Unit description

This unit will explore the concept of ideology as well as the development of particular ideologies from the French Revolution to the recent resurgence of populism. It will examine whether the nature of modern society makes it particularly prone to ideological forms of politics. Central to the analysis is the category of crisis, whether in the form of revolution, war, economic depression, or social dislocation. Key moments in the development of political ideologies will be explored in an endeavour to explain how and why they changed. The aim will be not merely to understand these ideas in the abstract, but to consider them in relation to concrete historical circumstances, as both a reflection and generator of social and political change. The unit will cover classic theorists of ideology including Marx, Gramsci and Arendt as well as contemporary analysts such as Clifford Geertz, Theda Skocpol, Terry Eagleton and Michael Freeden. Both well worn ideological traditions including liberalism, conservatism, and socialism will be explored as well as new ideological forms such as ecologism, fundamentalism, and populism.

Important Academic Dates

Graduate Capabilities

Creative and Innovative

Our graduates will also be capable of creative thinking and of creating knowledge. They will be imaginative and open to experience and capable of innovation at work and in the community. We want them to be engaged in applying their critical, creative thinking.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- 2. Critically interpret classic and contemporary texts on ideology
- 3. Differentiate between and critically evaluate political ideologies and analyse the relationship between political ideas, political ideologies, and political action
- 4. Integrate and synthesize a range of theoretical literature by giving an account of the history and relationship of key political ideas and ideologies.

Assessment tasks

- Book and/or article reviews
- Essay

Capable of Professional and Personal Judgement and Initiative

We want our graduates to have emotional intelligence and sound interpersonal skills and to demonstrate discernment and common sense in their professional and personal judgement. They will exercise initiative as needed. They will be capable of risk assessment, and be able to handle ambiguity and complexity, enabling them to be adaptable in diverse and changing environments.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- 1. Analyse and express informed judgements about political ideologies
- 3. Differentiate between and critically evaluate political ideologies and analyse the relationship between political ideas, political ideologies, and political action
- 4. Integrate and synthesize a range of theoretical literature by giving an account of the history and relationship of key political ideas and ideologies.

Assessment tasks

- Book and/or article reviews
- Essay

Discipline Specific Knowledge and Skills

Our graduates will take with them the intellectual development, depth and breadth of knowledge, scholarly understanding, and specific subject content in their chosen fields to make them competent and confident in their subject or profession. They will be able to demonstrate, where relevant, professional technical competence and meet professional standards. They will be able to articulate the structure of knowledge of their discipline, be able to adapt discipline-specific knowledge to novel situations, and be able to contribute from their discipline to inter-disciplinary solutions to problems.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- 1. Analyse and express informed judgements about political ideologies
- 2. Critically interpret classic and contemporary texts on ideology
- 3. Differentiate between and critically evaluate political ideologies and analyse the relationship between political ideas, political ideologies, and political action
- 4. Integrate and synthesize a range of theoretical literature by giving an account of the history and relationship of key political ideas and ideologies.
- 5. Use discipline specific terminology to communicate concepts and ideas relevant to this unit.

Assessment tasks

- Book and/or article reviews
- Essay

Critical, Analytical and Integrative Thinking

We want our graduates to be capable of reasoning, questioning and analysing, and to integrate and synthesise learning and knowledge from a range of sources and environments; to be able to critique constraints, assumptions and limitations; to be able to think independently and systemically in relation to scholarly activity, in the workplace, and in the world. We want them to have a level of scientific and information technology literacy.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- 1. Analyse and express informed judgements about political ideologies
- 2. Critically interpret classic and contemporary texts on ideology
- 3. Differentiate between and critically evaluate political ideologies and analyse the relationship between political ideas, political ideologies, and political action

- 5. Use discipline specific terminology to communicate concepts and ideas relevant to this unit.

Assessment tasks

- Book and/or article reviews
- Essay

Problem Solving and Research Capability

Our graduates should be capable of researching; of analysing, and interpreting and assessing data and information in various forms; of drawing connections across fields of knowledge; and they should be able to relate their knowledge to complex situations at work or in the world, in order to diagnose and solve problems. We want them to have the confidence to take the initiative in doing so, within an awareness of their own limitations.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- 2. Critically interpret classic and contemporary texts on ideology
- 3. Differentiate between and critically evaluate political ideologies and analyse the relationship between political ideas, political ideologies, and political action
- 4. Integrate and synthesize a range of theoretical literature by giving an account of the history and relationship of key political ideas and ideologies.
- 5. Use discipline specific terminology to communicate concepts and ideas relevant to this unit.

Assessment tasks

- Book and/or article reviews

Engaged and Ethical Local and Global citizens

As local citizens our graduates will be aware of indigenous perspectives and of the nation's historical context. They will be engaged with the challenges of contemporary society and with knowledge and ideas. We want our graduates to have respect for diversity, to be open-minded, sensitive to others and inclusive, and to be open to other cultures and perspectives: they should have a level of cultural literacy. Our graduates should be aware of disadvantage and social justice, and be willing to participate to help create a wiser and better society.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- 1. Analyse and express informed judgements about political ideologies
- 2. Critically interpret classic and contemporary texts on ideology
