Unit description
This unit studies poems and plays by Shakespeare and other writers of the English Renaissance in relation to notions of gender, sexuality, identity and power. The texts are considered in the context of the unorthodox, the heretical and the alien.

Important Academic Dates
Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at https://www.mq.edu.au/study/calendar-of-dates

Learning Outcomes
On successful completion of this unit, you will be able to:

Students will develop an advanced understanding of writings by Shakespeare and by his contemporaries, with particular attention having been given to genre, to then-contemporary social and political concerns, and to the conflicts among worldviews. That understanding will be grounded on a history of ideas approach to the literary culture of Shakespeare’s time.

Annotated Reading List

Due: End of week 6
Weighting: 20%

Description:
Construct a reading list for a topic or question, but not for the topic or question on which you will be working for the presentation/first essay or for the final essay. The list should include a mix of older and more recent research (published within the last 5 years), analysing the main arguments of the texts considered, and showing how the texts relate to each other. The list should begin with an introductory overview and end with a formal conclusion. The main criteria for successfully completing this assignment lie not in the discovery of materials—that will be easy—but in which materials you select, how you organize them, and how you choose to analyse them. The list should be no more than 1,500 words in length.

On successful completion you will be able to:
- Students will develop an advanced understanding of writings by Shakespeare and by his contemporaries, with particular attention having been given to genre, to then-contemporary social and political concerns, and to the conflicts among worldviews
- That understanding will be grounded on a history of ideas approach to the literary culture of Shakespeare’s time

Presentation and Essay

Due: TBA
Weighting: 30%

Choose one of the seminar topics or questions and in class deliver a 10 minute discussion focused on it. A week later submit the presentation as expanded into a 2,000-word essay. The presentation requires students to demonstrate communications skills; the presentation and the first essay both require students to demonstrate the capacity for close analysis of text (by whatever methodology) and the ability to work independently with current scholarship.

Seminar Topics and Questions

1. Introduction
2. How differently do Marlowe and Spenser link sexuality with exploration in the poems set for this week?
3. What forms does the will to power take in Doctor Faustus?
4. Discuss the implicit critique of conventional sexuality in Shakespeare’s Sonnets.
5. Discuss the concept of ‘the good place’ in the texts set for study for this week.
6. How similar—or not—are the persona of Donne’s third satire and Hamlet?
7. How is monarchy portrayed in Macbeth?
8. What is ‘the sacred’ in King Lear?
9. Is Othello more concerned with jealousy or with problems in identifying truth?
10. Discuss Jonson’s modelling of idealized social relations in the play and the poem set for study this week.
11. What is Bacon’s concept of a life well led?
12. ‘Marvell is evasive, never dogmatic’. Do you agree?

On successful completion you will be able to:
• Students will develop an advanced understanding of writings by Shakespeare and by his contemporaries, with particular attention having been given to genre, to then-contemporary social and political concerns, and to the conflicts among worldviews
• That understanding will be grounded on a history of ideas approach to the literary culture of Shakespeare’s time

Final Essay
Due: 9/11
Weighting: 50%

Write a 3,500-word essay on one of the topics or questions and submit it by the end of 9 November. The final essay requires students to consider at least 3 of the set texts in light of the themes and concerns examined throughout the unit. Like the first essay, this one requires students to demonstrate the capacity for close textual analysis and to work independently with the scholarship consulted.

Topics and Questions for the Final Essay
1. How does portrayal of insatiable aspiration imply a radical conflict of values in one play by Shakespeare and writings by two other authors you have studied this semester?
2. How do soliloquies function in three plays you have studied this semester?
3. How important are issues of political obedience in three plays you have studied this semester?
4. How do Shakespeare and Jonson use the idea of ‘the play within the play’ as a theme in their plays?

5. Design a question of your own—but discuss it with me before you start work on it.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Students will develop an advanced understanding of writings by Shakespeare and by his contemporaries, with particular attention having been given to genre, to then-contemporary social and political concerns, and to the conflicts among worldviews
- That understanding will be grounded on a history of ideas approach to the literary culture of Shakespeare’s time
