Unit description
This unit introduces public international law's key principles, rules and concepts, examining how they shape contemporary international relations. It focuses on the role of the United Nations, international law as it governs treaties, the rights and responsibilities of states vis-à-vis each other, their own nationals and those of other states, the limits of state jurisdiction, state and diplomatic immunity, international dispute settlement, international use of force, international criminal law and the relationship between international law and Australia's legal system. In covering these areas students explore how international law seeks to resolve real problems facing the international community.

Important Academic Dates

Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at <https://www.mq.edu.au/study/calendar-of-dates>

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this unit, you will be able to:

Demonstrate broad and coherent knowledge of the general characteristics and principles of public international law.

Identify, find and correctly cite key primary sources of international law.

Describe the role, rights and responsibilities of both states and non-state actors under international law.

Explain and apply international law to both actual and hypothetical situations as it relates to the rights and responsibilities of states vis-a-vis other states and international institutions.

Analyse the relationship between international and national law, particularly Australian law.

Describe various means for the non-violent settlement of disputes between states.

Advise on international law taking into consideration the needs and expectations of a hypothetical client

Demonstrate professional oral arguments and analysis, and actively listen to the opinions of peers

Analyse international law from the perspective of national interests, and collaborate with peers to negotiate the terms of an international convention

General Assessment Information

Unless a Special Consideration request has been submitted and approved, (a) a penalty for lateness will apply – two (2) marks out of 100 will be deducted per day for assignments submitted after the due date – and (b) no assignment will be accepted more than seven (7) days (incl. weekends) after the original submission deadline. No late submissions will be accepted for timed assessments – e.g. quizzes, online tests.

Word limits will be strictly applied and work above the word limit will not be marked. Footnotes are only to be used for referencing. Substantive material in footnotes will not be marked.

All assessments in the unit are to be submitted electronically via Turnitin. Plagiarism detection software is used in this unit.

All assessments must be appropriately referenced, applying the Australian Guide to Legal Citation (4th ed). The Guide is available here <<http://mulr.law.unimelb.edu.au/go/AGLC3>>.

Assessments must be submitted in double line spaced text, 12 point, Times New Roman font. Headings and subheadings should be used where appropriate.

Detailed marking rubrics will be made available on iLearn. Markers in this Unit undertake a process to establish a common marking standard and all Fail papers are double marked.

Name	Weighting	Hurdle	Due
Final Assessment	30%	No	11.59 pm, 10 June 2019

Treaty Negotiation Exercise

Due: Various, see description

Weighting: 40%

Over the course of the semester, students will engage in a scaffolded treaty negotiation exercise. This exercise will be conducted online and in tutorials across the semester. This exercise will build on topics of international law as they are learnt throughout the semester, including the law of treaties, statehood and state responsibility, international dispute settlement and the relationship between domestic and international law.

Full details about this assessment will be made available on iLearn, and marking rubrics for each component of the assessment will be available. The assessment will comprise of the negotiation process itself, which will occur online and in class, (and which will comprise 20% of overall grade) and two discrete written tasks (worth 10% each).

Discrete Written Tasks

1. National Statement (worth 10%)

(Due Week 3)

Students will be allocated a state (or organisation) which they will be representing throughout the exercise. The national statement, due in week 3, will constitute of no more than 1000 words, and outline the national interests and priorities that the allocated state has on the subject matter of the treaty negotiation exercise. It should outline what the state hopes to achieve in the treaty negotiations and an acknowledgment of potential challenges during the process.

2. Reflective Statement (worth 10%)

(Due Week 13)

Students will be required to provide a reflective statement at the end of semester, outlining what they learnt during the negotiation process. This will include analysis of the ways in which procedural and substantive elements of international law impeded or aided negotiation; what roadblocks and obstacles were encountered to achieving the aims of the state or organisation represented; the role that politics played in the negotiations; compromises made, etc. This reflective statement should be supported throughout by reflections of the relevance of your readings to the task.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Demonstrate broad and coherent knowledge of the general characteristics and principles of public international law.
- Describe the role, rights and responsibilities of both states and non-state actors under international law.

- Demonstrate professional oral arguments and analysis, and actively listen to the opinions of peers
- Analyse international law from the perspective of national interests, and collaborate with peers to negotiate the terms of an international convention

Research Paper

Due: 11.59 pm, 1 May 2019

Weighting: 30%

Students will write a 2,000-word answer in relation to a hypothetical request for legal advice on an international law issue. The answer will require demonstrated research and critical application of international law principles. The specific question, guidance on how to succeed in this exercise, along with the marking rubric, will be posted online at the time of the question's release. The assignment may relate to issues covered in Topics 1 – 8 (inclusive).

Date for release of question: 13 March 2019

Deadline for student submission: 11.59 pm, 1 May 2019

Unless a Special Consideration request has been submitted and approved, (a) a penalty for lateness will apply – two marks out of 100 will be deducted per day for answers submitted after the due date – and (b) no answers will be accepted more than seven days (incl. weekends) after the original submission deadline.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Demonstrate broad and coherent knowledge of the general characteristics and principles of public international law.
- Identify, find and correctly cite key primary sources of international law.
- Describe the role, rights and responsibilities of both states and non-state actors under international law.
- Explain and apply international law to both actual and hypothetical situations as it relates to the rights and responsibilities of states vis-a-vis other states and international institutions.
- Analyse the relationship between international and national law, particularly Australian law.
- Describe various means for the non-violent settlement of disputes between states.
- Advise on international law taking into consideration the needs and expectations of a hypothetical client

Final Assessment

Due: 11.59 pm, 10 June 2019

Weighting: 30%

Date for release of question: 10 am, 7th June 2019

Deadline for student submission: 11.59 pm 10th June 2019

There will be a final timed assessment. This will involve advising in relation to one or more hypothetical fact scenarios, doing so under a strict time constraint. Details of the hypothetical scenario(s) and the assessment questions will be released online via iLearn. The word limit for this assessment is 2000 words. The hypothetical may apply to any topic covered over the course of the semester.

This is a timed assessment and no late submissions will be accepted. This assessment task is based on a universal design principle, and has incorporated reasonable accommodations.

Students that receive special consideration will be given a supplementary assessment outside of similar length and duration.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Demonstrate broad and coherent knowledge of the general characteristics and principles of public international law.
- Identify, find and correctly cite key primary sources of international law.
- Describe the role, rights and responsibilities of both states and non-state actors under international law.
- Explain and apply international law to both actual and hypothetical situations as it relates to the rights and responsibilities of states vis-a-vis other states and international institutions.
- Analyse the relationship between international and national law, particularly Australian law.
- Describe various means for the non-violent settlement of disputes between states.
- Advise on international law taking into consideration the needs and expectations of a hypothetical client

Delivery and Resources

Readings

The lectures should give you a broad overview of the subject, but it is vital that you then develop your understanding by completing the related readings. The prescribed textbook for this unit is:

- Malcolm Evans, International Law, 5th Edition (2018, Cambridge University Press)

Other readings, both essential and recommended will be provided via Leganto and accessible from iLearn.

In addition to the secondary sources (book chapters, journal articles, etc), you are expected to consult relevant primary legal sources (treaties, draft articles, cases, etc) as much as possible. It should be evident to you from the lectures and secondary sources which primary sources (and which parts of those primary sources) are most important. You will need to consult primary sources in order to complete assignments. All relevant primary sources are available online and you are expected to have sufficient research skills to locate and download them.

Graduate Capabilities

Creative and Innovative

Our graduates will also be capable of creative thinking and of creating knowledge. They will be imaginative and open to experience and capable of innovation at work and in the community. We want them to be engaged in applying their critical, creative thinking.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcome

- Analyse international law from the perspective of national interests, and collaborate with peers to negotiate the terms of an international convention

Capable of Professional and Personal Judgement and Initiative

We want our graduates to have emotional intelligence and sound interpersonal skills and to demonstrate discernment and common sense in their professional and personal judgement. They will exercise initiative as needed. They will be capable of risk assessment, and be able to handle ambiguity and complexity, enabling them to be adaptable in diverse and changing environments.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Demonstrate professional oral arguments and analysis, and actively listen to the opinions of peers
- Analyse international law from the perspective of national interests, and collaborate with peers to negotiate the terms of an international convention

Assessment tasks

- Treaty Negotiation Exercise
- Research Paper

Discipline Specific Knowledge and Skills

Our graduates will take with them the intellectual development, depth and breadth of knowledge, scholarly understanding, and specific subject content in their chosen fields to make them competent and confident in their subject or profession. They will be able to demonstrate, where relevant, professional technical competence and meet professional standards. They will be able to articulate the structure of knowledge of their discipline, be able to adapt discipline-specific knowledge to novel situations, and be able to contribute from their discipline to inter-disciplinary solutions to problems.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Demonstrate broad and coherent knowledge of the general characteristics and principles of public international law.
- Identify, find and correctly cite key primary sources of international law.
- Describe the role, rights and responsibilities of both states and non-state actors under international law.
- Explain and apply international law to both actual and hypothetical situations as it relates to the rights and responsibilities of states vis-a-vis other states and international institutions.
- Analyse the relationship between international and national law, particularly Australian law.

- Describe various means for the non-violent settlement of disputes between states.
- Advise on international law taking into consideration the needs and expectations of a hypothetical client

Assessment tasks

- Treaty Negotiation Exercise
- Research Paper
- Final Assessment

Critical, Analytical and Integrative Thinking

We want our graduates to be capable of reasoning, questioning and analysing, and to integrate and synthesise learning and knowledge from a range of sources and environments; to be able to critique constraints, assumptions and limitations; to be able to think independently and systemically in relation to scholarly activity, in the workplace, and in the world. We want them to have a level of scientific and information technology literacy.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcome

- Analyse international law from the perspective of national interests, and collaborate with peers to negotiate the terms of an international convention

Assessment tasks

- Treaty Negotiation Exercise
- Research Paper
- Final Assessment

Problem Solving and Research Capability

Our graduates should be capable of researching; of analysing, and interpreting and assessing data and information in various forms; of drawing connections across fields of knowledge; and they should be able to relate their knowledge to complex situations at work or in the world, in order to diagnose and solve problems. We want them to have the confidence to take the initiative in doing so, within an awareness of their own limitations.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Identify, find and correctly cite key primary sources of international law.
- Explain and apply international law to both actual and hypothetical situations as it relates to the rights and responsibilities of states vis-a-vis other states and international institutions.
- Analyse the relationship between international and national law, particularly Australian law.

- Describe various means for the non-violent settlement of disputes between states.
- Advise on international law taking into consideration the needs and expectations of a hypothetical client

Assessment tasks

- Research Paper
- Final Assessment

Effective Communication

We want to develop in our students the ability to communicate and convey their views in forms effective with different audiences. We want our graduates to take with them the capability to read, listen, question, gather and evaluate information resources in a variety of formats, assess, write clearly, speak effectively, and to use visual communication and communication technologies as appropriate.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Demonstrate professional oral arguments and analysis, and actively listen to the opinions of peers
- Analyse international law from the perspective of national interests, and collaborate with peers to negotiate the terms of an international convention

Assessment tasks

- Treaty Negotiation Exercise
- Final Assessment

Engaged and Ethical Local and Global citizens

As local citizens our graduates will be aware of indigenous perspectives and of the nation's historical context. They will be engaged with the challenges of contemporary society and with knowledge and ideas. We want our graduates to have respect for diversity, to be open-minded, sensitive to others and inclusive, and to be open to other cultures and perspectives: they should have a level of cultural literacy. Our graduates should be aware of disadvantage and social justice, and be willing to participate to help create a wiser and better society.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Explain and apply international law to both actual and hypothetical situations as it relates to the rights and responsibilities of states vis-a-vis other states and international institutions.

- Analyse international law from the perspective of national interests, and collaborate with peers to negotiate the terms of an international convention

Assessment tasks

- Treaty Negotiation Exercise
- Research Paper

Socially and Environmentally Active and Responsible

We want our graduates to be aware of and have respect for self and others; to be able to work with others as a leader and a team player; to have a sense of connectedness with others and country; and to have a sense of mutual obligation. Our graduates should be informed and active participants in moving society towards sustainability.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcome

- Analyse international law from the perspective of national interests, and collaborate with peers to negotiate the terms of an international convention

Changes from Previous Offering

The following changes have been made since the last offering in Session 1, 2018:

1. The use of a new textbook, Malcolm N Shaw, International Law
2. The introduction of live lectures
3. The removal of citation quizzes
4. The shift from a 3 hour exam to a 4 day timed assessment
