Unit description
This unit provides a survey of the field of gender studies by introducing key debates and theories in feminist thought. The emphasis will be on gender as an object of inquiry, as well as an epistemological and methodological practice. The unit design invites students to consider how the idea of theory as practice is reflected in the ways in which they plan and conduct their own research. This unit welcomes both gender studies majors seeking further theoretical training, as well as those new to the field for whom the content provides intensive introduction.

Important Academic Dates
Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at https://students.mq.edu.au/important-dates

Learning Outcomes

1. Describe key feminist theories, tropes and perspectives since the 1960s and their trajectories up to the present.
2. Interpret existing research in relation to these key feminist theories, tropes and perspectives.
3. Analyse the interconnection between feminist theory, methodology and epistemology in existing research.
4. Demonstrate skills in literature research, text analysis and academic writing.
5. Present effectively a piece of ongoing research containing theoretical analysis and original research question(s).
6. Engage in informed discussion about theories, methodologies and research practices with their peers.

General Assessment Information

Late submission and extension

All assignments which are officially received after the due date, and where no extension has been granted by the convenor before the due date, will incur a deduction of 5% for the first day, and 1% for each subsequent day including the actual day on which the work is received. Weekends and public holidays are included. Please speak to your convenor as soon as possible if you think you will be unable to submit your assignment on time.

Applying for Disruption to Studies

If students experience disruptions that adversely affect their academic performance in assessment activities, they need to apply for Disruption to Studies (previously called Special Consideration).

Information about what counts as serious and unavoidable disruptions and other details can be found at: http://students.mq.edu.au/student_admin/exams/disruption_to_studies/

Information about how to apply online for Disruption to Studies can be found at: http://ask.mq.edu.au/kb.php?record=ce7c4e38-4f82-c4d7-95b1-4e2ee8fd075f

Seminar Participation

Due: Ongoing
Weighting: 30%

Class participation is crucial for this unit, as it will help you think aloud with your peers and clarify complex ideas based on readings.

Students are required to bring a weekly one-page reading log to class, and participate in discussion regularly and actively.
This Assessment Task relates to the following Learning Outcomes:

- Describe key feminist theories, tropes and perspectives since the 1960s and their trajectories up to the present.
- Interpret existing research in relation to these key feminist theories, tropes and perspectives.
- Analyse the interconnection between feminist theory, methodology and epistemology in existing research.
- Demonstrate skills in literature research, text analysis and academic writing.
- Engage in informed discussion about theories, methodologies and research practices with their peers.

Class presentation

Due: Weeks 9 & 10
Weighting: 30%

It is important for students to be able to think about readings they encounter in terms of fields of academic literature, and how their own ideas and concerns relate to them. It is also an important part of academic practice to develop one’s ideas by engaging with feedback from others.

In the presentation, students will explain their ongoing writing project by situating it in an existing field of academic literature, and formulating their own research question(s). They are required to consult the convenor before finalising the topic of the presentation.

This Assessment Task relates to the following Learning Outcomes:

- Interpret existing research in relation to these key feminist theories, tropes and perspectives.
- Analyse the interconnection between feminist theory, methodology and epistemology in existing research.
- Demonstrate skills in literature research, text analysis and academic writing.
- Present effectively a piece of ongoing research containing theoretical analysis and original research question(s).

Writing project

Due: 12 June 2016
Weighting: 40%

Students will submit a 3,000-words writing project based on their presentation, and in a form agreed with the convenor. The word limit excludes the reference list, but includes footnotes.
This Assessment Task relates to the following Learning Outcomes:

- Interpret existing research in relation to these key feminist theories, tropes and perspectives.
- Analyse the interconnection between feminist theory, methodology and epistemology in existing research.
- Demonstrate skills in literature research, text analysis and academic writing.
- Present effectively a piece of ongoing research containing theoretical analysis and original research question(s).
