Unit description

This unit explores the human past from prehistoric times up to the present. Students will examine a range of archaeological material from different parts of the world from prehistory to early medieval period. By exploring a variety of ancient cultures, students will observe the interdisciplinary approach that contemporary archaeology utilises when facing broader questions such as the origin of the human species, its evolution and its interaction with the natural environment until the emergence of complex societies and then the blooming and diversity of historical societies. The unit will provide a broad knowledge and understanding of past societies, introducing methodology and theoretical issues when necessary.

Important Academic Dates

Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at <https://www.mq.edu.au/study/calendar-of-dates>

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this unit, you will be able to:

- Acquire knowledge of a range of archaeological cultures, sites and material in their geographic and chronological contexts.
- Understand how past societies developed and interacted worldwide and some of the principles, concepts and techniques used in the study of the archaeology of the world
- Read literature from different archaeological disciplines and interpret written and material evidence with appreciation and understanding
- Plan and present written arguments about archaeological cultures and material in coherent and documented form

Apply and adapt knowledge of a range of issues, questions and problems relating to the contemporary understanding of the past.

General Assessment Information

To complete the unit satisfactorily you will need to achieve an overall mark worth 50% or above.

Please submit all your written assessments through Turnitin, and do the quizzes through the iLearn quiz tool.

IMPORTANT NOTE ON FINAL MARKS: Please note with respect to the marks you receive for work during the session: that the marks given are indicative only; final marks will be determined after moderation. See further the note on Results in the Policies and Procedures section below.

Unless a Special Consideration request has been submitted and approved, (a) a penalty for lateness will apply – two (2) marks out of 100 will be deducted per day for assignments submitted after the due date – and (b) no assignment will be accepted more than seven (7) days (incl. weekends) after the original submission deadline. No late submissions will be accepted for timed assessments – e.g. quizzes, online tests.

Early feedback will be provided to students through lecture questions and Week 3 exercise in proper referencing of academic paper.

Assessment Tasks

Name	Weighting	Hurdle	Due
Research Essay	40%	No	2/11/2018
Short paper	30%	No	7/9/2018
Quiz	20%	No	Week 8 and Week 13

Research Essay

Due: 2/11/2018

Weighting: 40%

2,000 words research essay (with +/- 10% tolerance in word limit), which must be submitted until Friday 2nd of November, 5PM as a response to the questions listed in the Study Guide uploaded on iLearn. The essays must contain minimum of five article and book references. More about essay writing could be found in Essay Writing Guide, also uploaded on iLearn. The essays should be delivered via Turnitin. Late submissions are penalized with 2% per day.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Acquire knowledge of a range of archaeological cultures, sites and material in their geographic and chronological contexts.

- Understand how past societies developed and interacted worldwide and some of the principles, concepts and techniques used in the study of the archaeology of the world
- Read literature from different archaeological disciplines and interpret written and material evidence with appreciation and understanding
- Plan and present written arguments about archaeological cultures and material in coherent and documented form
- Apply and adapt knowledge of a range of issues, questions and problems relating to the contemporary understanding of the past.

Short paper

Due: 7/9/2018

Weighting: 30%

You must submit one 1,000 words short paper (+/- 10% tolerance in word limit) as response to the questions listed in the Study Guide uploaded on iLearn. The papers must contain minimum of three article and book references. Short papers are due on Friday 7th of September 5PM. The papers should be delivered via Turnitin. Late submissions are penalized with 2% per day.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Acquire knowledge of a range of archaeological cultures, sites and material in their geographic and chronological contexts.
- Understand how past societies developed and interacted worldwide and some of the principles, concepts and techniques used in the study of the archaeology of the world
- Read literature from different archaeological disciplines and interpret written and material evidence with appreciation and understanding
- Plan and present written arguments about archaeological cultures and material in coherent and documented form
- Apply and adapt knowledge of a range of issues, questions and problems relating to the contemporary understanding of the past.

Quiz

Due: Week 8 and Week 13

Weighting: 20%

There will be 2 online quizzes, each carrying 10% of the mark. Answer a series of questions (e.g. multiple choice, true/false, short responses) on the lectures and tutorial readings in limited time. There will be 20 minutes for 20 questions. The quizzes will go live at 6pm on the Thursday of the relevant weeks (8 & 13) and close at 11.59pm on the Sunday night. You will not have access to the quiz after this time and you cannot take a 'make up' quiz later to catch up. Complete the quiz using the iLearn quiz tool.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Acquire knowledge of a range of archaeological cultures, sites and material in their geographic and chronological contexts.
- Understand how past societies developed and interacted worldwide and some of the principles, concepts and techniques used in the study of the archaeology of the world
- Read literature from different archaeological disciplines and interpret written and material evidence with appreciation and understanding
- Apply and adapt knowledge of a range of issues, questions and problems relating to the contemporary understanding of the past.

Tutorial participation

Due: Weeks 1-13

Weighting: 10%

Students are required to attend all classes (lectures and tutorials), prepare for tutorial topic and actively participate in class discussion. Active participation means: read prescribed reading, make some notes to bring in the class and be involved in discussion. If you stay quiet in tutorials, your mark goes down. The absence from tutorials without approval of the tutor indirectly affects your mark – if you are not at tutorial, you are not participating in it.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Acquire knowledge of a range of archaeological cultures, sites and material in their geographic and chronological contexts.
- Understand how past societies developed and interacted worldwide and some of the principles, concepts and techniques used in the study of the archaeology of the world
- Read literature from different archaeological disciplines and interpret written and material evidence with appreciation and understanding
- Apply and adapt knowledge of a range of issues, questions and problems relating to the contemporary understanding of the past.

Delivery and Resources

- For lecture/tutorial times and location check <https://timetables.mq.edu.au/2018/>
- This unit comprises three key elements: 2-hour lectures, 1-hour tutorials and individual study and participation.
- Access to a library and/or article database such as JSTOR will be necessary to complete the assignments. If individual access to such databases is not possible, access is possible via the Macquarie Library website, although a proxy server may be necessary (for more see the "IT Help" link under the "Policies and Procedures" tab).

- All lectures, assignments, and readings will be posted on the course's iLearn site.

Additional resources, including web-links and additional directions will also appear there.

Prescribed textbooks:

Required: M. Diaz-Andreu, S. Lucy, S. Babić, & D. N. Edwards, The Archaeology of Identity: Approaches to gender, age, status, ethnicity and religion (London & New York, 2005)

Optional: C. Scarre & B. Fagan, Ancient Civilizations (4th ed.) (London & New York, 2016) – useful for broad historical overview.

Graduate Capabilities

Creative and Innovative

Our graduates will also be capable of creative thinking and of creating knowledge. They will be imaginative and open to experience and capable of innovation at work and in the community. We want them to be engaged in applying their critical, creative thinking.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Acquire knowledge of a range of archaeological cultures, sites and material in their geographic and chronological contexts.
- Understand how past societies developed and interacted worldwide and some of the principles, concepts and techniques used in the study of the archaeology of the world
- Read literature from different archaeological disciplines and interpret written and material evidence with appreciation and understanding
- Plan and present written arguments about archaeological cultures and material in coherent and documented form

Commitment to Continuous Learning

Our graduates will have enquiring minds and a literate curiosity which will lead them to pursue knowledge for its own sake. They will continue to pursue learning in their careers and as they participate in the world. They will be capable of reflecting on their experiences and relationships with others and the environment, learning from them, and growing - personally, professionally and socially.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Acquire knowledge of a range of archaeological cultures, sites and material in their geographic and chronological contexts.
- Understand how past societies developed and interacted worldwide and some of the principles, concepts and techniques used in the study of the archaeology of the world

- Read literature from different archaeological disciplines and interpret written and material evidence with appreciation and understanding

Discipline Specific Knowledge and Skills

Our graduates will take with them the intellectual development, depth and breadth of knowledge, scholarly understanding, and specific subject content in their chosen fields to make them competent and confident in their subject or profession. They will be able to demonstrate, where relevant, professional technical competence and meet professional standards. They will be able to articulate the structure of knowledge of their discipline, be able to adapt discipline-specific knowledge to novel situations, and be able to contribute from their discipline to inter-disciplinary solutions to problems.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Acquire knowledge of a range of archaeological cultures, sites and material in their geographic and chronological contexts.
- Understand how past societies developed and interacted worldwide and some of the principles, concepts and techniques used in the study of the archaeology of the world
- Read literature from different archaeological disciplines and interpret written and material evidence with appreciation and understanding

Critical, Analytical and Integrative Thinking

We want our graduates to be capable of reasoning, questioning and analysing, and to integrate and synthesise learning and knowledge from a range of sources and environments; to be able to critique constraints, assumptions and limitations; to be able to think independently and systemically in relation to scholarly activity, in the workplace, and in the world. We want them to have a level of scientific and information technology literacy.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Acquire knowledge of a range of archaeological cultures, sites and material in their geographic and chronological contexts.
- Understand how past societies developed and interacted worldwide and some of the principles, concepts and techniques used in the study of the archaeology of the world

Problem Solving and Research Capability

Our graduates should be capable of researching; of analysing, and interpreting and assessing data and information in various forms; of drawing connections across fields of knowledge; and they should be able to relate their knowledge to complex situations at work or in the world, in order to diagnose and solve problems. We want them to have the confidence to take the initiative in doing so, within an awareness of their own limitations.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Acquire knowledge of a range of archaeological cultures, sites and material in their geographic and chronological contexts.
- Understand how past societies developed and interacted worldwide and some of the principles, concepts and techniques used in the study of the archaeology of the world
- Read literature from different archaeological disciplines and interpret written and material evidence with appreciation and understanding

Effective Communication

We want to develop in our students the ability to communicate and convey their views in forms effective with different audiences. We want our graduates to take with them the capability to read, listen, question, gather and evaluate information resources in a variety of formats, assess, write clearly, speak effectively, and to use visual communication and communication technologies as appropriate.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Acquire knowledge of a range of archaeological cultures, sites and material in their geographic and chronological contexts.
- Understand how past societies developed and interacted worldwide and some of the principles, concepts and techniques used in the study of the archaeology of the world

Engaged and Ethical Local and Global citizens

As local citizens our graduates will be aware of indigenous perspectives and of the nation's historical context. They will be engaged with the challenges of contemporary society and with knowledge and ideas. We want our graduates to have respect for diversity, to be open-minded, sensitive to others and inclusive, and to be open to other cultures and perspectives: they should have a level of cultural literacy. Our graduates should be aware of disadvantage and social justice, and be willing to participate to help create a wiser and better society.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Acquire knowledge of a range of archaeological cultures, sites and material in their geographic and chronological contexts.
- Understand how past societies developed and interacted worldwide and some of the principles, concepts and techniques used in the study of the archaeology of the world
