Unit description
Many students think they can produce good translation in Chinese if they are proficient in both English and Chinese, but conducting effective translation needs special knowledge and skills. This unit introduces useful translation knowledge and skills. Students will learn how to analyse various English texts in terms of their genre, style, register and potential reader. Students will learn how to conduct Chinese translation which meets the needs of Chinese readers. They will also become familiar with translation procedure and be able to identify and solve problems when translating from English into Chinese. This unit is for Chinese background speakers or students who have passed HSK 5 or an equivalent level.

Class participation

Due: every week
Weighting: 10%

Class attendance and participation in discussion is required. Participation will be marked on attendance, willingness to participate in class discussion, preparation and performance of reading and responding to questions. Students are expected to be well prepared in order to participate in class discussion – this will ensure good use of class time as well as improving your learning skills and sharing your knowledge with others. Class attendance and participation is expected and will be part of the assessment. This means you not only come and sign in the class but come well prepared and participate in class discussion. You need to reflect on your assignments and think about the translation issues you have encountered and share your thought with others. Your marks for class attendance and performance will be determined by:

a) Whether you attend class regularly or not; b) How much effort you have taken to prepare for the class; c) How actively you participate in class discussion; and d) How helpful your comments are on the work of our fellow students.

This Assessment Task relates to the following Learning Outcomes:

- Enhanced knowledge of basic translation theories
- Familiarity and facility with concepts and themes in translation
- Skills of using dictionaries and other tools in translation
- Skills of English texts analysis and reader-oriented translation
- Capacity for analytical and critical thinking
- Appreciation of and respect for cultural diversities
An ability in independent and reflective learning through assessing and responding to ideas

Weekly Translation

Due: from week 3 to week 12
Weighting: 50%

There will be 1 weekly translation assignment (from English into Chinese) available on iLearn every week from week 2 to week 11. You are required to submit each of your translation assignments on time through iLearn assignment entry. It is strongly suggested that you write annotations for your translation assignments, which can contribute to both your in-class presentation and your reflective journals (see the tasks below).

You marks will be determined by but not limited to:

1) your understanding of the source language text;
2) grammar in your translation;
3) idiomatic usage in your translation;
4) meaning and word choice in your translation;
5) style and tone in your translation.

Assignments are to be submitted by the due time through iLearn.

General feedback of the weekly assignments will be given in class. Students who wish to have a detailed feedback of their assignments can bring a hard copy to the class on the due day.

Students will only be granted extensions/special consideration with valid reasons (eg., serious and unavoidable disruption from completing any unit requirements in accordance with their ability.) Work that is submitted late will be subjected to an assessment penalty if an extension has not been granted.

Please check the late submissions section of the unit guide.

This Assessment Task relates to the following Learning Outcomes:

- Enhanced knowledge of basic translation theories
- Familiarity and facility with concepts and themes in translation
- Skills of using dictionaries and other tools in translation
- Skills of English texts analysis and reader-oriented translation
- Capacity for analytical and critical thinking
• Appreciation of and respect for cultural diversities
• An ability in independent and reflective learning through assessing and responding to ideas

presentation
Due: A Week by choice on iLearn
Weighting: 10%

You are required to do an individual presentation in class. In the beginning of the semester, by the end of week 2, you will be asked to choose a translation assignment as your presentation topic on iLearn. Late submission policy will be applied if you fail to register a presentation topic by the due time set on iLearn. Please check the part of Late submissions of this unit guide. You are expected to share your experiences in dealing with translation problems when doing your assignments. Your oral presentation is expected to be 5-8 minutes long. You have to finish your presentation within the time limit or the mark will be deducted. You should be prepared that the rest of the class will raise questions. When preparing your presentation, you may wish to consider the following questions: 1) What are the functions of the source language texts? 2) What difficulties do you have in understanding the source language text? 3) What difficulties do you have in finding equivalent expressions in Chinese? 4) What factors do you consider in finding equivalent expressions in Chinese? 5) What kinds of translation strategies do you use in your translation? After the in class presentation, you need to submit a presentation report through iLearn by the end of the week you do the presentation.

This Assessment Task relates to the following Learning Outcomes:
• Enhanced knowledge of basic translation theories
• Familiarity and facility with concepts and themes in translation
• Skills of English texts analysis and reader-oriented translation
• Capacity for analytical and critical thinking
• Appreciation of and respect for cultural diversities
• An ability in independent and reflective learning through assessing and responding to ideas

2 Reflective journals
Due: Week 7 and 13
Weighting: 10%

You are required to hand in two 500-word reflective journals in English. This task aims to learn how to justify your translation decisions. The journals should contain problems identified, possible solutions and the decision in selecting the best solution. You are allowed to use same examples used in your presentations. However, journals are written assignments, it should cover the issues from more than one of your translation assignments, and your language skills will be taken into account in the mark of this task. These assignments should be your own original work. Plagiarism is not acceptable (For further information and advice, see www.student.mq.edu.au/plagiarism). Students will only be granted extensions/special consideration with valid reasons (e.g., serious and unavoidable disruption from completing any unit requirements in accordance with their ability.) Work that is submitted late will be subjected to an assessment penalty if an extension has not been granted. Please check the late submissions section of the unit guide.

This Assessment Task relates to the following Learning Outcomes:

- Enhanced knowledge of basic translation theories
- Familiarity and facility with concepts and themes in translation
- Skills of English texts analysis and reader-oriented translation
- Capacity for analytical and critical thinking
- Appreciation of and respect for cultural diversities
- An ability in independent and reflective learning through assessing and responding to ideas

Final examination

Due: examination period
Weighting: 20%

There will be a final examination for this unit in the university examination period. During the end-semester exam, you are to translate one approximately 300-350 word text from English into Chinese. You will have 1.5 hour to translate the text after 10 minute reading time. The examination weighs 20% of your final mark of this unit. Any paper based dictionaries are allowed in the examination.

The only exception to not sitting an examination at the designated time is because of documented illness or unavoidable disruption. In these circumstances you may wish to consider applying for Special Consideration. Information about unavoidable disruption and the special consideration process is available under the Extension and Special Consideration section of this Unit Guide. It should also be stressed that failing to turn up for exams without prior notification to (WITH DOCUMENTATION) and obtaining approval from the lecturers for resitting the exams will mean that the students have forgone (that is, given up the opportunity to sit for) the exams. In which case, no supplementary exams can be arranged.

If a Supplementary Examination is granted as a result of the Special Consideration process, the examination will be scheduled after the conclusion of the official examination period. Individual Departments should contact the Associate Dean Learning and Teaching to confirm when Supplementaries are scheduled.

You are advised that it is Macquarie University policy not to set early examinations for individuals or groups of students. All students are expected to ensure that they are available until the end of the teaching semester, that is the final day of the official examination period.

late submissions

Late assignment policy – International Studies, 11 December 2012

Assignments are compulsory and must be submitted on time. As a general rule, extensions will not be granted without a valid and documented reason (e.g. medical certificate). Late submissions will be penalised by 5% for each day (including weekends) the assignment task is late. No assignments will be accepted after assignments have been corrected and feedback has been provided. Assignment tasks handed in early will not be marked and returned before the due date.
