Unit description

We live in an age of super-diversity. Like Canada, the US, and the UK, Australia's major cities are now home to people from all corners of the globe. In a time of resurgent nationalisms, there is hardly a more urgent task than learning to coexist with cultural and religious difference. Drawing on examples from a range of national contexts, this unit explores the complexities of co-existence in an age of global diversity. The first part of this unit will explore current debates around superdiversity and global cities; the sociology of migrant settlement, social mobility and inequalities; and different models of multiculturalism across the western world. The attention then shifts to everyday multiculturalism and the lived experience of religious and cultural difference. The second part of the unit examines the sociology of race, discrimination and racism – from the structural to the everyday. We will explore what sociology has to say about the surge in national populisms and the rise of the far right and why it is that race, immigration and Islam so commonly animate such movements. We will also consider the role of social media in this resurgence. Finally, the unit explores anti-racism and the tools available to challenge discrimination, and students will be introduced to concepts surrounding post-colonial sociology.

Important Academic Dates

Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at <https://www.mq.edu.au/study/calendar-of-dates>

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this unit, you will be able to:

Be familiar with sociological concepts of race, ethnicity, racism, multiculturalism, nationalism, populism.

Demonstrate knowledge of scholarly and public debates concerning the sociology of nation, ethnicity, multiculturalism, race and racism and migrant settlement.

Be able to engage in the nuances of these debates as demonstrated in classroom discussion and assignments.

Be able to source and engage with and critically assess news coverage and opinion pieces on these topics.

Be able to critically reflect on social media 'storms' around the topics of religion, race, Islam, racism, populism, nationalism, migration.

General Assessment Information

WORD LIMITS: Word limits DO NOT include bibliography. You may be +/- 10% word limit.

LATE PENALTY: Unless a Special Consideration request has been submitted and approved, (a) a penalty for lateness will apply – two (2) marks out of 100 will be deducted per day for assignments submitted after the due date – and (b) no assignment will be accepted more than seven (7) days (incl. weekends) after the original submission deadline. No late submissions will be accepted for timed assessments – e.g. quizzes, online tests.

ASSIGNMENT EXTENSIONS: Will only be granted via a formal special consideration application.

PARTICIPATION ASSESSMENT: You are required to participate in 80% of the seminars to pass. In practice, this means that you may only miss 2 tutorials in a semester. Further absences must be cleared via an application for special consideration as above.

Assessment Tasks

Name	Weighting	Hurdle	Due
Weekly Reading/Listening	15%	No	Weekly
Seminar participation	15%	No	Ongoing
Research Essay	40%	No	Week 12
Reflection	30%	No	Week 11

Weekly Reading/Listening

Due: Weekly

Weighting: 15%

From weeks 2-11 students are required to bring a 1/2 to one page summary of the key points and arguments for set readings.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Be familiar with sociological concepts of race, ethnicity, racism, multiculturalism, nationalism, populism.
- Demonstrate knowledge of scholarly and public debates concerning the sociology of nation, ethnicity, multiculturalism, race and racism and migrant settlement.
- Be able to engage in the nuances of these debates as demonstrated in classroom discussion and assignments.
- Be able to source and engage with and critically assess news coverage and opinion pieces on these topics.
- Be able to critically reflect on social media 'storms' around the topics of religion, race, Islam, racism, populism, nationalism, migration.

Seminar participation

Due: Ongoing

Weighting: 15%

Participation is a major component of the unit. It is measured in two ways: The frequency and quality of student participation in seminars, and submission of a weekly reading/viewing/listening summary and reflection.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Be familiar with sociological concepts of race, ethnicity, racism, multiculturalism, nationalism, populism.
- Demonstrate knowledge of scholarly and public debates concerning the sociology of nation, ethnicity, multiculturalism, race and racism and migrant settlement.
- Be able to engage in the nuances of these debates as demonstrated in classroom discussion and assignments.
- Be able to source and engage with and critically assess news coverage and opinion pieces on these topics.
- Be able to critically reflect on social media 'storms' around the topics of religion, race, Islam, racism, populism, nationalism, migration.

Research Essay

Due: Week 12

Weighting: 40%

Written research essay based on set questions drawn from key weeks in the unit.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Be familiar with sociological concepts of race, ethnicity, racism, multiculturalism, nationalism, populism.
- Demonstrate knowledge of scholarly and public debates concerning the sociology of nation, ethnicity, multiculturalism, race and racism and migrant settlement.

Engaged and Ethical Local and Global citizens

As local citizens our graduates will be aware of indigenous perspectives and of the nation's historical context. They will be engaged with the challenges of contemporary society and with knowledge and ideas. We want our graduates to have respect for diversity, to be open-minded, sensitive to others and inclusive, and to be open to other cultures and perspectives: they should have a level of cultural literacy. Our graduates should be aware of disadvantage and social justice, and be willing to participate to help create a wiser and better society.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Be familiar with sociological concepts of race, ethnicity, racism, multiculturalism, nationalism, populism.
- Demonstrate knowledge of scholarly and public debates concerning the sociology of nation, ethnicity, multiculturalism, race and racism and migrant settlement.
