Unit description

This unit will give students an advanced understanding of key legal and ethical issues that are relevant to media practice and journalism in the contemporary media landscape. It will offer students without a law background a practical understanding of the legal principles that underpin key emergent areas of online and social media regulation with a focus on how the law is evolving to deal with new technologies and platforms. Students will also gain a sophisticated appreciation of the ethical framework that underpin regulation, co-regulation and self-regulation and their rationale. The unit will engage students in complex critical reflection about the contemporary media, law and ethics.

Important Academic Dates

Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at <https://www.mq.edu.au/study/calendar-of-dates>

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this unit, you will be able to:

Analyse the key laws that regulate social and online media practice in Australia

Apply an ethical and critical reflection to social media practices

Apply advanced knowledge of legal and ethical principles to social media practice

Discriminate between the different and evolving regulations and laws around new social media technologies

Summarise and evaluate how these laws affect contemporary media content production

General Assessment Information

Assessment standards in this unit align with the University's grade descriptors, available at: <http://staff.mq.edu.au/work/strategy-planning-and-governance/university-policies-and-procedures/policies/assessment>

Unless a Special Consideration request has been submitted and approved, (a) a penalty for lateness will apply – two (2) marks out of 100 will be deducted per day for assignments submitted after the due date – and (b) no assignment will be accepted more than seven (7) days (including weekends) after the original submission deadline. No late submissions will be accepted for timed assessments – e.g. quizzes, online tests.

Assessment Tasks

| Name | Weighting | Hurdle | Due |
|---------------|-----------|--------|-----------------------------|
| Presentation | 20% | No | Ongoing |
| Seminar paper | 30% | No | One week after presentation |
| Final essay | 50% | No | 13/6/2019 |

Presentation

Due: Ongoing

Weighting: 20%

You will be asked to present a 15 minute paper on one of the readings at a seminar. The presentation will be a group presentation. Students will be put into groups in the second week of the course and will be asked to select one of the course topics for their presentation. Students will be expected to meet or communicate outside class time to organise their presentation. They will be asked to draw on a combination of real world examples, scholarly research and media commentary to analyse an issue relevant to the topic they have chosen. They can use audiovisual presentations where appropriate. There will be opportunities to discuss this assignment in class prior to the presentations which will begin in Week 4. The presentations will be assessed in class by the lecturer.

For assessment criteria see below.

Assessment Matrix

Clarity of Expression 25% Quality of Research 25% Quality of Argument 25% Originality 25%

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Analyse the key laws that regulate social and online media practice in Australia
- Apply an ethical and critical reflection to social media practices
- Apply advanced knowledge of legal and ethical principles to social media practice
- Discriminate between the different and evolving regulations and laws around new social media technologies
- Summarise and evaluate how these laws affect contemporary media content production

Seminar paper

Due: One week after presentation

Weighting: 30%

Following your seminar presentation you will prepare a 1,500 word paper drawing on your presentation and using other scholarly and journalistic resources. Your seminar paper does not have to be identical to your presentation - as it is assessed individually you are encouraged to focus on an aspect of the issue your group presented on and elaborate. You are also encouraged to find real world examples involving social media, law and/or ethics. This assignment should be written in a conventional essay style using consistent referencing. For assessment criteria see below.

Assignment to be submitted on Turnitin

Assessment matrix

Clarity of Expression 25% Quality of Research 25% Quality of Argument 25% Originality 25%

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Analyse the key laws that regulate social and online media practice in Australia
- Apply an ethical and critical reflection to social media practices
- Apply advanced knowledge of legal and ethical principles to social media practice
- Discriminate between the different and evolving regulations and laws around new social media technologies

Final essay

Due: 13/6/2019

Weighting: 50%

This essay will allow you draw on and unpack key critical ideas you have encountered in this unit. There are no set essay questions because, in a Masters level course, you are encouraged to identify a topic which generates a sustained level of interest for you. Your essay should focus on an issue concerning social media which has legal and/or ethical dimensions. You are encouraged to discuss your topic well in advance of the submission date with your lecturer via email or face to face. Your essay should draw on real world examples, scholarly resources and media commentary to build a compelling argument and/or case study. It is important to bear in mind, as this course will unpack, that social media is a fluid and emergent media space and that many legal and ethical questions remain unanswered. As the assessment criteria states, you will be evaluated not only on clarity of expression, research and the quality of your argument but equally on originality. You are encouraged, using solid research and argument, to think critically and deeply about an issue relevant to the course and to demonstrate that thinking in your essay.

For assessment criteria see below.
