Unit description

This final year unit draws together doctrinal, theoretical and practical knowledge and experience in the study of law through a focus on the use of alternative dispute resolution (ADR) in the Australian and international context. Students are encouraged to think critically about the ways that legal disputes are typically resolved and the extent to which developments in the ADR field have been integrated into legal practice and regulation. This unit consolidates student learning on the range of legal remedies available through a comparison of ADR processes including negotiation, mediation, arbitration and restorative justice. This unit also provides students with an opportunity to consolidate high level communication skills by providing simulated opportunities for legal negotiations and to further develop the discipline specific communication skills required in conflict resolution processes.

Important Academic Dates

Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at <https://www.mq.edu.au/study/calendar-of-dates>

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this unit, you will be able to:

Analyse and critique models of dispute resolution in the Australian and International context

Distinguish the key theoretical and doctrinal differences in the application of dispute resolution frameworks

Apply high level communication skills to dispute resolution processes and distinguish the skills required for different models of dispute resolution

Explain the strengths and weaknesses of different models of dispute resolution and match the models to different types of disputes

Produce research findings in appropriate oral and written reports

General Assessment Information

All written work in the Unit is to be submitted via Turnitin.

Unless a Special Consideration request has been submitted and approved, (a) a penalty for lateness will apply – two (2) marks out of 100 will be deducted per day for assignments submitted after the due date – and (b) no assignment will be accepted more than seven (7) days (incl. weekends) after the original submission deadline. No late submissions will be accepted for timed assessments – e.g. quizzes, online tests.

Work above the word limit will not be marked.

All referencing should comply with the Australian Guide to Legal Citation.

Students are responsible for uploading the correct file to iLearn.

Online assessments are conducted in this unit. It is the student's responsibility to ensure they have access to a secure and reliable server for assignment submission and for online exams.

All due dates and examination times are based on the local times in Sydney, Australia.

Assessment Tasks

Name	Weighting	Hurdle	Due
Participation	40%	No	Weekly and 24-26th Sept
ADR Research Essay	40%	No	Fri 26th Oct 5pm
Online quiz	20%	No	Fri 9th Nov 12pm to 9pm

Participation

Due: Weekly and 24-26th Sept

Weighting: 40%

Over the course of the semester, students will develop their skills in ADR through exercises and discussion in class and online.

At the on-campus block session, students will be required to participate in tutorial role plays, discussions, debates, negotiation activities and other exercises. All students must attend the block session of classes on the 24th, 25th and 26th September. This unit is taught in block mode to allow time for extended skills exercises, including a half day team negotiation on the 26th September.

A suite of tasks will be assessed requiring students to demonstrate practical skills that have been developed across the JD program and are implemented in this unit for the purposes of alternative dispute resolution. For instance, students will write a letter of advice to a client related to settlement negotiations, prepare a negotiation plan identifying risks and benefits of negotiation over litigation, draft a Heads of Agreement for settlement, and take part in team based legal negotiation challenges.

Weekly discussion forums will provide students the opportunity to reflect on their understandings of the development of dispute resolution in Australia.

A detailed marking rubric for participation will be available online.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Analyse and critique models of dispute resolution in the Australian and International context
- Distinguish the key theoretical and doctrinal differences in the application of dispute resolution frameworks
- Apply high level communication skills to dispute resolution processes and distinguish the skills required for different models of dispute resolution
- Explain the strengths and weaknesses of different models of dispute resolution and match the models to different types of disputes
- Produce research findings in appropriate oral and written reports

ADR Research Essay

Due: Fri 26th Oct 5pm

Weighting: 40%

Students are required to complete a research paper from a choice of topics that will be provided on iLearn.

Essays will be no more than 3000 words.

Details of the topics and the marking criteria will be available on iLearn.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Analyse and critique models of dispute resolution in the Australian and International context
- Distinguish the key theoretical and doctrinal differences in the application of dispute resolution frameworks

- Apply high level communication skills to dispute resolution processes and distinguish the skills required for different models of dispute resolution
- Explain the strengths and weaknesses of different models of dispute resolution and match the models to different types of disputes
- Produce research findings in appropriate oral and written reports

Online quiz

Due: Fri 9th Nov 12pm to 9pm

Weighting: 20%

An online multiple choice quiz and associated problem question will allow students to demonstrate their understanding of ADR law and processes.

The quiz will be open from 12pm to 9pm. Once students open the quiz they will have one hour to complete it.

The quiz will consist of 20 questions including questions associated with an ADR scenario that will be released in advance.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Analyse and critique models of dispute resolution in the Australian and International context
- Distinguish the key theoretical and doctrinal differences in the application of dispute resolution frameworks
- Explain the strengths and weaknesses of different models of dispute resolution and match the models to different types of disputes
