Unit description

This unit provides an introduction to the legal rules, fundamental principles and institutional framework of trade transactions at international level. The aim of this unit is to acquaint students with the legal regime governing international trade in goods, services and intellectual property rights (IPRs). It focuses on key World Trade Organisation (WTO) agreements and provides insights into some major concepts, principles and rules of international trade law. It also examines the scope, functions and efficiency of the WTO. The interaction of international trade, investment and monetary issues and the interplay of global trade law, politics and international relations in regulating these issues are covered in this unit. Topics addressed include evolution and institutionalisation of international trade law, fundamental principles and exceptions to the GATT-WTO legal regime, trade in goods, services (GATS) and intellectual property rights (TRIPS), rules on regional and bilateral preferential trade arrangements, trade remedies such as safeguards, anti-dumping and countervailing measures, and the WTO dispute settlement mechanism. It also encompasses major critical analysis of contemporary issues such as the legal protection of foreign direct investment, labour standards, environment and human rights, which are substantially interlinked with the regulation of international trade.

Important Academic Dates

Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at <https://www.mq.edu.au/study/calendar-of-dates>

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this unit, you will be able to:

Understand the origin, development and contemporary institutional arrangements of global trade;

Identify the tensions between legal and non-legal issues in international trade regulations;

Recognize multiple aspects of trade liberalization, protectionism, fair and unfair trade practices;

Recognize concurrent global and regional trade-related problems and issues, and the ability to provide individual opinion/solution of the problems from legal point of view;

Critically assess and analyse international trade law principles, apply relevant laws and undertake research on trade regulatory policies.

General Assessment Information

To be eligible to pass this unit, it is necessary to obtain a mark of at least 50% in the unit overall.

How Feedback will be provided to you on your performance in your Assessment Tasks: A marking rubric will be provided to you which will deliver feedback to you on your performance in your Class Participation, your Presentation and your Essay. The marking rubrics can be found in your BUSL305 Assessment Guide.

Assessment Tasks

Name	Weighting	Hurdle	Due
Participation	10%	No	Ongoing
Presentation	30%	No	Ongoing
Research Assignment	60%	No	16.30 on Thursday of Week 13

Participation

Due: Ongoing

Weighting: 10%

Task Description: Class participation does not necessarily mean mere physical attendance in a seminar. Students are expected to display knowledge that they have completed the required reading for a seminar, and are prepared to ask and answer questions on scheduled topics. Class participation will include a student's engagement in a class. Type of Collaboration: Individual Submission: Through your collaboration and comments made during each tutorial Format: See the Assessment Guide on iLearn for Detailed Criteria and Information on Class Participation. Length: The Unit has thirteen three-hour seminars Inherent Task Requirements: Complete the readings and develop your own answers to assigned questions prior to attending each weekly seminar Late Submission: Penalty:

Other than where a relevant application pursuant to the Special Consideration policy is approved, failure to attend without providing satisfactory evidence at least nine of the twelve seminars over the course of the semester will result in a reduction in your participation mark that would have been awarded for the participation you engaged in during the seminars that you did attend.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Understand the origin, development and contemporary institutional arrangements of global trade;
- Identify the tensions between legal and non-legal issues in international trade regulations;
- Recognize multiple aspects of trade liberalization, protectionism, fair and unfair trade practices;
- Recognize concurrent global and regional trade-related problems and issues, and the ability to provide individual opinion/solution of the problems from legal point of view;
- Critically assess and analyse international trade law principles, apply relevant laws and undertake research on trade regulatory policies.

Presentation

Due: Ongoing

Weighting: 30%

Task Description: Students are to each deliver a 10-15 minute individual presentation once during the course of the semester and to orally answer questions about it from the Unit Convenor and/or their classmates. Presentation will start from week 3 and topics will be posted on iLearn from week 2. Students are also free to choose their own topics after consulting with the class teacher. Students will submit their presentations orally during the seminars. Type of Collaboration: Individual Submission: See the Assessment Guide on iLearn for Detailed Criteria and Information on Presentation. Format: Oral Presentation (Powerpoint permitted) Length: 10-15 minutes Inherent Task Requirements: Students must have researched the topic thoroughly in advance so as to be able to effectively communicate a complex topic related to global trade law in an easy-to-understand manner. Late Submission: Penalty:

No extensions will be granted. There will be a deduction of 10% of the total available marks made from the total awarded mark for each 24 hour period or part thereof that the submission is late (for example, 25 hours late in submission – 20% penalty). As presentations are only made during seminars, a presentation made one-week late will suffer a 70% penalty. This penalty does not apply for cases in which an application for special consideration is made and approved. No submission will be accepted after solutions have been posted.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Understand the origin, development and contemporary institutional arrangements of global trade;
- Identify the tensions between legal and non-legal issues in international trade regulations;
- Recognize multiple aspects of trade liberalization, protectionism, fair and unfair trade practices;
- Recognize concurrent global and regional trade-related problems and issues, and the ability to provide individual opinion/solution of the problems from legal point of view;

Research Assignment

Due: 16.30 on Thursday of Week 13

Weighting: 60%

Task Description: Students are required to select their respective topics from the sample trade-related topics posted on iLearn. Students may choose a topic of their own interest but that must be approved by the lecturer first. Students MUST NOT start working on a research assignment on any unapproved and/or unlisted topic. Type of Collaboration: Individual

Submission: Online via Turnitin / Gradebook Format:

Assignment topics will be posted on iLearn during semester time.

See the Assessment Guide on iLearn for Detailed Assessment Criteria.

Length: 2500-3000 words (excluding bibliography and footnotes) Inherent Task Requirements: Students must undertake extensive research so as to understand and analyse the relevant issues. Students must ensure their references comply with the Australian Guide to Legal Citation (4th Ed.) Late Submission:

Penalty:

No extensions will be granted. There will be a deduction of 10% of the total available marks made from the total awarded mark for each 24 hour period or part thereof that the submission is late (for example, 25 hours late in submission – 20% penalty). This penalty does not apply for cases in which an application for special consideration is made and approved.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Recognize multiple aspects of trade liberalization, protectionism, fair and unfair trade practices;

- Recognize concurrent global and regional trade-related problems and issues, and the ability to provide individual opinion/solution of the problems from legal point of view;
- Critically assess and analyse international trade law principles, apply relevant laws and undertake research on trade regulatory policies.

Graduate Capabilities

Discipline Specific Knowledge and Skills

Our graduates will take with them the intellectual development, depth and breadth of knowledge, scholarly understanding, and specific subject content in their chosen fields to make them competent and confident in their subject or profession. They will be able to demonstrate, where relevant, professional technical competence and meet professional standards. They will be able to articulate the structure of knowledge of their discipline, be able to adapt discipline-specific knowledge to novel situations, and be able to contribute from their discipline to inter-disciplinary solutions to problems.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Understand the origin, development and contemporary institutional arrangements of global trade;

- Identify the tensions between legal and non-legal issues in international trade regulations;
- Recognize multiple aspects of trade liberalization, protectionism, fair and unfair trade practices;
- Recognize concurrent global and regional trade-related problems and issues, and the ability to provide individual opinion/solution of the problems from legal point of view;
- Critically assess and analyse international trade law principles, apply relevant laws and undertake research on trade regulatory policies.

Assessment tasks

- Participation
- Presentation
- Research Assignment

Critical, Analytical and Integrative Thinking

We want our graduates to be capable of reasoning, questioning and analysing, and to integrate and synthesise learning and knowledge from a range of sources and environments; to be able to critique constraints, assumptions and limitations; to be able to think independently and systemically in relation to scholarly activity, in the workplace, and in the world. We want them to have a level of scientific and information technology literacy.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Understand the origin, development and contemporary institutional arrangements of global trade;
- Identify the tensions between legal and non-legal issues in international trade regulations;
- Recognize multiple aspects of trade liberalization, protectionism, fair and unfair trade practices;
- Recognize concurrent global and regional trade-related problems and issues, and the ability to provide individual opinion/solution of the problems from legal point of view;
- Critically assess and analyse international trade law principles, apply relevant laws and undertake research on trade regulatory policies.

Problem Solving and Research Capability

Our graduates should be capable of researching; of analysing, and interpreting and assessing data and information in various forms; of drawing connections across fields of knowledge; and they should be able to relate their knowledge to complex situations at work or in the world, in order to diagnose and solve problems. We want them to have the confidence to take the initiative in doing so, within an awareness of their own limitations.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Recognize concurrent global and regional trade-related problems and issues, and the ability to provide individual opinion/solution of the problems from legal point of view;
- Critically assess and analyse international trade law principles, apply relevant laws and undertake research on trade regulatory policies.

Assessment task

- Research Assignment

Effective Communication

We want to develop in our students the ability to communicate and convey their views in forms effective with different audiences. We want our graduates to take with them the capability to read, listen, question, gather and evaluate information resources in a variety of formats, assess, write clearly, speak effectively, and to use visual communication and communication technologies as appropriate.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Recognize multiple aspects of trade liberalization, protectionism, fair and unfair trade practices;
- Recognize concurrent global and regional trade-related problems and issues, and the ability to provide individual opinion/solution of the problems from legal point of view;
- Critically assess and analyse international trade law principles, apply relevant laws and undertake research on trade regulatory policies.

Changes from Previous Offering

The Lecture content has been re-arranged as some weeks' had too much material to be covered. The presentation is now an individual assessment task.

Research and Practice, Global and Sustainability

This unit addresses global and sustainability issues as direct areas of study and as necessary implications arising from the materials, assessment and academic discussion and debate in classes/seminars around the balance between promoting economic growth through trade and the environmental damage which can occur as a consequence of resource exploitation and pollution flowing from economic development designed to generate that economic growth. We aim to provide students with an opportunity to obtain skills which will benefit them throughout their career.

The unit convenor's published research into the tensions between trade, internet governance and cybersecurity risks is included in readings for the students. This reading was cited by the Indian government as contributing to its decision to include Data Localization principles within ss40-41 of the new Indian Personal Data Protection Bill (which will increase the level of privacy for more than one Billion people).
