Unit description

This unit examines the ways in which various contestations (over postmodernism, poststructuralism and queer theory) challenged the foundational categories of feminist theory in the 1980s and 1990s. The unit will ponder whether the call for a contingent feminist theory and practice undermined or, in fact, invigorated feminist critical thought and practice. Through an engagement with the various critical frameworks that emerged in the wake of these contestations, the unit will then examine the reformulations and reframings that feminist scholars have produced in the decades since these interventions. What do these new critical frameworks seek to explain? Do they represent a return or a critical rupture? Are we living in a post-feminist moment? This unit will be framed as a cross-disciplinary unit, students are encouraged to bring their diverse disciplinary perspectives to the discussion and assessment.

Important Academic Dates

Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at <https://www.mq.edu.au/study/calendar-of-dates>

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this unit, you will be able to:

- Demonstrate a coherent and advanced understanding of key debates in feminist theory
- Critically reflect on the relationship between feminist politics and research in the humanities and social sciences

Exercise independence in the identification of a research problem and formulate a sophisticated approach to investigate it

Practice ethical and inclusive engagement with learning peers

Demonstrate advanced written and verbal communication skills to deploy feminist categories of analysis

General Assessment Information

Unless a Special Consideration request has been submitted and approved, (a) a penalty for lateness will apply – two (2) marks out of 100 will be deducted per day for assignments submitted after the due date – and (b) no assignment will be accepted more than seven (7) days (incl. weekends) after the original submission deadline. No late submissions will be accepted for timed assessments – e.g. quizzes, online tests.

Assessment Tasks

Name	Weighting	Hurdle	Due
Seminar Participation/Blogs	25%	No	Ongoing
Critical Review	25%	No	Friday 12 April 2019, 5pm
Research Essay	50%	No	Friday 10 June 2019, 5pm

Seminar Participation/Blogs

Due: Ongoing

Weighting: 25%

Students should come to the seminars ready to engage and discuss the weekly materials. There is no hurdle requirement to come to class – if students haven't completed the readings, attendance is not recommended. Please also be aware of others in the seminar-room and differing levels of familiarity with feminist thought – some students will not have engaged closely with this material before.

In order to satisfy the requirements for this assessment, each week all students must contribute either a "post" or a "response" to the class blog. This can be accessed via iLearn, and in our first seminar of the semester we will nominate discussion leaders for each week.

These blog posts are a way to demonstrate your ongoing engagement with the material we look at in this course. This is not an assessment, then, in which you must prove your expertise. Rather, use this task as a space in which you can further discuss the ideas we ponder in class, ask any questions that we might not have had time for, or to clarify with your classmates any material you find difficult. Each blog post should be around 100-200 words. They do not have to be fully referenced, although if you draw on material beyond the required readings, it is a good idea to note the texts you've used.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Demonstrate a coherent and advanced understanding of key debates in feminist theory
- Critically reflect on the relationship between feminist politics and research in the humanities and social sciences
- Practice ethical and inclusive engagement with learning peers
- Demonstrate advanced written and verbal communication skills to deploy feminist categories of analysis

Critical Review

Due: Friday 12 April 2019, 5pm

Weighting: 25%

Write a critical review of one piece of scholarship (article or book chapter) that engages with a concept/idea developed in one of the weekly seminars. Select a piece of scholarship that emerges in your own field. You should consider how this piece of research engages with the concept you have selected and consider its utility in your chosen research field (ie, is the sex/gender distinction useful for media studies?).

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Demonstrate a coherent and advanced understanding of key debates in feminist theory
- Demonstrate advanced written and verbal communication skills to deploy feminist categories of analysis

Research Essay

Due: Friday 10 June 2019, 5pm

Weighting: 50%

Produce a piece of independent research that engages with a key debate from the unit. Essay questions will be made available on ilearn. The essay should be submitted via turnitin.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Demonstrate a coherent and advanced understanding of key debates in feminist theory
- Exercise independence in the identification of a research problem and formulate a sophisticated approach to investigate it
- Demonstrate advanced written and verbal communication skills to deploy feminist categories of analysis

Delivery and Resources

Seminars will take place Fridays, 1pm-3pm. Unit readings are accessible through iLearn or the library catalogue.

- Exercise independence in the identification of a research problem and formulate a sophisticated approach to investigate it

Assessment tasks

- Seminar Participation/Blogs
- Critical Review
- Research Essay

PG - Research and Problem Solving Capability

Our postgraduates will be capable of systematic enquiry; able to use research skills to create new knowledge that can be applied to real world issues, or contribute to a field of study or practice to enhance society. They will be capable of creative questioning, problem finding and problem solving.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcome

- Exercise independence in the identification of a research problem and formulate a sophisticated approach to investigate it

Assessment task

- Research Essay

PG - Effective Communication

Our postgraduates will be able to communicate effectively and convey their views to different social, cultural, and professional audiences. They will be able to use a variety of technologically supported media to communicate with empathy using a range of written, spoken or visual formats.

This graduate capability is supported by:
