Unit description This unit aims to promote an understanding of diverse psychological perspectives and research findings on the practice of management. Human behaviour in the Australian workplace is analysed by comparing and contrasting four psychological perspectives: psychoanalysis, behaviourism, dispositionalism and existentialism. Topics include personality, motivation, occupational stress, mental health and counselling. Of special relevance is an analysis of individual differences which includes a critical evaluation of the role and use of psychological tests in management.

Important Academic Dates

Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at <https://www.mq.edu.au/study/calendar-of-dates>

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this unit, you will be able to:

Critically reflect on the psychology of management from contrasting perspectives in order to better lead, motivate and communicate effectively across diverse teams.

Critically analyse the cross-cultural differences in managerial psychology, and the diverse cultural mindsets that underpin them, while recognising their own cultural bias.

Critically reflect on the ethical implications of the practice of psychology and what that means for its practice in the workplace.

Critically evaluate the role and use of psychological tests in management and whether they create any sustainable value to an organisation.

Understanding mental health at work

General Assessment Information

Students will be required to:

1. prepare for and participate in seminars;
2. conduct a syndicate presentation at the end of the first block weekend (20% of course mark);
3. write a second syndicate presentation due at the end of the second block weekend (20% of the course mark);
4. complete two individual essay questions (60% of total mark).

Assessment Tasks

Name	Weighting	Hurdle	Due
Group Presentation 1	20%	No	Starting session 5
Group Presentation 2	20%	No	Starting session 10
Individual Essay Questions	60%	No	3pm (Syd Time) of 12 Nov 2018

Group Presentation 1

Due: Starting session 5

Weighting: 20%

Duration: 20 minutes + 10 minutes for questions

Format: Role plays, discussion, commentaries underpinned by theories

Description

Each group will be allocated a case study on a mental health issue with reference to work. The aim of the assignment is to present the features of the mental health issue, its implications for work and suggestions as to ways of managing the mental health issue at work. Draw on an organisational experience to exemplify the mental health issue.

Assessment of presentation

Overall assessment of presentations will be based on a group mark component (50%) and an individual mark component (50%).

The group mark component is a mark awarded to the group and is based on an evaluation of the content and delivery of the presentation. Information about the process and criteria for evaluation of presentations will be provided by the lecturer in the first class.

The individual mark component of the presentation assignment will be based on group member's rating of the contribution of other members of the group (in an anonymous survey). If others in your group rate you as having made a satisfactory contribution (relatively equal contribution) this will equate to you receiving the group mark. A rating of having made less than a satisfactory contribution may result in individual deductions up to 50% of the obtained group's mark. It will also be possible to judge a group member as having made an exceptional contribution and this will lead to consideration of additional marks to the final subject's mark. All group member assessments of individual contribution will be reviewed and considered by the lecturer in determining the final presentation assessment.

No extensions will be granted.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Critically reflect on the psychology of management from contrasting perspectives in order to better lead, motivate and communicate effectively across diverse teams.
- Critically analyse the cross-cultural differences in managerial psychology, and the diverse cultural mindsets that underpin them, while recognising their own cultural bias.
- Understanding mental health at work

Group Presentation 2

Due: Starting session 10

Weighting: 20%

Duration: 20 minutes + 10 minutes for questions

Format: Role plays, discussion, commentaries underpinned by theories

Each group will be allocated a psychological framework. The aim of the assignment is to present the features of the framework, its implications for work and suggestions that it provides for working with toxic dimensions of work. Draw on an organisational experience to exemplify the framework.

Assessment of presentation

Overall assessment of presentations will be based on a group mark component (50%) and an individual mark component (50%).

The group mark component is a mark awarded to the group and is based on an evaluation of the content and delivery of the presentation. Information about the process and criteria for evaluation of presentations will be provided by the lecturer in the first class.

The individual mark component of the presentation assignment will be based on group member's rating of the contribution of other members of the group (in an anonymous survey). If others in your group rate you as having made a satisfactory contribution (relatively equal contribution) this will equate to you receiving the group mark. A rating of having made less than a satisfactory contribution may result in individual deductions up to 50% of the obtained group's mark. It will also be possible to judge a group member as having made an exceptional contribution and this will lead to consideration of additional marks to the final subject's mark. All group member assessments of individual contribution will be reviewed and considered by the lecturer in determining the final presentation assessment.

No extensions will be granted.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Critically reflect on the psychology of management from contrasting perspectives in order to better lead, motivate and communicate effectively across diverse teams.
- Critically analyse the cross-cultural differences in managerial psychology, and the diverse cultural mindsets that underpin them, while recognising their own cultural bias.
- Critically reflect on the ethical implications of the practice of psychology and what that means for its practice in the workplace.

Individual Essay Questions

Due: 3pm (Syd Time) of 12 Nov 2018

Weighting: 60%

Length: 2500 words per essay question

Students will need to answer two (2) essay questions out of a list of topic questions that will be discussed and handed out in class.

Submission details

Students are to submit 1 x soft-copy of their individual essay answers in the class iLearn page on or before the due date listed above. The soft-copy submission will be submitted to Turnitin via the MGSM iLearn portal, a program used to ensure the originality of the work undertaken by the submitter. Please note that the due date is presented in Sydney Time. The onus will be on the student to understand the time difference in which ever location they are in and submit their assessment within the specified due time and date.

Students are to do the following when submitting this assessment:

- Submit only 1 x Microsoft word document (.docx or .doc format) containing answer to the two essay questions
- Ensure your full name, student number, unit code (MGSM871), unit name (Managerial Psychology), and lecturer (Dr Steven Segal) is clearly visible on the front page of your assignment.
- Ensure your submitted file name is in the following format: 871-IEQ-Lastname_Firstname.docx

Extensions and penalties:

No extensions will be granted. There will be a deduction of 10% of the total available marks made from the total awarded mark for each 24 hour period or part thereof that the submission is late (for example, 25 hours late in submission – 20% penalty). This penalty does not apply for cases in which an application for disruption of studies is made and approved.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Critically reflect on the ethical implications of the practice of psychology and what that means for its practice in the workplace.
- Critically evaluate the role and use of psychological tests in management and whether they create any sustainable value to an organisation.
