Unit description
This unit explores the relationship between the body and the mind. It introduces students to the central issues in contemporary philosophy of mind, focusing on the issue of whether the mind can be incorporated into the scientific picture of the world. The first part of the unit consists of a survey of competing philosophical theories of the mind: dualism, behaviourism, the identity theory, and functionalism. The second half consists of a discussion of some topical issues in contemporary philosophy of mind and cognitive science. What is the nature of phenomenal (subjective) experience? Is a physical theory of consciousness possible? Is there a language of thought? If so, what is its nature? How do mental states represent the world? Does neurophysiology show us that common sense psychology is scientifically dispensable?

Online quizzes

Due: Weeks 2-11

Weighting: 20%

There will be a quiz on the assigned reading due each week before 2pm Monday. Each quiz will consist of one short answer question. The quiz will be accessible on iLearn from the preceding Friday. You will have 10 minutes to answer the quiz once you begin; after 10 minutes, your answer will be saved. You get graded /10 for the number of quizzes you complete (all quizzes get 10, -1 mark for each quiz missed), and then 10 marks from 5 randomly graded answers. These quizzes will be graded either 0 (did not complete), 1 (adequate), or 2 (exceptional).

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Demonstrate an awareness of central problems in Philosophy of Mind
- Understand and analyse arguments in the relevant literature
- Develop clarity of thought; clarity of verbal expression; clarity of written expression and exposition.

Essay exam

Due: 22/4/15

Weighting: 25%

The essay exam will cover materials from week one to six. It will require answering three questions with short 500-word essays. The exam will be assigned on 1/4/15 and be due by 2pm on 22/4/15.

Essays will be submitted using "Turnitin" through the unit iLearn site.
On successful completion you will be able to:

- Demonstrate an awareness of central problems in Philosophy of Mind
- Understand and analyse arguments in the relevant literature
- Critically evaluate these theories and arguments
- Develop your own view or perspective through consideration and analysis of the views and arguments presented in the unit, and to present your own views with clarity and rigour
- Develop clarity of thought; clarity of verbal expression; clarity of written expression and exposition.

Final Essay

Due: 5/6/15

Weighting: 35%

The final essay will require answering one research question with a max of 2000 words. Due by 5pm on 5/6/15.

Essays will be submitted using "Turnitin" through the unit iLearn site.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Demonstrate an awareness of central problems in Philosophy of Mind
- Understand and analyse arguments in the relevant literature
- Critically evaluate these theories and arguments
- Develop your own view or perspective through consideration and analysis of the views and arguments presented in the unit, and to present your own views with clarity and rigour
- Develop clarity of thought; clarity of verbal expression; clarity of written expression and exposition.

Participation

Due: Weeks 2-11

Weighting: 20%

Students should be active and participate during tutorials. That means students need to study the weekly readings, be prepared to ask questions about the readings, and respond to other students' questions. Tutorial attendance and participation constitute 20% of the overall grade. Tutorial attendance during weeks 2-11 is compulsory for internal students, and students who do not attend at least 8 tutorials will not receive a mark for participation.

On successful completion you will be able to:
• Demonstrate an awareness of central problems in Philosophy of Mind
• Understand and analyse arguments in the relevant literature
• Critically evaluate these theories and arguments
• Develop your own view or perspective through consideration and analysis of the views and arguments presented in the unit, and to present your own views with clarity and rigour
• Develop clarity of thought; clarity of verbal expression; clarity of written expression and exposition.

Delivery and Resources

CLASSES

Internal students will attend two lectures and one tutorial each week.

The lectures are on at:

- Monday 2-3pm, and Wednesday 3-4pm

You are expected to attend both lectures.

You also need to attend one tutorial each week, on:

- Monday 3-4pm or Wednesday 4-5pm

Tutorials begin week 2 and end week 11.

Check the timetable at https://timetables.mq.edu.au to find your room numbers.

READING

There is a mandatory unit reader. You must also get a copy of Descartes' Meditations on First Philosophy (The Hackett edition, ISBN 0872201929, is available at the co-op bookshop but similar versions are available online).

You may optionally purchase Pete Mandik's This is Philosophy of Mind, which will provide supplementary background reading for several weeks. This book is also available to read online or digitally borrow through the library website.

The week's readings are listed on this unit guide and will also be listed each week on iLearn. Readings should be done before the first lecture of the week. You should bring the weeks' reading material to both lecture and tutorial.

WEBSITE

The unit website is available through iLearn (http://ilearn.mq.edu.au). It contains essential resources for the unit, and you are expected to log in on a regular basis.
