Unit description
This unit explores the relationship between fiction and history. It looks at the rise of the historical novel from the 18th century onwards, and it asks: How is history used in fiction today? Is historical fiction a form or history or historiography? We will examine contemporary literature as well as popular genre fiction - crime, romance and fantasy novels - to analyse how historical novels engage with "medievalism", "neo-Victorianism" and the representation of problematic pasts such as settler-indigenous relations in Australia, slavery in the United States, or the Holocaust. We will also evaluate: the claim that women’s historical novels represent a significant intervention by women writers into male-dominated historical narratives; the longstanding historiographical debate about the relative truth-status and relationship between fiction and history; and the development of what Canadian critic Linda Hutcheon has called "postmodern historiographic metafiction" – historical fiction that points self-reflexively and self-consciously to its own artifice as historical discourse. Novels to be studied include A.S. Byatt's "Possession", Ian McEwan's "Atonement", Kate Grenville's "The Secret River" and Marcus Zusak's "The Book Thief" as well as other genre fiction.

Important Academic Dates

General Assessment Information

Please see the ENGL234 Unit Handbook for more detailed information about assessment tasks.

ASSIGNMENT SUBMISSION

- Please read The Preparation and Presentation of Essays on the iLearn site.
- Students are required to submit their written work electronically only, via the Turnitin link in the unit’s iLearn site. Note that your essay will not be marked unless it has been submitted via Turnitin in the unit’s iLearn site. Do not send essays via email.
- Return of marked work and feedback will be via the unit’s iLearn site.

SPECIAL CONSIDERATION AND SUBMISSION OF LATE ASSIGNMENTS

If you have a legitimate reason for being unable to submit your work on time, for which you can provide documentation, you will need to complete a Special Consideration request (which must be submitted at www.ask.mq.edu.au within 5 working days of the commencement of the disruption).

The full special consideration policy can be found here:

Unless a Special Consideration request has been submitted and approved,

1. a penalty for lateness will apply – two (2) marks out of 100 will be deducted per day for assignments submitted after the due date – and
2. no assignment will be accepted more than seven (7) days (incl. weekends) after the original submission deadline. No late submissions will be accepted for timed assessments – e.g. quizzes, online tests.

Delivery and Resources

Lectures
You must attend or access the one-hour lecture each week, beginning in week 1.
Please consult the MQ Timetable website: http://www.timetables.mq.edu.au for updated information. To complete your enrolment in the unit, you must enrol in the weekly lecture as well as one tutorial.

Recorded lectures and slides are available in the ENGL234 iLearn site: https://ilearn.mq.edu.au/login/MQ/

Tutorials
You must attend a 1-hour tutorial each week, beginning in week 1.

Attendance at tutorials is compulsory, and is a prerequisite for both fulfilling the requirements of the unit and for earning the tutorial participation mark. Attendance at tutorials is only a prerequisite for the tutorial mark; active participation, showing significant preparation beforehand, is necessary to earn a good mark.
Policies on Missed Classes:

Absence from more than two tutorials without written explanation (medical or counselling certificate) will result in loss of the whole of the 20% tutorial mark.

Students who miss class as the result of attending a teaching practicum or to participate in sporting or other activities that do not fall under the University’s Special Consideration provisions should alert their tutor beforehand, and complete the allocated task as directed (the written submission of tutorial questions, due within 48 hrs of the missed class). Failure to complete the task may jeopardise the student’s participation mark. These alternative arrangements may extend to a maximum of 2 weeks of the teaching session, other than in exceptional circumstances via prior negotiation with the unit convenor.

Single Missed Class

For a single absence covered by a medical or other certificate, no Special Consideration application is necessary. Rather, email your tutor with an explanation and copy of the certificate, and send written responses to the questions relating to the missed tutorial.

Required and Recommended Texts and/or Materials

Required (In order of study):

1. Josephine Tey, The Daughter of Time
2. A.S. Byatt, Possession: A Romance
3. Marcus Zusak, The Book Thief
4. Kate Grenville, The Secret River
5. ENGL234 Unit Reader, available from Co-op Bookshop. This book contains other texts studied in the unit as well as set critical and theoretical readings for the weekly tutorials. It is essential that you buy this book.

Recommended (In order of study):

3. George R.R. Martin, A Game of Thrones
4. Beverly Jenkins, Indigo (try the Kindle/ebook version; it is much cheaper)

Copies of these books, weekly readings and the items on the List of References below have either been placed in the Library’s Reserve collection or can be accessed via the ENGL 234 Leganto Reading List (linked via the ENGL234 iLearn site).

Graduate Capabilities

Socially and Environmentally Active and Responsible

We want our graduates to be aware of and have respect for self and others; to be able to work with others as a leader and a team player; to have a sense of connectedness with others and country; and to have a sense of mutual obligation. Our graduates should be informed and active participants in moving society towards sustainability.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcome

- Investigate and explain the role of historical fiction in debates in the public sphere over contested or problematic histories

Assessment task

- Participation

Critical, Analytical and Integrative Thinking

We want our graduates to be capable of reasoning, questioning and analysing, and to integrate and synthesise learning and knowledge from a range of sources and environments; to be able to critique constraints, assumptions and limitations; to be able to think independently and systematically in relation to scholarly activity, in the workplace, and in the world. We want them to have a level of scientific and information technology literacy.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Explain the development and evolution of historical novels
- Analyse and explain the various ways history is used in different genres of fiction
- Investigate and explain the role of historical fiction in debates in the public sphere over contested or problematic histories
- Evaluate critical literary and historiographic scholarship on historical fiction
- Develop well-researched and well-reasoned arguments about literary texts, and present these arguments orally and in writing
Assessment tasks

• Participation
• Critical book review
• Research project
• Exam

Problem Solving and Research Capability

Our graduates should be capable of researching; of analysing, and interpreting and assessing data and information in various forms; of drawing connections across fields of knowledge; and they should be able to relate their knowledge to complex situations at work or in the world, in order to diagnose and solve problems. We want them to have the confidence to take the initiative in doing so, within an awareness of their own limitations.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

• Analyse and explain the various ways history is used in different genres of fiction
• Investigate and explain the role of historical fiction in debates in the public sphere over contested or problematic histories
• Evaluate critical literary and historiographic scholarship on historical fiction
• Develop well-researched and well-reasoned arguments about literary texts, and present these arguments orally and in writing

Assessment tasks

• Participation
• Critical book review
• Research project

Creative and Innovative

Our graduates will also be capable of creative thinking and of creating knowledge. They will be imaginative and open to experience and capable of innovation at work and in the community. We want them to be engaged in applying their critical, creative thinking.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcome

• Develop well-researched and well-reasoned arguments about literary texts, and present these arguments orally and in writing
Assessment tasks

- Critical book review
- Research project

Effective Communication

We want to develop in our students the ability to communicate and convey their views in forms effective with different audiences. We want our graduates to take with them the capability to read, listen, question, gather and evaluate information resources in a variety of formats, assess, write clearly, speak effectively, and to use visual communication and communication technologies as appropriate.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Explain the development and evolution of historical novels
- Analyse and explain the various ways history is used in different genres of fiction
- Investigate and explain the role of historical fiction in debates in the public sphere over contested or problematic histories
- Evaluate critical literary and historiographic scholarship on historical fiction
- Develop well-researched and well-reasoned arguments about literary texts, and present these arguments orally and in writing

Engaged and Ethical Local and Global citizens

As local citizens our graduates will be aware of indigenous perspectives and of the nation's historical context. They will be engaged with the challenges of contemporary society and with knowledge and ideas. We want our graduates to have respect for diversity, to be open-minded, sensitive to others and inclusive, and to be open to other cultures and perspectives: they should have a level of cultural literacy. Our graduates should be aware of disadvantage and social justice, and be willing to participate to help create a wiser and better society.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Explain the development and evolution of historical novels
- Investigate and explain the role of historical fiction in debates in the public sphere over contested or problematic histories

Assessment task

• Participation

Capable of Professional and Personal Judgement and Initiative

We want our graduates to have emotional intelligence and sound interpersonal skills and to demonstrate discernment and common sense in their professional and personal judgement. They will exercise initiative as needed. They will be capable of risk assessment, and be able to handle ambiguity and complexity, enabling them to be adaptable in diverse and changing environments.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

• Analyse and explain the various ways history is used in different genres of fiction
• Investigate and explain the role of historical fiction in debates in the public sphere over contested or problematic histories
• Evaluate critical literary and historiographic scholarship on historical fiction
• Develop well-researched and well-reasoned arguments about literary texts, and present these arguments orally and in writing

Assessment tasks

• Critical book review
• Research project
• Exam

Commitment to Continuous Learning

Our graduates will have enquiring minds and a literate curiosity which will lead them to pursue knowledge for its own sake. They will continue to pursue learning in their careers and as they participate in the world. They will be capable of reflecting on their experiences and relationships with others and the environment, learning from them, and growing - personally, professionally and socially.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

• Analyse and explain the various ways history is used in different genres of fiction
• Develop well-researched and well-reasoned arguments about literary texts, and present these arguments orally and in writing

Assessment task

- Research project

Discipline Specific Knowledge and Skills

Our graduates will take with them the intellectual development, depth and breadth of knowledge, scholarly understanding, and specific subject content in their chosen fields to make them competent and confident in their subject or profession. They will be able to demonstrate, where relevant, professional technical competence and meet professional standards. They will be able to articulate the structure of knowledge of their discipline, be able to adapt discipline-specific knowledge to novel situations, and be able to contribute from their discipline to inter-disciplinary solutions to problems.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Explain the development and evolution of historical novels
