Unit description

It is an understatement to say that relations between Islam and the West are a major source of political debate in the early 20th century. From September 11 to the London bombings of 2007 to a CIA 'rendition' of 'terror suspects' to dark East European torture chambers - the politics of the West's response to Islam remains one of the central issues of our time. This unit sets these debates and conflicts in the proper historical context, going back as far as the Crusades of the early part of the 2nd millennia, and taking us right through to the present. What is behind the rise of islamaphobia? Is there an irreconcilable conflict between Western 'rules' and Islam around questions such as democracy, human rights, the law and science? How does the West compare with Islam in its treatment of women? Is the Western capitalist economy and its ritualistic emphasis on individual self-enrichment incompatible with the egalitarian spirit of Islam? If 'mainstream' Western values and 'mainstream' Islamic beliefs are not that different, then why the conflicts today?

Important Academic Dates

Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at <https://www.mq.edu.au/study/calendar-of-dates>

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this unit, you will be able to:

- D. The ability to recognise different methodological, ideological and epistemological approaches to studying Islamic and 'Western' cultures, i.e. idealism versus materialism, cultural essentialization versus constructivist approaches to culture.
- A. The ability examine and deconstruct ideological and discursive depictions of Muslims' interaction with the 'Western world' by examining political and economic issues like class, colonisation and imperialism.
- B. A systematic and historical analysis of the relationship between the 'Muslim world' and the 'West'
- C. The ability to critically assess self-righteous and self-serving Eurocentric and orientalist claims about what it is to be European in the 21st century, and to identify the continuities between European societies and majority-Muslim countries
- E. A critical deconstruction and analysis of the supposed unity of cultural and 'civilisational' units like the 'Islamic world' or the West.
- F. The capacity to determine the interplay, if any, between discourse, ideology, structures and agency in shaping the interaction between Islam and the west

General Assessment Information

Late Submission Penalty

Unless a Special Consideration request has been submitted and approved, (a) a penalty for lateness will apply – two (2) marks out of 100 will be deducted per day for assignments submitted after the due date – and (b) no assignment will be accepted more than seven (7) days (incl. weekends) after the original submission deadline. No late submissions will be accepted for timed assessments – e.g. quizzes, online tests.

Assessment Tasks

Name	Weighting	Hurdle	Due
Tutorial Participation	15%	No	ongoing
Mid Semester Exam (Open Book)	40%	Yes	Week 7 (variable)
Final Essay	45%	No	Ongoing

Tutorial Participation

Due: ongoing

Weighting: 15%

Students enrolling in an on-campus course are expected to attend lectures and tutorials. They should be prepared to commit approximately 10 hours per week for each course. These 10 hours include lecture and tutorial attendance, undertaking weekly readings, miscellaneous study activities and assignment preparation and completion.

Tutorial topics will follow one week after lectures. The emphasis in tutorials will be upon group discussion (advancing and defending arguments orally), exploration of current issues, and practical exercises. The tutorials provide an opportunity to make connections between the broad principles and theories covered in lectures and contemporary political issues and events.

Tutorials provide the opportunity to ask questions about things you do not understand and to challenge things with which you do not agree. In preparation for each tutorial you are expected to read as widely as possible and to keep abreast of current affairs in order to contribute meaningfully to weekly discussions. Remember, attendance is not a synonym for participation, so you will be graded accordingly!

On successful completion you will be able to:

- D. The ability to recognise different methodological, ideological and epistemological approaches to studying Islamic and 'Western' cultures, i.e. idealism versus materialism, cultural essentialization versus constructivist approaches to culture.
- A. The ability examine and deconstruct ideological and discursive depictions of Muslims' interaction with the 'Western world' by examining political and economic issues like class, colonisation and imperialism.
- B. A systematic and historical analysis of the relationship between the 'Muslim world' and the 'West'
- C. The ability to critically assess self-righteous and self-serving Eurocentric and orientalist claims about what it is to be European in the 21st century, and to identify the continuities between European societies and majority-Muslim countries
- E. A critical deconstruction and analysis of the supposed unity of cultural and 'civilisational' units like the 'Islamic world' or the West.
- F. The capacity to determine the interplay, if any, between discourse, ideology, structures and agency in shaping the interaction between Islam and the west

Mid Semester Exam (Open Book)

Due: Week 7 (variable)

Weighting: 40%

This is a hurdle assessment task (see assessment policy for more information on hurdle assessment tasks)

A one-hour in-class test will be held in week 7 on the material covered in the first 6 weeks of the course.

External students will login to ilearn during the allocated time to complete the one hour exam. Time will be given during the lecture.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- D. The ability to recognise different methodological, ideological and epistemological approaches to studying Islamic and 'Western' cultures, i.e. idealism versus materialism, cultural essentialization versus constructivist approaches to culture.
- A. The ability examine and deconstruct ideological and discursive depictions of Muslims' interaction with the 'Western world' by examining political and economic issues like class, colonisation and imperialism.
- B. A systematic and historical analysis of the relationship between the 'Muslim world' and the 'West'
- C. The ability to critically assess self-righteous and self-serving Eurocentric and orientalist claims about what it is to be European in the 21st century, and to identify the continuities between European societies and majority-Muslim countries
- F. The capacity to determine the interplay, if any, between discourse, ideology, structures and agency in shaping the interaction between Islam and the west

Final Essay

Due: Ongoing

Weighting: 45%

The major essay is due Friday 31st May. The essay length is 2500 words (10% above and below allowed- nothing more) [including footnotes and bibliography]

-Essay questions will be given to students during Week 3 lecture.

Submission of Essays

All essays are to be submitted through turn-it-in on the ilearn website. Please remember to have your name, tutorial time, page number on each journal submission.

There will be strictly NO extensions on submission deadlines for essays other than on certified medical grounds. Late submissions of essays will be penalised at the rate of 2 marks a day. For example, if you submit your essay 3 days late, and if the paper would have normally been awarded a 75 (out of 100), then 6 marks will be deducted, resulting in 69 as the final grade for the paper.

All work submitted for this course will be graded according to the guidelines issued by the Department of Modern History, Politics and International Relations which are attached at the end of this course guide. Also, rubrics will be made available for the journals and essays.

There will be no written examination at the end of the semester.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- A. The ability examine and deconstruct ideological and discursive depictions of Muslims' interaction with the 'Western world' by examining political and economic issues like class, colonisation and imperialism.
- B. A systematic and historical analysis of the relationship between the 'Muslim world' and the 'West'
- C. The ability to critically assess self-righteous and self-serving Eurocentric and orientalist claims about what it is to be European in the 21st century, and to identify the continuities between European societies and majority-Muslim countries
- E. A critical deconstruction and analysis of the supposed unity of cultural and 'civilisational' units like the 'Islamic world' or the West.
- F. The capacity to determine the interplay, if any, between discourse, ideology, structures and agency in shaping the interaction between Islam and the west

Effective Communication

We want to develop in our students the ability to communicate and convey their views in forms effective with different audiences. We want our graduates to take with them the capability to read, listen, question, gather and evaluate information resources in a variety of formats, assess, write clearly, speak effectively, and to use visual communication and communication technologies as appropriate.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- D. The ability to recognise different methodological, ideological and epistemological approaches to studying Islamic and 'Western' cultures, i.e. idealism versus materialism, cultural essentialization versus constructivist approaches to culture.
- A. The ability examine and deconstruct ideological and discursive depictions of Muslims' interaction with the 'Western world' by examining political and economic issues like class, colonisation and imperialism.

Engaged and Ethical Local and Global citizens

As local citizens our graduates will be aware of indigenous perspectives and of the nation's historical context. They will be engaged with the challenges of contemporary society and with knowledge and ideas. We want our graduates to have respect for diversity, to be open-minded, sensitive to others and inclusive, and to be open to other cultures and perspectives: they should have a level of cultural literacy. Our graduates should be aware of disadvantage and social justice, and be willing to participate to help create a wiser and better society.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- D. The ability to recognise different methodological, ideological and epistemological approaches to studying Islamic and 'Western' cultures, i.e. idealism versus materialism, cultural essentialization versus constructivist approaches to culture.
- B. A systematic and historical analysis of the relationship between the 'Muslim world' and the 'West'

Socially and Environmentally Active and Responsible

We want our graduates to be aware of and have respect for self and others; to be able to work with others as a leader and a team player; to have a sense of connectedness with others and country; and to have a sense of mutual obligation. Our graduates should be informed and active participants in moving society towards sustainability.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- D. The ability to recognise different methodological, ideological and epistemological approaches to studying Islamic and 'Western' cultures, i.e. idealism versus materialism, cultural essentialization versus constructivist approaches to culture.
