Unit description
This unit comprises a study of Rome from the murder of Julius Caesar (44 BCE) to the end of the reign of Hadrian (138 CE). There is a large emphasis on political history, but attention is also paid to social, cultural and economic developments. Evidence is drawn from documents, monuments and the literature of the period.

Important Academic Dates
Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at https://www.mq.edu.au/study/calendar-of-dates

Learning Outcomes
On successful completion of this unit, you will be able to:

- Actively participate in group discussion; work with and respond to the views of Ancient History staff and other students in the unit in an oral form
- Analyse and express your judgement about Roman imperial political, social, economic and cultural history in an oral and written form
- Find, analyse and interpret primary and secondary sources for early imperial Roman history and present the information in a written format; interpret historical and historiographical information with appreciation and understanding

Seminar Participation

Due: Every seminar
Weighting: 25%

Seminar participation refers to much more than simply being present online. In order to receive marks for participation, you must consistently demonstrate your commitment to the unit by being well-prepared for all seminars, and completing any required seminar reading and discussion preparation. Participation marks are gained through active involvement in the weekly online discussion forums, demonstrated by responding to questions by the required deadlines, participating constructively as required, and showing consideration for your fellow classmates and lecturer by contributing online in a considerate and mature manner.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Actively participate in group discussion; work with and respond to the views of Ancient History staff and other students in the unit in an oral form
- Analyse and express your judgement about Roman imperial political, social, economic and cultural history in an oral and written form

Source analysis

Due: Week 2-7
Weighting: 15%

Length: 850 words (+/- 10%). ONE (1) written assignment (Source AnalysIs) is to be submitted for assessment. Your Source Analysis will count for 15% of your final mark. You choose the seminar week and therefore which seminar questions you will address in your responses. Seminars in Weeks 2-7 (Seminars 1-6) only are available for selection of your Source Analysis topic and questions. Your Source Analysis must be submitted via Turnitin before the scheduled time of the relevant seminar. Your response will NOT be accepted after seminar discussion has taken place.

Your analysis should be based firmly upon the ancient evidence, and should show an appreciation of what is primary evidence and what is secondary evidence. Your task will comprise written responses to each of the questions set for discussion in whichever seminar you select as the focus of your analysis.

You will base your work principally on the material to be discussed in the pertinent week’s seminar. Obviously, there is only so much you can say in 900 words. You should consider this an exercise in expressing yourself succinctly. When citing the ancient evidence upon which you are basing any observation, you may choose to cite it in parentheses (brackets) or you may choose to use footnotes. Any material in footnotes is not considered to be part of your word-length. As you will almost certainly know, historians of the ancient world consider footnotes to be a holding-place for material which you believe necessary to underpin your statements in the text of your source analysis; your response itself should be as trim as is possible. (Please note: That is the Unit convenor’s attitude to footnotes! Some people don’t like them. In future courses, you should ascertain the individual approach of your teachers in this regard - just to be on the safe side.)

A bibliography of any modern works utilised must be provided.

Submission: via Turnitin.

Required word length: 850 words (+/-10%). All +/- tolerances included in the word length range.

Due submission: Before relevant seminar, Weeks 2-7 only. NO LATE SUBMISSIONS ACCEPTED unless an application for Disruption to Studies is made and approved.

On successful completion you will be able to:

• Analyse and express your judgement about Roman imperial political, social, economic and cultural history in an oral and written form
• Find, analyse and interpret primary and secondary sources for early imperial Roman history and present the information in a written format; interpret historical and historiographical information with appreciation and understanding

Major Essay

Due: 5pm AEST Sunday Week 8

Weighting: 30%

Length: 1500 words (+/- 10%). This is a pre-circulated task. ONE (1) written assignment (Major Essay) is to be submitted for assessment. Your Major Essay will count for 30% of your final mark. Your Major Essay must be submitted via Turnitin by no later than 5pm AEST Sunday in Week 8.

It is expected that your answer to the essay question will demonstrate extensive consultation of the ancient sources listed in the Unit Guide. Bibliographies will provide you with a starting point for developing a reading list of secondary literature for the essay topic you have chosen. Essay topics will be available for review and selection on the unit iLearn site. In order to locate further material (both ancient and modern) on particular topics or personalities, consult the footnotes and indices of modern works.
In general, secondary literature should be consulted only by way of explaining the ancient sources or giving a broad perspective on the interpretation of the source material and, of course, all opinions included in the essay, whether quoted directly or paraphrased should be referenced according to the guidelines, Essay Presentation & Conventions: Style Guide, available from the Departmental office (W6A 540) or online at http://mq.edu.au/about_us/faculties_and_departments/faculty_of_arts/department_of_ancient_history/teaching_materials/.

Ensure you download the Full Version of the Essay Presentation Guide.

Submission: via Turnitin

Required word length: 1500 words (+/- 10%). All +/- tolerances included in the word range.

Due submission: 5.00pm AEST, Sunday Week 8. NO LATE SUBMISSIONS ACCEPTED unless an application for Disruption to Studies is made and approved.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Analyse and express your judgement about Roman imperial political, social, economic and cultural history in an oral and written form
- Find, analyse and interpret primary and secondary sources for early imperial Roman history and present the information in a written format; interpret historical and historiographical information with appreciation and understanding

Source Analysis + Minor Essay

Due: 7-10pm AEST, Week 13

Weighting: 30%

Length: 750 words (+/- 10%) for each response = 1500 words (+/- 10%) in total. There will be a final written task in Week 13. This task will take the form of

- ONE (1) compulsory Source Analysis question on the principal ancient literary sources used in the Unit and
- ONE (1) Minor Essay question chosen from a selection of six (6) questions.

Your Source Analysis + Minor Essay must be submitted as a single file via Turnitin. This is a timed assessment task (3 hrs) and will be open from 7pm to 10pm AEST on Saturday in Week 13.

NB

1. Your selection of evidence relating to your response to the Source Analysis question cannot include information already treated in your Source Analysis or Major Essay responses.
2. Your selection of minor essay question is restricted to topics not already treated in your Source Analysis or Major Essay responses.
It is your responsibility to ensure that your Source Analysis and Minor Essay responses do not relate in any way to written work submitted in previous assessment responses to your chosen Source Analysis and Major Essay topics.

NO LATE SUBMISSIONS ACCEPTED unless an application for Disruption to Studies is made and approved.

On successful completion you will be able to:

• Analyse and express your judgement about Roman imperial political, social, economic and cultural history in an oral and written form

• Find, analyse and interpret primary and secondary sources for early imperial Roman history and present the information in a written format; interpret historical and historiographical information with appreciation and understanding

Delivery and Resources

CLASSES

For seminars please consult the MQ Timetable website: http://www.timetables.mq.edu.au. This website will display up-to-date information on your classes and classroom locations. NB There are no formal lectures scheduled for this unit. However, recordings of lectures delivered in previous years will be provided on the AHIS212 iLearn site.

RESOURCES

REQUIRED READING

This unit will lay great emphasis on the evidence of ancient sources. The Book of Readings (available for download on the unit iLearn site) must be accessible while listening to lectures and attending seminars. Copies of Tacitus and Suetonius should be brought to all the relevant seminar sessions also. You may also wish to purchase some paperback translations of other writers in addition to the above. For example, Cassius Dio, The Roman History: The Reign of Augustus, Vergil, Aeneid, Horace, Odes and Epodes, Pliny the Younger, Letters - all available in a Penguin edition.

RECOMMENDED READING

Anthony Birley, Hadrian the Restless Emperor (London 1997)

Learning and Teaching Activities

Source-based Collaborative Participation

This Learning and Teaching Activity pertains to the Participation and Source Analysis Assessment Tasks. As listed in the Unit Schedule, students meet to examine primary evidence from antiquity which illuminate one or more facets of life under the Caesars (44 BC-AD138). This evidence may be literary, documentary and/or material in nature, and will touch on political and/or military and/or socio-cultural aspects of Roman history during the studied period. As outlined in the Assessment Task summary, this activity requires commitment, preparation and active involvement: (1) COMMITMENT: punctual attendance; (2) PREPARATION: pre-reading of prescribed source materials and relevant note-taking; (3) ACTIVE INVOLVEMENT: small-group and individual engagement in shared discussion about pertinent primary evidence and secondary scholarship. For students enrolled in internal mode, the Source-based Collaborative Participation will take place in the Active Learning Space C5A435.

Policies and Procedures

Macquarie University policies and procedures are accessible from Policy Central. Students should be aware of the following policies in particular with regard to Learning and Teaching:

Graduate Capabilities

Creative and Innovative

Our graduates will also be capable of creative thinking and of creating knowledge. They will be imaginative and open to experience and capable of innovation at work and in the community. We want them to be engaged in applying their critical, creative thinking.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcome

• Find, analyse and interpret primary and secondary sources for early imperial Roman history and present the information in a written format; interpret historical and historiographical information with appreciation and understanding

Assessment task

• Seminar Participation

Capable of Professional and Personal Judgement and Initiative

We want our graduates to have emotional intelligence and sound interpersonal skills and to demonstrate discernment and common sense in their professional and personal judgement. They will exercise initiative as needed. They will be capable of risk assessment, and be able to handle ambiguity and complexity, enabling them to be adaptable in diverse and changing environments.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Commitment to Continuous Learning

Our graduates will have enquiring minds and a literate curiosity which will lead them to pursue knowledge for its own sake. They will continue to pursue learning in their careers and as they participate in the world. They will be capable of reflecting on their experiences and relationships with others and the environment, learning from them, and growing - personally, professionally and socially.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Assessment tasks

- Major Essay
- Source Analysis + Minor Essay

Discipline Specific Knowledge and Skills

Our graduates will take with them the intellectual development, depth and breadth of knowledge, scholarly understanding, and specific subject content in their chosen fields to make them competent and confident in their subject or profession. They will be able to demonstrate, where relevant, professional technical competence and meet professional standards. They will be able to articulate the structure of knowledge of their discipline, be able to adapt discipline-specific knowledge to novel situations, and be able to contribute from their discipline to inter-disciplinary solutions to problems.

Changes from Previous Offering

The following elements of AHIS212 have changed:

1. Assessment: weighting and type

   - Seminar participation assessment has increased from 20% to 25%; source analysis assessment has decreased from 20% to 15%.
   - Written seminar submissions have decreased from 2 to 1; a take-home extended responses task in Week 13 replaces the formal examination.

2. Lectures and classes

   - Lectures are provided as recordings from previous years rather than presented in real-time.
Assignment Submission and Extensions

ASSIGNMENT SUBMISSIONS

ALL written assignments (seminar paper, essay, extended response) will be submitted via Turnitin.

EXTENSIONS

ALL deadlines are firm unless an extension has been requested no later than one (1) week before the due date. NO LATE SUBMISSIONS WILL BE ACCEPTED unless an application for Disruption to Studies is made and approved.
