Unit description

This unit surveys the evolution of Western thought from major philosophical perspectives (from Homer to Sartre) and their relevance for management. What is important about a philosophical perspective is not what it explains, but what it assumes. Three assumptions ground the unit: a) managing is essentially a philosophical activity because human existence is interpreted through diverse perspectives; b) management training needs to be combined with management education. To train is to drill and subordinate individuals to routines, standards and practices. To educate is to liberate a person's intellectual, moral and aesthetic powers. c) managers and leaders need to have the critical skills to debate, reflect, and engage in dialogue across different functional disciplines, stakeholders and cultures in organisational contexts.

Important Academic Dates

Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at <https://www.mq.edu.au/study/calendar-of-dates>

Weighting: 40%

Presentation

Due: In class TBA

Weighting: 50% of group work

Students will be assessed on their individual performance – content and presentation.

Students will be allocated to study groups in the first session. Each group will be allocated a philosopher to study and discuss in class. Each group will have up to 45 minutes to lead a class discussion. At least 15 minutes should be devoted to a question and answer period which will be conducted by the group.

Visual aids may be used to a maximum of 10 slides per presentation.

- (a) Students should provide a brief biographical introduction to each philosopher studied.
- (b) Questions to be answered in the presentation (and group report) are:
1. What are the main assumptions which ground this philosophy?
 2. What are the strengths and weaknesses of this philosophical perspective?
 3. What can managers learn from this philosopher?

Unit Schedule

Block Class - 9-5pm (7-8 and 20-22 July 2018)

Monday Weekly Class - 9-1pm (Starts: 25 June 2018)

Unit objectives

a) To compare and contrast philosophical perspectives by which people have attempted to understand the world, themselves and each other.

- b) To demonstrate that the field of management theory, whilst of recent origin, necessarily draws on a wide range of ancient wisdom.
- c) To encourage in students a sensitivity to language and so provide basic linguistic skills for the critical analysis of management theories and practices.
- d) To demonstrate that there is nothing as practical as a good theory.

The real object of lecturing is not to communicate information but to try to plant germinal ideas in the mind and to arouse curiosity, not to satisfy it. A lecture ought not to be a handing over of coined thoughts to be stored away in mental strong boxes ... what one tries to do in a lecture is to make a subject appear charming and interesting; to tempt one's hearers to look into themselves; to sweep away the dreary tissue of unnecessary and useless knowledge in which many books involve a person and to present ideas in attractive form." (A.C. Benson)

Alignment of this unit with MGSM's mission-driven attributes

Leadership: The unit explores philosophical approaches to leadership

Global mindset: The unit emphasises cross-cultural differences in management practices and values

Citizenship: The unit allows learners to evaluate their attitude to citizenship through a comparative analysis of Western ethical systems

Creating sustainable value: The unit assists the understanding of the philosophical status of Western values.

Attendance Policy (MGSM)

The interactive environment of the classroom is central to the MGSM experience. Students are required to attend the full duration of all classes for the units in which they are enrolled. We recognise that exceptional circumstances may occur, such as unavoidable travel on behalf of your organization or the serious illness or injury of you or a close family member. Special consideration may be given for a maximum of 20% non-attendance for such circumstances as long as lecturers are contacted in advance, and supporting documentation provided, to request exemption from attendance. Failure to abide by these conditions may result in automatic withdrawal, with academic and/or financial penalty. The full Student Attendance Policy is published in the MGSM Student Handbook at <https://students.mgsm.edu.au/handbook>
