Unit description

This course provides an introduction to the history of the European Middle Ages. Covering the period between 750 and 1350 C.E., this course aims to introduce students to the culture, politics and society of western Europe during this period. Students will study the crusades, the papacy, emerging kingdoms, chivalric romance, and, the feudal order. They will consider how the civilisation of medieval Europe, that called itself 'Latin Christendom', emerged in the period after the fragmentation of the Roman Empire in the west. Students will study medieval Europe from the inside, thinking about the ways in which the society understood its place in the world, and its own history. We will also consider how medieval Europe was understood by its Muslim and Byzantine neighbours at that time. We will think about the encounters that took place between medieval Europe and the rest of the world, be they through trade, cultural exchange, or, warfare. Students will evaluate the winners and losers of medieval society, to understand how power was produced, and maintained, by elite populations. Through reading a rich array of medieval sources, they will think about the status of women, peasants, heretics, and, Jews throughout the period. This course aims to introduce students to the large narratives of medieval history, alongside an examination of social and cultural worlds in medieval time.

Discipline Specific Knowledge and Skills

Our graduates will take with them the intellectual development, depth and breadth of knowledge, scholarly understanding, and specific subject content in their chosen fields to make them competent and confident in their subject or profession. They will be able to demonstrate, where relevant, professional technical competence and meet professional standards. They will be able to articulate the structure of knowledge of their discipline, be able to adapt discipline-specific knowledge to novel situations, and be able to contribute from their discipline to inter-disciplinary solutions to problems.

Engaged and Ethical Local and Global citizens

As local citizens our graduates will be aware of indigenous perspectives and of the nation's historical context. They will be engaged with the challenges of contemporary society and with knowledge and ideas. We want our graduates to have respect for diversity, to be open-minded, sensitive to others and inclusive, and to be open to other cultures and perspectives: they should have a level of cultural literacy. Our graduates should be aware of disadvantage and social justice, and be willing to participate to help create a wiser and better society.
