methods. While lectures will be recorded and uploaded onto Echo360 each week, it will not be possible to record the workshops, activities and class discussions. The Lectorial/Workshops are scheduled on Thursdays 11am-2pm in Weeks 1-12. Typically, the workshops will begin with a lecture, followed by group activities and discussion. Some class time has been set aside for consultation and assessment preparation and for group work related to the Thinking Space Media Project.

Class is scheduled to be held in 10 Hadenfeld Ave T1. On the day of class, please make sure that you check the Macquarie timetable or the GEOP3090 iLearn page for any last minute room changes.

Unit readings can be accessed via Leganto. The Leganto link is located in the top right panel of the GEOP3090 iLearn main page. Please contact the unit convenor if you are having trouble accessing the readings as they are essential to your assignments and to the class discussions.

The GEOP3090 iLearn page contains additional resources in the 'Assessment' folder and under the weekly topic headings. Please make sure that you regularly check the iLearn page and your Macquarie University student email for updates and information regarding this unit

² Indicative time-on-task is an estimate of the time required for completion of the assessment task and is subject to individual variation
