Unit description

In this unit we investigate linkages between collective attitudes towards immigrants and public decision-making in this field from the local to the global level. The unit adopts a comparative perspective and puts Australia's contemporary experience in context. We will first clarify terminology so as to better understand our object of study. We will then ask the following questions: To what extent is immigration a contentious issue for voters in various countries? How does immigration policy work at the level of cities, subnational and federal states, as well as in the international arena? What is the role of the media and that of researchers in immigration politics and policy? The unit seeks to provide students with tools allowing them to develop their conceptual and analytical skills and meaningfully engage with current scholarly and public debates on immigration politics and policy.

Important Academic Dates

Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at <https://www.mq.edu.au/study/calendar-of-dates>

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this unit, you will be able to:

- A. Critically engage with the core concepts, analytical tools, problems and characteristics of immigration politics and policies;
- B. Develop an understanding of the main international, national and local public policy actors in the field of immigration policy and of their interrelations;
- C. Develop skills allowing to propose well-articulated and evidence-based arguments drawing from a wide range of sources;
- D. Develop skills allowing to communicate research findings to a variety of audiences verbally, orally, and visually, including unit peers, researchers and policy-makers.

General Assessment Information

Successful completion of the unit requires submission of all assignments. Attendance to lectures is very strongly encouraged.

All assignments must be submitted electronically on ilearn. No paper copies of assignments are required, however I strongly encourage you to save your work on multiple devices/in the cloud. Loss of work due to the existence of only one copy that got lost during a faulty software update will not be accepted as a justification for late submission.

Marking rubrics as well as additional assignment explanations will be made available on ilearn at the beginning of the semester.

Extensions will only be granted in exceptional circumstances, and will require documentary evidence such as a medical certificate to support the request for an extension. You should contact the convenor as early as possible if you think you may need an extension.

Late Submission Penalty

Unless a Special Consideration request has been submitted and approved, (a) a penalty for lateness will apply – two (2) marks out of 100 will be deducted per day for assignments submitted after the due date – and (b) no assignment will be accepted more than seven (7) days (incl. weekends) after the original submission deadline. No late submissions will be accepted for timed assessments – e.g. quizzes, online tests.

Graduate Capabilities

Creative and Innovative

Our graduates will also be capable of creative thinking and of creating knowledge. They will be imaginative and open to experience and capable of innovation at work and in the community. We want them to be engaged in applying their critical, creative thinking.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- B. Develop an understanding of the main international, national and local public policy actors in the field of immigration policy and of their interrelations;
- C. Develop skills allowing to propose well-articulated and evidence-based arguments drawing from a wide range of sources;
- D. Develop skills allowing to communicate research findings to a variety of audiences verbally, orally, and visually, including unit peers, researchers and policy-makers.

Assessment tasks

- Weekly in-lecture quizzes
- Tutorial Participation
- Short reflection
- Essay

Capable of Professional and Personal Judgement and Initiative

We want our graduates to have emotional intelligence and sound interpersonal skills and to demonstrate discernment and common sense in their professional and personal judgement.

They will exercise initiative as needed. They will be capable of risk assessment, and be able to handle ambiguity and complexity, enabling them to be adaptable in diverse and changing environments.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- A. Critically engage with the core concepts, analytical tools, problems and characteristics of immigration politics and policies;
- B. Develop an understanding of the main international, national and local public policy actors in the field of immigration policy and of their interrelations;
- C. Develop skills allowing to propose well-articulated and evidence-based arguments drawing from a wide range of sources;
- D. Develop skills allowing to communicate research findings to a variety of audiences verbally, orally, and visually, including unit peers, researchers and policy-makers.

Assessment tasks

- Weekly in-lecture quizzes
- Tutorial Participation
- Short reflection

Discipline Specific Knowledge and Skills

Our graduates will take with them the intellectual development, depth and breadth of knowledge, scholarly understanding, and specific subject content in their chosen fields to make them competent and confident in their subject or profession. They will be able to demonstrate, where relevant, professional technical competence and meet professional standards. They will be able to articulate the structure of knowledge of their discipline, be able to adapt discipline-specific knowledge to novel situations, and be able to contribute from their discipline to inter-disciplinary solutions to problems.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- A. Critically engage with the core concepts, analytical tools, problems and characteristics of immigration politics and policies;
- B. Develop an understanding of the main international, national and local public policy actors in the field of immigration policy and of their interrelations;
- C. Develop skills allowing to propose well-articulated and evidence-based arguments drawing from a wide range of sources;

Problem Solving and Research Capability

Our graduates should be capable of researching; of analysing, and interpreting and assessing data and information in various forms; of drawing connections across fields of knowledge; and they should be able to relate their knowledge to complex situations at work or in the world, in order to diagnose and solve problems. We want them to have the confidence to take the initiative in doing so, within an awareness of their own limitations.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- A. Critically engage with the core concepts, analytical tools, problems and characteristics of immigration politics and policies;
- C. Develop skills allowing to propose well-articulated and evidence-based arguments drawing from a wide range of sources;
- D. Develop skills allowing to communicate research findings to a variety of audiences verbally, orally, and visually, including unit peers, researchers and policy-makers.

Assessment tasks

Effective Communication

We want to develop in our students the ability to communicate and convey their views in forms effective with different audiences. We want our graduates to take with them the capability to read, listen, question, gather and evaluate information resources in a variety of formats, assess, write clearly, speak effectively, and to use visual communication and communication technologies as appropriate.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- C. Develop skills allowing to propose well-articulated and evidence-based arguments drawing from a wide range of sources;
- D. Develop skills allowing to communicate research findings to a variety of audiences verbally, orally, and visually, including unit peers, researchers and policy-makers.

Engaged and Ethical Local and Global citizens

As local citizens our graduates will be aware of indigenous perspectives and of the nation's historical context. They will be engaged with the challenges of contemporary society and with knowledge and ideas. We want our graduates to have respect for diversity, to be open-minded, sensitive to others and inclusive, and to be open to other cultures and perspectives: they should have a level of cultural literacy. Our graduates should be aware of disadvantage and social justice, and be willing to participate to help create a wiser and better society.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- A. Critically engage with the core concepts, analytical tools, problems and characteristics of immigration politics and policies;
- B. Develop an understanding of the main international, national and local public policy actors in the field of immigration policy and of their interrelations;
- C. Develop skills allowing to propose well-articulated and evidence-based arguments drawing from a wide range of sources;

Socially and Environmentally Active and Responsible

We want our graduates to be aware of and have respect for self and others; to be able to work with others as a leader and a team player; to have a sense of connectedness with others and country; and to have a sense of mutual obligation. Our graduates should be informed and active participants in moving society towards sustainability.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- A. Critically engage with the core concepts, analytical tools, problems and characteristics of immigration politics and policies;
- B. Develop an understanding of the main international, national and local public policy actors in the field of immigration policy and of their interrelations;
- C. Develop skills allowing to propose well-articulated and evidence-based arguments drawing from a wide range of sources;

Changes from Previous Offering

In response to student feedback:

- weekly quizzes have been introduced to encourage attendance and participation in lectures, stronger and semester-long engagement with required readings and lecture material
- submission of an essay plan has been introduced to foster assignment planning and productive engagement with feedback
- topics have been amended and lectures will be specifically dedicated to Australia as a case study, to refugee policy and to international students and higher education policy.
