Unit description

What role does government have in addressing inequality between individuals and groups? If governments make things fairer, what incentives are there for hard work and individual effort? Is the welfare state in decline because of an ageing population, tight budgets and globalisation? Is Australia overly generous when it comes to social spending? Few areas in sociology are as contentious and vital as the ongoing debates about who should get social support and how it should be delivered. This unit offers a detailed introduction to the history, design and institutions of social policy and welfare states. Throughout we examine the role of the state in delivering social outcomes for citizens, including social justice, social equality and social efficiency outcomes. We look closely at the development of Australian social policy and consider how policymakers are dealing with problems like an ageing population, unemployment, poor families, and income inequality in a comparative context. We also consider how social policy in Australia and elsewhere is made, and how power and institutional dynamics shape policy outcomes. Through this we assess how different forms of social policy provide alternative views of what a society represents and values. The unit caters for students interested in policy practice, policy analysis, development studies and welfare state research.

Important Academic Dates

Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at <https://www.mq.edu.au/study/calendar-of-dates>

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this unit, you will be able to:

Understand the conceptual problems in measuring and evaluating social and economic inequality

Understand the differences between poverty, inequality, injustice, and unfairness

Understand why societies tolerate certain levels and types of inequality, poverty and injustice.

Apply basic concepts of social policy to a range of contemporary welfare debates, dilemmas and problems

Understand the dynamics that shape different trajectories of national welfare states and their social policies

Assess and analyse future problems confronting welfare states and the design of social policy

Develop skills in critical policy analysis and styles of policy writing relevant to professional work in the area

Understand the critical junctures between work (labour markets), families and social security systems.

Gain basic understanding of key areas of Australian social policy: health & Medicare, housing, unemployment (welfare-to-work) programs, disability support, family payments, parental leave and childcare, superannuation and retirement.

General Assessment Information

There are two major assessment tasks in this course. Together they are designed to aid your learning, encourage you to engage with the course material and test your knowledge. We hope you find them enjoyable and interesting to complete.

The main assignment can be submitted via Turnitin.

Assessment Tasks

Name	Weighting	Hurdle	Due
Assignment	30%	No	Wed 20 Sept 2017 at 11.55pm
Online participation	15%	No	week 13
Exam	55%	No	Exam period (end of semester)

Assignment

Due: Wed 20 Sept 2017 at 11.55pm

Weighting: 30%

This assignment involves answering 6 questions about inequality and social policy. You will have four weeks to complete the task.

The total word length for the assignment will be 2,000 words or around 300 words per question.

The assignments may require you to:

- read a passage on social policy and discuss or interpret it
- interpret statistical evidence
- comment on, interpret, and discuss a policy document

The assignment will be available on ILearn on Monday 21 August.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Understand the conceptual problems in measuring and evaluating social and economic inequality
- Understand the differences between poverty, inequality, injustice, and unfairness
- Develop skills in critical policy analysis and styles of policy writing relevant to professional work in the area

Online participation

Due: week 13

Weighting: 15%

You will be given a combined mark for attendance and online contributions.

Workbook contributions

You will need to submit your tutorial workbook contributions as part of this assessment.

They are submitted directly to Shaun.Wilson @mq.edu.au in week 13, and will be marked out of 5.

Online participation (how to score well)

Participation in at least 80% of the week's forums are a requirement of this course.

To get a high score (i.e. 8+ out of 10) for online participation, you need to:

- meet online participation requirements
- do your readings
- and participate thoughtfully in online forums.

What you can expect from me

You can expect feedback from me during the semester and at the end (in an email to you outlining my grade for your participation).

Please note: your contributions will greatly add to an enjoyable online discussion in this unit, so please don't hesitate to write frequently.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Understand the differences between poverty, inequality, injustice, and unfairness
- Understand why societies tolerate certain levels and types of inequality, poverty and injustice.
- Apply basic concepts of social policy to a range of contemporary welfare debates, dilemmas and problems
- Understand the dynamics that shape different trajectories of national welfare states and their social policies
- Assess and analyse future problems confronting welfare states and the design of social policy
- Understand the critical junctures between work (labour markets), families and social security systems.

- Gain basic understanding of key areas of Australian social policy: health & Medicare, housing, unemployment (welfare-to-work) programs, disability support, family payments, parental leave and childcare, superannuation and retirement.

Exam

Due: Exam period (end of semester)

Weighting: 55%

An exam is the main assessment task for this unit. It will be held in the exam period that follows the end of semester.

You will have 2 hours plus reading time to complete:

- 20 multiple questions (20 minutes in total)
- 5 short answer questions (20 minutes each)

A detailed study guide plus practice papers are made available to help ensure stress-free preparation for this exam.

NB. If you live outside Sydney, let me know by week 3 so I can help organise a place for you to sit this exam. It is usually easy to arrange.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Understand the conceptual problems in measuring and evaluating social and economic inequality
- Understand the differences between poverty, inequality, injustice, and unfairness
- Apply basic concepts of social policy to a range of contemporary welfare debates, dilemmas and problems
- Gain basic understanding of key areas of Australian social policy: health & Medicare, housing, unemployment (welfare-to-work) programs, disability support, family payments, parental leave and childcare, superannuation and retirement.

Delivery and Resources

Lectures will be on Mondays 8 am to 10 am. The classroom is: E7B T2.

Lectures will be recorded.

Tutorials start in week 2.

All teaching materials (articles, book chapters, etc) will be available on SOC 223 e-reserve.

There are two recommended (but not compulsory) texts, which Shaun will cover in week 1's lecture.

Graduate Capabilities

Creative and Innovative

Our graduates will also be capable of creative thinking and of creating knowledge. They will be imaginative and open to experience and capable of innovation at work and in the community. We want them to be engaged in applying their critical, creative thinking.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Assess and analyse future problems confronting welfare states and the design of social policy
- Develop skills in critical policy analysis and styles of policy writing relevant to professional work in the area

Assessment tasks

- Assignment
- Online participation

Capable of Professional and Personal Judgement and Initiative

We want our graduates to have emotional intelligence and sound interpersonal skills and to demonstrate discernment and common sense in their professional and personal judgement. They will exercise initiative as needed. They will be capable of risk assessment, and be able to handle ambiguity and complexity, enabling them to be adaptable in diverse and changing environments.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Develop skills in critical policy analysis and styles of policy writing relevant to professional work in the area
- Gain basic understanding of key areas of Australian social policy: health & Medicare, housing, unemployment (welfare-to-work) programs, disability support, family payments, parental leave and childcare, superannuation and retirement.

Engaged and Ethical Local and Global citizens

As local citizens our graduates will be aware of indigenous perspectives and of the nation's historical context. They will be engaged with the challenges of contemporary society and with knowledge and ideas. We want our graduates to have respect for diversity, to be open-minded, sensitive to others and inclusive, and to be open to other cultures and perspectives: they should have a level of cultural literacy. Our graduates should be aware of disadvantage and social justice, and be willing to participate to help create a wiser and better society.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Understand why societies tolerate certain levels and types of inequality, poverty and injustice.
- Assess and analyse future problems confronting welfare states and the design of social policy

Changes from Previous Offering

This year, we will look closely at changing definitions and debates about social class.

Changes since First Published

Date	Description
01/08/2017	Reason: Monday 2 October is a public holiday. I did not check this. The lecture for that Monday will be recorded, and the tutorial for that day will be moved to the previous week (week 7) where there was a vacant spot. The change to the External guide is only to ensure that the Unit tutorials are delivered at the same time across all platforms.
