Unit description

This unit explores some key concepts in Politics and International Relations. It enables a broad understanding of these contested concepts, which have decisively influenced political and human development through history to the present.

Important Academic Dates

Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at <https://www.mq.edu.au/study/calendar-of-dates>

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this unit, you will be able to:

Demonstrate a critical knowledge of political concepts

Ability to integrate political and philosophical reasoning

Comprehend different factors influencing national and/or world affairs

Effectively communicate understanding of connections between concepts, and between concepts and practices

Capacity to research and compose an advanced-level scholarly essay

General Assessment Information

'Unless a Special Consideration request has been submitted and approved, (a) a penalty for lateness will apply – 2 marks out of a total of 100 will be deducted per day for assignments submitted after the due date – and (b) no assignment will be accepted more than seven days (incl. weekends) after the original submission deadline. No late submissions will be accepted for timed assessments – e.g. quizzes, online tests.'

Assessment Tasks

Name	Weighting	Hurdle	Due
Essay	50%	No	26 October 12:00 noon
Test	50%	No	2 November

Essay

Due: 26 October 12:00 noon

Weighting: 50%

Research essay of 2500 words = 50%

Choose one of the questions listed below. It is advisable to begin work on a response sooner rather than later. Don't leave it until near the due date. Research effort and the relevance of applied sources is part of the evaluation.

Please ensure that the essay is properly and completely referenced in accordance with academic standards. At Masters level there are no excuses for anything less.

Do not change the wording of the questions or invent new questions. Due date: 26 October, 4pm.

Essay Questions

- 1) Is the state the world's predominant political entity? If yes, will continue to be? If no, what is?
- 2) What causes political violence?
- 3) Is international politics different to politics in one country or fundamentally the same?

- 4) What gives a political actor legitimacy?
- 5) What is the most powerful force in politics?
- 6) Is a global political culture or system possible?
- 7) How influential on politics is ideology?
- 8) Analyse the concept of 'security' as it relates to politics
- 9) What is public policy and who decides what will be implemented?
- 10) Which theory of International Relations is most convincing and why?
- 11) What is globalization?
- 12) Which contemporary public policy issue is most important and why?
- 13) Are justice and freedom compatible?
- 14) Is the notion of territory changing?

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Demonstrate a critical knowledge of political concepts
- Ability to integrate political and philosophical reasoning
- Comprehend different factors influencing national and/or world affairs
- Effectively communicate understanding of connections between concepts, and between concepts and practices
- Capacity to research and compose an advanced-level scholarly essay

Test

Due: 2 November

Weighting: 50%

Test based on the topics addressed through the unit.

A test document will be accessible on the unit iLearn site at the time and date of the test.

Students have 3 hours and 10 minutes to respond to questions and submit the test document on the unit ilearn site

If drawing on other material, please reference properly, including use of quote marks. Do not base all of all your answers on the work of others (i.e. by paraphrasing or direct quoting). Include your own observations where possible.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Demonstrate a critical knowledge of political concepts
- Ability to integrate political and philosophical reasoning
- Comprehend different factors influencing national and/or world affairs
- Effectively communicate understanding of connections between concepts, and between concepts and practices

Delivery and Resources

Lectures will be audio recorded and accessible via University channels. In some weeks lectures will be available before the nominal Friday time

Unit Schedule

unit description

This unit explores some key themes and concepts in Politics, International Relations and Public Policy. It enables a broad understanding of these, which have decisively influenced human development through history to the present. The unit is not especially difficult, however, it is at Masters level and presumes that students have completed an undergraduate degree and are able to compose pieces of academic writing at a reasonable standard.

The unit is mandated by the AQF/ASQC. Because rooms are difficult to obtain during this transition period of building construction for the Faculty the unit is only offered in external mode. Audio lectures, hopefully with screen capture of slides, will be available on iLearn/Echo each week in accordance with the schedule of topics. Precise days and times when audio lectures will first be available will vary.

Weekly readings are available on the unit iLearn site. Initiative to locate other relevant works is welcomed.

A unit discussion board will be available for students to engage with each week's indicative questions. The discussion board is not for asking general questions about unit organization or assessment.

For other individual inquiries email the convenor at steve.wood@mq.edu.au
