Unit description

This unit examines the crucial roles that forensic media play in news media organisation. It offers a brief history of the historical emergence of forensic media, tracking the development of the police mug shot, forensic photography and the establishment of criminal archives. It then examines the broad spectrum of contemporary technologies that are shaping the field of forensic media, including: forensic typical body charts, biometrics and other border technologies, satellite imaging, CCTV, interoperable networks and megadata surveillance, drones, Twitter, Instagram, thermal imaging and emergent technologies. Forensic technologies have now become foundational for news organisations in order for them to illustrate and evidence their news stories – from mobile phone apps such as Metadata news feed to record and communicate secretive drone strikes to satellite imaging to evidence unfolding humanitarian crises. This unit places forensic media within news media contexts in order to address the ethical, geopolitical and social questions that the use of such media raises.

Important Academic Dates

Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at https://students.mq.edu.au/important-dates

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this unit, you will be able to:
1. Demonstrate research and evaluative skills that will enable students to understand the historical, political and technological forces that have been constitutive in the emergence of forensic media.

2. Apply critical and analytical skills in the examination and evaluation of the key concepts and arguments that underpin the use of forensic media across different platforms and news organisations.

3. Compare and assess local and international perspectives on forensic media.

4. Apply critical argumentation skills in order to articulate and evidence different viewpoints on the social, geopolitical and ethical uses of forensic media.

5. Integrate interpretive and communication skills in order effectively to convey the key ideas, issues and disciplinary debates on the use of forensic media across diverse platforms and contexts.

6. Apply ethical and socially responsible skills that demonstrate the ability to analyse and reflect on the ethical implications generated by the uses of forensic media in their respective geopolitical contexts.

General Assessment Information

Attendance Expectations:

Students are expected to attend all tutorials for MECO331. Tutorials are not optional: they deliver important content and are a central component of meeting the learning outcomes in this unit. Students who elect to not attend tutorials will miss out on unit content and learning activities, and do so at their own risk.

Students are expected to attend (or, if the streaming option is selected, watch online) all lectures for MECO331. Lectures are not optional: they deliver important content and are a central component of meeting the learning outcomes in this unit. Students who elect to not attend/watch lectures will miss out on unit content, and do so at their own risk.

Feedback:

Feedback in this unit is available in multiple forms: informal feedback through the ‘announcement’ function in iLearn, if there are points of relevance to the whole class; in email communication with individual students by the convenor in response to questions related to unit activities; in personal consultations by phone or face to face as requested by appointment; as general comment, rubric and in-text comments attached to assignments marked in Turnitin.

Provisions of Examples of Work:

Examples of relevant and related assessment tasks will be made available on iLearn and will be discussed in tutorials.

Tutorial Presentation

Due: On assigned tutorial date
Weighting: 25%

Oral presentation of a tutorial paper based on the student’s chosen tutorial topic: minimum 15 minutes presentation. Create a tutorial presentation based on a chosen tutorial topic. Discuss the key issues and arguments of the topic as outlined in the relevant readings. Illustrate your topic with reference to relevant news, videos, political events and so on. Students are required to:

1. address in detail the key issues raised by the week's tutorial readings;
2. evidence and illustrate all their arguments and assertions;
3. ask the class topic-related questions and generate discussion. NB: Generating class discussion is a crucial component of this assessment.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- 1. Demonstrate research and evaluative skills that will enable students to understand the historical, political and technological forces that have been constitutive in the emergence of forensic media.
- 2. Apply critical and analytical skills in the examination and evaluation of the key concepts and arguments that underpin the use of forensic media across different platforms and news organisations.
- 3. Compare and assess local and international perspectives on forensic media.
- 4. Apply critical argumentation skills in order to articulate and evidence different viewpoints on the social, geopolitical and ethical uses of forensic media.
- 5. Integrate interpretive and communication skills in order effectively to convey the key ideas, issues and disciplinary debates on the use of forensic media across diverse platforms and contexts.
- 6. Apply ethical and socially responsible skills that demonstrate the ability to analyse and reflect on the ethical implications generated by the uses of forensic media in their respective geopolitical contexts.

On-course Essay
Due: 1 week after presentation
Weighting: 25%

Your On-Course essay must be a minimum of 1,500 words in length. It is due one week after your tutorial presentation.

In your on-course essay, you are required to develop the oral presentation you presented to the class into a formal essay, with an introduction, body and conclusion.

You will be required to:

1. Outline in your introduction the key arguments you will map in the course of your essay.
2. Discuss in detail in the body of your essay the key ideas and issues raised in the week's readings.
3. Deploy the theories used in the relevant tutorial readings in order to analyse and discuss the relevant forensic media you are analysing.
4. Support, through relevant evidence, all your arguments and assertions.
5. Supply a conclusion to your key arguments.

On successful completion you will be able to:

• 1. Demonstrate research and evaluative skills that will enable students to understand the historical, political and technological forces that have been constitutive in the emergence of forensic media.
• 2. Apply critical and analytical skills in the examination and evaluation of the key concepts and arguments that underpin the use of forensic media across different platforms and news organisations.
• 3. Compare and assess local and international perspectives on forensic media.
• 4. Apply critical argumentation skills in order to articulate and evidence different viewpoints on the social, geopolitical and ethical uses of forensic media.
• 5. Integrate interpretive and communication skills in order effectively to convey the key ideas, issues and disciplinary debates on the use of forensic media across diverse platforms and contexts.
• 6. Apply ethical and socially responsible skills that demonstrate the ability to analyse and reflect on the ethical implications generated by the uses of forensic media in their respective geopolitical contexts.
Final Essay

Due: 6 November 2019

Weighting: 50%

Due Date: Wednesday 6 November 2019. Time deadline: 5pm. Weight: 50%

Word Length: 2000 words

A final essay in-lieu of an examination is the third part of this unit’s assessment. Students are required to select one essay question from the list of questions below. Your essay question, however, cannot be based on the same topic as your tutorial presentation/essay. In their essay, students must draw on the critical and theoretical material discussed in the lectures and provided in the Unit Reader.

NB: Do not write on the same topic that you used for your seminar presentation.

In the Final Essay, students will be required to:

1. Outline in your introduction the key arguments you will map in the course of your essay.
2. Discuss in detail in the body of your essay the key ideas and issues raised by the essay question.
3. Deploy the theories used in the relevant tutorial readings in order to analyse and discuss the relevant forensic media you are analysing.
4. Support, through relevant evidence, all your arguments and assertions.
5. Supply a conclusion to your key arguments.

FINAL ESSAY QUESTIONS

1. Forensic culture is an epistemic culture, that is, it is a culture of knowledge: it produces knowledge about criminal acts or events. Identify and discuss in detail the key attributes that define the cultural attributes of the discipline of forensics. Evidence your answer with concrete examples from the field of forensics.

2. Forensics prides itself on being a science. Yet, in fact, it also critically constituted by aesthetic, rhetorical, narratological and interpretative dimensions. Discuss.

3. Precisely because forensics is framed as offering evidentiary information about an event or a crime, it has been seized by the mainstream media as an important source of information that can inform both its news gathering practices and its production of news stories. Discuss.

4. Discuss the racialised history and contemporary racial politics of forensic ‘typical body’ charts.

5. What are the key issues that Kathryn Biber raises in relation to the visual evidence available in crime’s archive. In your answer, be sure to discuss questions of open access, resulting unintended consequences of public access of sensitive material and the issue of ‘open justice.’

6. Drawing on Peter Doyle’s ‘Public eye, private eye: Sydney police mug shots, 1912-1930’ essay, examine the ‘relationship between the subjects of archival police “mug shots” and the photographic apparatus,’ with a particular focus on ‘those aspects of display and expression of selfhood apparent in the subjects brought before the police photographer.’

7. What are the key problematics of using CCTV images for forensic purposes? In your answer, be sure to discuss the scientific, philosophical and ethical dimensions of this type of forensic use of CCTV images and to ground your analysis in the context of concrete examples.

8. Drawing on one or more of the cases from the Deathscapes project, discuss in analytical detail how the settler-colonial state structurally produces Indigenous deaths in custody.

9. Drawing on one or more of the cases from the Deathscapes project, discuss in analytical detail the relations of power that are critical in producing deaths of refugees and asylum seekers at the border and in immigration detention prisons. In your answer, be sure to discuss the relation between settler-colonial sovereignty and the militarised control of the border.

10. How does forensic genetics at once validate the question of identity and put it in question?

11. What is the ‘CSI effect’ and what is its impact on the judicial process, juries, policy debates and public understandings of law?

12. What are the key issues that arise in using non-fiction in order to write about true crime? You need to discuss in detail the social, ethical and aesthetic questions that such non-fiction true crime writing generates.

13. Discuss both the positive and negative dimensions generated by the use of drone media.

14. How has social media revolutionised crisis mapping? Be sure to ground your analysis in detailed and concrete examples.

15. How has social media permanently changed the reporting of war, humanitarian and environmental disasters and other significant events?

16. Construct your own essay question. Be sure to consult with your tutor and to get their approval on the final version of your essay question.
On successful completion you will be able to:

1. Demonstrate research and evaluative skills that will enable students to understand the historical, political and technological forces that have been constitutive in the emergence of forensic media.

2. Apply critical and analytical skills in the examination and evaluation of the key concepts and arguments that underpin the use of forensic media across different platforms and news organisations.

3. Compare and assess local and international perspectives on forensic media.

4. Apply critical argumentation skills in order to articulate and evidence different viewpoints on the social, geopolitical and ethical uses of forensic media.

5. Integrate interpretive and communication skills in order effectively to convey the key ideas, issues and disciplinary debates on the use of forensic media across diverse platforms and contexts.

6. Apply ethical and socially responsible skills that demonstrate the ability to analyse and reflect on the ethical implications generated by the uses of forensic media in their respective geopolitical contexts.

Graduate Capabilities

Discipline Specific Knowledge and Skills

Our graduates will take with them the intellectual development, depth and breadth of knowledge, scholarly understanding, and specific subject content in their chosen fields to make them competent and confident in their subject or profession. They will be able to demonstrate, where relevant, professional technical competence and meet professional standards. They will be able to articulate the structure of knowledge of their discipline, be able to adapt discipline-specific knowledge to novel situations, and be able to contribute from their discipline to inter-disciplinary solutions to problems.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- 1. Demonstrate research and evaluative skills that will enable students to understand the historical, political and technological forces that have been constitutive in the emergence of forensic media.
- 2. Apply critical and analytical skills in the examination and evaluation of the key concepts and arguments that underpin the use of forensic media across different platforms and news organisations.
- 3. Compare and assess local and international perspectives on forensic media.
- 4. Apply critical argumentation skills in order to articulate and evidence different viewpoints on the social, geopolitical and ethical uses of forensic media.
- 5. Integrate interpretive and communication skills in order effectively to convey the key ideas, issues and disciplinary debates on the use of forensic media across diverse platforms and contexts.
- 6. Apply ethical and socially responsible skills that demonstrate the ability to analyse and reflect on the ethical implications generated by the uses of forensic media in their respective geopolitical contexts.

Assessment tasks

- Final Essay

Critical, Analytical and Integrative Thinking

We want our graduates to be capable of reasoning, questioning and analysing, and to integrate and synthesise learning and knowledge from a range of sources and environments; to be able to critique constraints, assumptions and limitations; to be able to think independently and systemically in relation to scholarly activity, in the workplace, and in the world. We want them to have a level of scientific and information technology literacy.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- 1. Demonstrate research and evaluative skills that will enable students to understand the historical, political and technological forces that have been constitutive in the emergence of forensic media.

Problem Solving and Research Capability

Our graduates should be capable of researching; of analysing, and interpreting and assessing data and information in various forms; of drawing connections across fields of knowledge; and they should be able to relate their knowledge to complex situations at work or in the world, in order to diagnose and solve problems. We want them to have the confidence to take the initiative in doing so, within an awareness of their own limitations.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes
- 1. Demonstrate research and evaluative skills that will enable students to understand the historical, political and technological forces that have been constitutive in the emergence of forensic media.
- 2. Apply critical and analytical skills in the examination and evaluation of the key concepts and arguments that underpin the use of forensic media across different platforms and news organisations.
- 3. Compare and assess local and international perspectives on forensic media.
- 4. Apply critical argumentation skills in order to articulate and evidence different viewpoints on the social, geopolitical and ethical uses of forensic media.
- 5. Integrate interpretive and communication skills in order effectively to convey the key ideas, issues and disciplinary debates on the use of forensic media across diverse platforms and contexts.

- 6. Apply ethical and socially responsible skills that demonstrate the ability to analyse and reflect on the ethical implications generated by the uses of forensic media in their respective geopolitical contexts.

Creative and Innovative

Our graduates will also be capable of creative thinking and of creating knowledge. They will be imaginative and open to experience and capable of innovation at work and in the community. We want them to be engaged in applying their critical, creative thinking.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- 1. Demonstrate research and evaluative skills that will enable students to understand the historical, political and technological forces that have been constitutive in the emergence of forensic media.
- 3. Compare and assess local and international perspectives on forensic media.
- 5. Integrate interpretive and communication skills in order effectively to convey the key ideas, issues and disciplinary debates on the use of forensic media across diverse platforms and contexts.
- 6. Apply ethical and socially responsible skills that demonstrate the ability to analyse and reflect on the ethical implications generated by the uses of forensic media in their respective geopolitical contexts.

Effective Communication

We want to develop in our students the ability to communicate and convey their views in forms effective with different audiences. We want our graduates to take with them the capability to read, listen, question, gather and evaluate information resources in a variety of formats, assess, write clearly, speak effectively, and to use visual communication and communication technologies as appropriate.
This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- 1. Demonstrate research and evaluative skills that will enable students to understand the historical, political and technological forces that have been constitutive in the emergence of forensic media.
- 2. Apply critical and analytical skills in the examination and evaluation of the key concepts and arguments that underpin the use of forensic media across different platforms and news organisations.
- 3. Compare and assess local and international perspectives on forensic media.
- 4. Apply critical argumentation skills in order to articulate and evidence different viewpoints on the social, geopolitical and ethical uses of forensic media.
- 5. Integrate interpretive and communication skills in order effectively to convey the key ideas, issues and disciplinary debates on the use of forensic media across diverse platforms and contexts.

Engaged and Ethical Local and Global citizens

As local citizens our graduates will be aware of indigenous perspectives and of the nation's historical context. They will be engaged with the challenges of contemporary society and with knowledge and ideas. We want our graduates to have respect for diversity, to be open-minded, sensitive to others and inclusive, and to be open to other cultures and perspectives: they should have a level of cultural literacy. Our graduates should be aware of disadvantage and social justice, and be willing to participate to help create a wiser and better society.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcome

- 6. Apply ethical and socially responsible skills that demonstrate the ability to analyse and reflect on the ethical implications generated by the uses of forensic media in their respective geopolitical contexts.

Socially and Environmentally Active and Responsible

We want our graduates to be aware of and have respect for self and others; to be able to work with others as a leader and a team player; to have a sense of connectedness with others and country; and to have a sense of mutual obligation. Our graduates should be informed and active participants in moving society towards sustainability.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- 4. Apply critical argumentation skills in order to articulate and evidence different viewpoints on the social, geopolitical and ethical uses of forensic media.
- 6. Apply ethical and socially responsible skills that demonstrate the ability to analyse and reflect on the ethical implications generated by the uses of forensic media in their respective geopolitical contexts.

Capable of Professional and Personal Judgement and Initiative

We want our graduates to have emotional intelligence and sound interpersonal skills and to demonstrate discernment and common sense in their professional and personal judgement. They will exercise initiative as needed. They will be capable of risk assessment, and be able to handle ambiguity and complexity, enabling them to be adaptable in diverse and changing environments.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- 2. Apply critical and analytical skills in the examination and evaluation of the key concepts and arguments that underpin the use of forensic media across different platforms and news organisations.
- 3. Compare and assess local and international perspectives on forensic media.
- 4. Apply critical argumentation skills in order to articulate and evidence different viewpoints on the social, geopolitical and ethical uses of forensic media.

- 5. Integrate interpretive and communication skills in order effectively to convey the key ideas, issues and disciplinary debates on the use of forensic media across diverse platforms and contexts.
- 6. Apply ethical and socially responsible skills that demonstrate the ability to analyse and reflect on the ethical implications generated by the uses of forensic media in their respective geopolitical contexts.

Assessment tasks

- Tutorial Presentation
- On-course Essay
- Final Essay

Commitment to Continuous Learning

Our graduates will have enquiring minds and a literate curiosity which will lead them to pursue knowledge for its own sake. They will continue to pursue learning in their careers and as they participate in the world. They will be capable of reflecting on their experiences and relationships with others and the environment, learning from them, and growing - personally, professionally and socially.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- 4. Apply critical argumentation skills in order to articulate and evidence different viewpoints on the social, geopolitical and ethical uses of forensic media.
- 5. Integrate interpretive and communication skills in order effectively to convey the key ideas, issues and disciplinary debates on the use of forensic media across diverse platforms and contexts.
- 6. Apply ethical and socially responsible skills that demonstrate the ability to analyse and reflect on the ethical implications generated by the uses of forensic media in their respective geopolitical contexts.
