Unit description
This unit will address counselling micro-skills, interviewing, suicide assessment, the management and identification of psychopathology in the workplace, and strategies for conceptualising client problems with an emphasis on the context of the presenting problem. Directions for intervention will also be emphasised, with special attention directed towards an integrative approach. These learning objectives are addressed with a special emphasis on cultural context. For students in the organisational psychology program the unit will focus on counselling skills within the organisational setting. Special emphasis is placed on the use of counselling micro-skills, interviewing techniques, psychopathology, intervention, and ethics with reference to industry. The knowledge and skills gained in this unit is made relevant to practice as an organisational psychologist. Special emphasis will be placed on the context of the client's world and its relationship to the presenting problems of the client, including the cultural context. The unit will highlight the importance of the therapeutic alliance and emphasise core counselling skills to optimise the therapeutic relationship.

Delivery and Resources

This unit involves 3 x 1 ½-hour lectures and three full-day workshops. A minimal amount of content will be delivered in lecture form. Students will mostly be encouraged to participate in a variety of activities that will allow them to practice skills and receive immediate personalised feedback.

Students are expected to do the mandatory background reading before the classes, and be able to provide a short verbal summary of readings and respond to questions relating to those readings. There will often be concept-or skill-development activities performed in class, usually in groups, but students will also be assigned activities to perform between classes.

In addition to reading set papers, you are encouraged to consult textbooks and read other journal articles. This will be valuable for developing knowledge, and essential for completing assessment tasks.

Policies and Procedures

Macquarie University policies and procedures are accessible from Policy Central. Students should be aware of the following policies in particular with regard to Learning and Teaching:
Academic Honesty Policy http://mq.edu.au/policy/docs/academic_honesty/policy.html
Disruption to Studies Policy http://www.mq.edu.au/policy/docs/disruption_studies/policy.html The Disruption to Studies Policy is effective from March 3 2014 and replaces the Special Consideration Policy.

In addition, a number of other policies can be found in the Learning and Teaching Category of Policy Central.
