Unit description

Marketing communications are an integral part of an organization's overall marketing activities and play a critical role in determining its success in the market. Today, marketing professionals face new opportunities, but also significant challenges in communicating with consumers in an evolving media landscape and dynamic interactions between consumers and brands. This unit develops students' knowledge of the principles and practices that marketers have to consider when developing marketing communications plans. Students will learn how to analyse, design and evaluate different marketing communications for different target audiences. The unit focuses developing students' knowledge of the design and execution of research-based, audience-focused, results-driven marketing communications campaigns.

Important Academic Dates

Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at <https://www.mq.edu.au/study/calendar-of-dates>

IMC Campaign Development

Due: Week 4, 7,9,11 and 13

Weighting: 40%

This is a group assignment that requires student groups to prepare a marketing communications plan in response to a brief. This assignment targets the development of students' problem-solving, research and analytical skills. To undertake this task students are required to complete 4 stages of work presented in reports and a group presentation. 50% of this group project will be assessed individually. A peer review will be conducted at the completion of this project, the result of which will help to determine individual scores for the group project.

Please submit reports via Turnitin Link in iLearn.

Please refer to the iLearn unit page for details of this group assignment.

No extensions will be granted for this assignment unless special consideration is applied and approved. Late submission will be subject to 10% off every 24 hours except for cases in which an application for special consideration is made and approved.
