Unit description

This unit considers a range of issues that surround the notions of representation and reconstruction, and genre and realist poetics. The ways in which these issues are tied to processes of interpretation are also examined. Texts to be studied include literary, cinematic and graphic narratives, and theoretical considerations of questions relating to these narratives.

Important Academic Dates

Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at <https://www.mq.edu.au/study/calendar-of-dates>

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this unit, you will be able to:

Demonstrated critical and analytical reading strategies, interpretive analysis, scholarly research, and effective communication, with application to both literary and visual texts.

Ability to identify, evaluate and apply critical principles to different literary and visual modes.

Display creative thinking and construct cohesive arguments, with specific application to literary and visual texts.

Consider how historical and theoretical critical propositions have shaped the reception and reproduction of 20th- and 21st-century literary and visual works.

Demonstrate effective time management, work organisation and application of critical principles to both narrative and non-narrative contexts.

Ability to engage in informed critical discussion on unit content with peers and teachers, consider and assess others' points of view, and to argue a critical position.

General Assessment Information

Unless a Special Consideration request has been submitted and approved, (a) a penalty for lateness will apply – two (2) marks out of 100 will be deducted per day for assignments submitted after the due date – and (b) no assignment will be accepted more than seven (7) days (incl. weekends) after the original submission deadline. No late submissions will be accepted for timed assessments – e.g. quizzes, online tests.
