Unit description The unit outlines the various sociological theories and analyses of sport. It examines such issues as: sport and media, sport, globalisation and human rights; sport, gender and race; the conduct of spectators and players; gambling and sport; on and off-field violence; professionalism and corporate sponsorship and ownership. It illustrates these concerns by referring to the various forms of professional football in Australia, cricket, and sporting competitions such as the Olympic Games, the soccer and rugby World Cups. You will be encouraged to draw upon contemporary sporting events and news in your assignments.

Important Academic Dates

Graduate Capabilities

Commitment to Continuous Learning

Our graduates will have enquiring minds and a literate curiosity which will lead them to pursue knowledge for its own sake. They will continue to pursue learning in their careers and as they participate in the world. They will be capable of reflecting on their experiences and relationships with others and the environment, learning from them, and growing - personally, professionally and socially.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcome

- To introduce students to key texts and themes in the sociological literature on sport, culture and society.
- To critically evaluate a variety of theoretical approaches to understanding the connections between sport and culture.
- To explore current trends and new directions for research in the field of sport, culture and society.
- To encourage students to develop capacities for creative and independent thinking as well as the ability to closely read and interrogate textual material.
- To work closely with the body of course material and produce new research in the areas of your interest.
- To encourage students in the development of writing skills.

Discipline Specific Knowledge and Skills

Our graduates will take with them the intellectual development, depth and breadth of knowledge, scholarly understanding, and specific subject content in their chosen fields to make them competent and confident in their subject or profession. They will be able to demonstrate, where relevant, professional technical competence and meet professional standards. They will be able to articulate the structure of knowledge of their discipline, be able to adapt discipline-specific knowledge to novel situations, and be able to contribute from their discipline to inter-disciplinary solutions to problems.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcome

- To introduce students to key texts and themes in the sociological literature on sport, culture and society.
- To critically evaluate a variety of theoretical approaches to understanding the connections between sport and culture.

Critical, Analytical and Integrative Thinking

We want our graduates to be capable of reasoning, questioning and analysing, and to integrate and synthesise learning and knowledge from a range of sources and environments; to be able to critique constraints, assumptions and limitations; to be able to think independently and systemically in relation to scholarly activity, in the workplace, and in the world. We want them to have a level of scientific and information technology literacy.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcome

- To introduce students to key texts and themes in the sociological literature on sport, culture and society.
- To critically evaluate a variety of theoretical approaches to understanding the connections between sport and culture.

Problem Solving and Research Capability

Our graduates should be capable of researching; of analysing, and interpreting and assessing data and information in various forms; of drawing connections across fields of knowledge; and they should be able to relate their knowledge to complex situations at work or in the world, in order to diagnose and solve problems. We want them to have the confidence to take the initiative in doing so, within an awareness of their own limitations.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Effective Communication

We want to develop in our students the ability to communicate and convey their views in forms effective with different audiences. We want our graduates to take with them the capability to read, listen, question, gather and evaluate information resources in a variety of formats, assess, write clearly, speak effectively, and to use visual communication and communication technologies as appropriate.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcome

- To introduce students to key texts and themes in the sociological literature on sport, culture and society.
- To critically evaluate a variety of theoretical approaches to understanding the connections between sport and culture.

Engaged and Ethical Local and Global citizens

As local citizens our graduates will be aware of indigenous perspectives and of the nation's historical context. They will be engaged with the challenges of contemporary society and with knowledge and ideas. We want our graduates to have respect for diversity, to be open-minded, sensitive to others and inclusive, and to be open to other cultures and perspectives: they should have a level of cultural literacy. Our graduates should be aware of disadvantage and social justice, and be willing to participate to help create a wiser and better society.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcome

- To introduce students to key texts and themes in the sociological literature on sport, culture and society. • To critically evaluate a variety of theoretical approaches to understanding the connections between sport and culture. • To explore current trends and new directions for research in the field of sport, culture and society. • To encourage students to develop capacities for creative and independent thinking as well as the ability to closely read and interrogate textual material. • To work closely with the body of course material and produce new research in the areas of your interest. • To encourage students in the development of writing skills.
