Unit description

This unit explores the role and practice of learning and development (L&D) in organisations with an applied industry component. With industry partners, the unit provides students with the opportunity to apply L&D knowledge and skills to the training and development function as well as training delivery. Through this, students will develop a broad view of the complex and contested issues that confront organisations when constructing systems of learning and knowledge generation. Thus, students will gain an appreciation of the strategic choices available and key practical challenges in L&D. Students learn the concepts and theories relevant to this area, and apply these concepts by actively engaging with a partner organisation on a project of contemporary strategic relevance. In addition, in completing the project students will develop graduate capabilities in professional and personal judgement and initiative and being socially active and responsible.

Important Academic Dates

Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at <https://www.mq.edu.au/study/calendar-of-dates>

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this unit, you will be able to:

An understanding of how to conduct each of the phases of the strategic training process both individually and in groups, and the key practical challenges involved.

An awareness of the key debates shaping public policy in training, and Australian policy responses to both these debates and the challenges of skills provision.

An understanding of how theories of learning and cognition may contribute to training and development and the changing faces of training and development.

An appreciation of the strategic choices available in relation to training forms and practices.

An understanding of the practical application of disciplinary knowledge in this area to professional activities concerned with training and development and the promotion and communication of strategies in this field.

Assessment Tasks

Tutorial Assessment

Due: Weeks 2 - 10

Weighting: 10%

Tutorial Participation Assessment Summary Task Description

Student participation will be assessed on the basis of informed contributions to discussions about set Homework Readings for particular weeks and engagement in group dynamics training and other activities. To facilitate assessment of contributions to discussion on set readings, students are required to complete a brief homework exercise for three of the weeks in which a set reading is specified for the tutorial.

This will be indicated by the words SET READING in the Lecture and Tutorial Guides on the Unit iLearn Page. One week before the particular set reading/tutorial, questions will be uploaded on iLearn for the relevant week.

Type of Collaboration Individual Submission In class submission. This will consist of three one-page submissions. Format Please refer to the iLearn Unit page Length N/A Inherent Task Requirements Please note the tutorial in Week 5 is compulsory because Management Plans for the Group Project will be completed in this hour. Students will not receive the 5 marks if they do not attend. Late Submission N/A

On successful completion you will be able to:

- An appreciation of the strategic choices available in relation to training forms and practices.
- An understanding of the practical application of disciplinary knowledge in this area to professional activities concerned with training and development and the promotion and communication of strategies in this field.

Technology Used and Required	Students will need to be familiar with a web browser to access the unit web page.
Delivery Format and Other Details	This unit includes a semester-long group-based project as a participation unit as part of the PACE program. It integrates the materials that have been covered in first and second year Human Resource Management units, applying this material to learning and development problems as presented by the Client Partner. Its objectives are to investigate what kinds of factors influence the learning and development strategies within an organisation to work towards achieving a competitive advantage. The classes are conducted through lectures and industry speakers, as well as tutorials. Students develop a report around the Client Partners' specified learning and development problem/s. Throughout the unit, the emphasis is on the analysis process: identifying information needs, acquiring the necessary information, interpreting it and using it as the basis for business recommendations back to the Client Partner(s). This unit examines learning, training and development strategy in the context of community engagement as a participation subject. Students will actively participate in a project within the learning and development area of the Client Partner to develop solutions for the problem presented. Students will gain practical knowledge, experience and skills with the community organization and will be challenged to analyse the context and to examine the intersection between theory and practice. Students will contextualize their graduate capabilities, explore and develop their learning and development strategy potential through this community engagement. This unit aims at preparing students for effective, responsible, ethical and active management of the learning and development strategy through community engagement. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Number and length of classes: 1 x 2 hour lecture and 1 x 1 hour tutorial, i.e. 3 hours face to face per week unless indicated otherwise in the lecture schedule. Classes may vary due to public holiday(s) • Tutorials will commence in Week 2 • The timetable for classes can be found on the University web site at: http://www.timetables.mq.edu.au/

Academic Honesty

The nature of scholarly endeavour, dependent as it is on the work of others, binds all members of the University community to abide by the principles of academic honesty. Its fundamental principle is that all staff and students act with integrity in the creation, development, application and use of ideas and information. This means that:

- all academic work claimed as original is the work of the author making the claim
- all academic collaborations are acknowledged
- academic work is not falsified in any way
- when the ideas of others are used, these ideas are acknowledged appropriately.

Further information on the academic honesty can be found in the Macquarie University Academic Honesty Policy at http://www.mq.edu.au/policy/docs/academic_honesty/policy.html

Grades

Macquarie University uses the following grades in coursework units of study:

Graduate Capabilities

Capable of Professional and Personal Judgement and Initiative

We want our graduates to have emotional intelligence and sound interpersonal skills and to demonstrate discernment and common sense in their professional and personal judgement. They will exercise initiative as needed. They will be capable of risk assessment, and be able to handle ambiguity and complexity, enabling them to be adaptable in diverse and changing environments.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- An understanding of how to conduct each of the phases of the strategic training process both individually and in groups, and the key practical challenges involved.
- An awareness of the key debates shaping public policy in training, and Australian policy responses to both these debates and the challenges of skills provision.
- An appreciation of the strategic choices available in relation to training forms and practices.

- An understanding of the practical application of disciplinary knowledge in this area to professional activities concerned with training and development and the promotion and communication of strategies in this field.

Assessment tasks

- Group Presentation and Report
- Final Examination
- Tutorial Assessment

Discipline Specific Knowledge and Skills

Our graduates will take with them the intellectual development, depth and breadth of knowledge, scholarly understanding, and specific subject content in their chosen fields to make them competent and confident in their subject or profession. They will be able to demonstrate, where relevant, professional technical competence and meet professional standards. They will be able to articulate the structure of knowledge of their discipline, be able to adapt discipline-specific knowledge to novel situations, and be able to contribute from their discipline to inter-disciplinary solutions to problems.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- An understanding of how to conduct each of the phases of the strategic training process both individually and in groups, and the key practical challenges involved.
- An awareness of the key debates shaping public policy in training, and Australian policy responses to both these debates and the challenges of skills provision.
- An understanding of how theories of learning and cognition may contribute to training and development and the changing faces of training and development.
- An appreciation of the strategic choices available in relation to training forms and practices.
- An understanding of the practical application of disciplinary knowledge in this area to professional activities concerned with training and development and the promotion and communication of strategies in this field.

Assessment tasks

- Group Presentation and Report
- Final Examination
- Tutorial Assessment

Critical, Analytical and Integrative Thinking

We want our graduates to be capable of reasoning, questioning and analysing, and to integrate and synthesise learning and knowledge from a range of sources and environments; to be able to critique constraints, assumptions and limitations; to be able to think independently and systemically in relation to scholarly activity, in the workplace, and in the world. We want them to have a level of scientific and information technology literacy.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- An understanding of how to conduct each of the phases of the strategic training process both individually and in groups, and the key practical challenges involved.
- An understanding of how theories of learning and cognition may contribute to training and development and the changing faces of training and development.
- An appreciation of the strategic choices available in relation to training forms and practices.
- An understanding of the practical application of disciplinary knowledge in this area to professional activities concerned with training and development and the promotion and communication of strategies in this field.

Assessment tasks

- Group Presentation and Report
- Final Examination
- Tutorial Assessment

Problem Solving and Research Capability

Our graduates should be capable of researching; of analysing, and interpreting and assessing data and information in various forms; of drawing connections across fields of knowledge; and they should be able to relate their knowledge to complex situations at work or in the world, in order to diagnose and solve problems. We want them to have the confidence to take the initiative in doing so, within an awareness of their own limitations.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- An understanding of how to conduct each of the phases of the strategic training process both individually and in groups, and the key practical challenges involved.
- An understanding of how theories of learning and cognition may contribute to training and development and the changing faces of training and development.
- An understanding of the practical application of disciplinary knowledge in this area to professional activities concerned with training and development and the promotion and communication of strategies in this field.

Assessment task

- Group Presentation and Report

Engaged and Ethical Local and Global citizens

As local citizens our graduates will be aware of indigenous perspectives and of the nation's historical context. They will be engaged with the challenges of contemporary society and with knowledge and ideas. We want our graduates to have respect for diversity, to be open-minded, sensitive to others and inclusive, and to be open to other cultures and perspectives: they should have a level of cultural literacy. Our graduates should be aware of disadvantage and social justice, and be willing to participate to help create a wiser and better society.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- An awareness of the key debates shaping public policy in training, and Australian policy responses to both these debates and the challenges of skills provision.
- An understanding of how theories of learning and cognition may contribute to training and development and the changing faces of training and development.
- An understanding of the practical application of disciplinary knowledge in this area to professional activities concerned with training and development and the promotion and communication of strategies in this field.

Assessment tasks

- Group Presentation and Report
- Tutorial Assessment

Global Contexts and Sustainability

- This Unit includes the exploration of how the ways people learn may differ across the globe;
- Another theme included in this Unit is the role that training and development - and organisational learning - play in building sustainable organisations.

Research and Practice

- This unit uses research by Macquarie University researchers (references provided in iLearn)
- This unit gives you practice in applying research findings in your assignments
- This unit gives you opportunities to conduct your own research
