Unit description This unit examines recorded sound and its relation to society. Areas of investigation include changes in technology and cultural context, expectations of fidelity, remote and field recording issues and practice, production values, media and distribution, recording ethics and relevant legal issues.

Important Academic Dates

Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at <https://www.mq.edu.au/study/calendar-of-dates>

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this unit, you will be able to:

- Critically evaluate the history of recorded sound and technology
- Examine scholarship on recording and its relationship to society
- Investigate changes in technology use in the field of sound recording
- Acquire essential production skills to accompany theoretical exploration
- Develop recording strategies to explore relationships between sound and society

General Assessment Information

Late Submissions

Unless a Special Consideration request has been submitted and approved, (a) a penalty for lateness will apply – two (2) marks out of 100 will be deducted per day for assignments submitted after the due date – and (b) no assignment will be accepted more than seven (7) days (including weekends) after the original submission deadline. No late submissions will be accepted for timed assessments – e.g. quizzes, online tests . Assignment Grading All assignments of this unit are aligned to the standards outlined in the Macquarie University Assessment Policy (<https://staff.mq.edu.au/work/strategy-planning-andgovernance/university-policies-and-procedures/policies/assessment>). A marking rubric for each of the assignment is available on iLearn. Students are expected to read the rubric before working on the assignment.

Feedback

Feedback will be given to students via the following ways:

Whole class:

- Comments from the unit convenor in the forum discussions and unit activities
- Through the 'announcement' function in iLearn, if there are points of relevance to the whole class
- Consolidated feedback on whole of class assignment performance, summarising key strengths and weaknesses (in class and/or via video feedback for technical concepts requiring revision)

Individual

- The ongoing opportunity discuss assignment progress with the convenor via email or face to face student consultation. This provides a mechanism to provide feedback on progress made, prior to submission.

Formal

- Text based comments attached to assignments marked in Turnitin/GradeMark

Marks are made available through the Gradebook function in iLearn

Examples of work

Examples of relevant and related assessment tasks will be made available via seminars

Assessment standards - rubrics

Rubrics for each assignment are made available on the iLearn. Students are encouraged to consult these before commencing an assignment.

Assessment Tasks

Name	Weighting	Hurdle	Due
Recording Analysis	25%	No	Week 4. Friday 11pm

Name	Weighting	Hurdle	Due
Production Portfolio Progress	20%	No	Week 8. Friday 11pm
Production Portfolio	30%	No	Week 13. Friday 11pm
Exegesis	25%	No	Week 13. Friday 11pm

Recording Analysis

Due: Week 4. Friday 11pm

Weighting: 25%

Students will select 3 different recordings that display different musical and production aesthetics. Students will then analyse these recordings and write a 750 word report which describes aspects of musical and production style that create a coherent aesthetic and locate the works within genres or music scenes.

Submission via iLearn/Turnitin

Assessment criteria:

- Ability to summarise effectively
- Effectiveness of research and analysis skills
- Clarity and quality of writing and understanding of appropriate style

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Critically evaluate the history of recorded sound and technology
- Examine scholarship on recording and its relationship to society

Production Portfolio Progress

Due: Week 8. Friday 11pm

Weighting: 20%

This is a progress assessment, with the final portfolio submitted in Week 13. Students will produce a portfolio of 3 short recorded excerpts (around one minute in duration) that use aesthetic concepts from the works examined in their recording analysis (Assessment Task 1). For this assessment, students will need to submit a progress draft of one of the recorded excerpts. Alongside the recorded draft, students will submit a 500 word report, detailing how the draft responds to the analysed work and the technical process undertaken for completion. Submission via iLearn and NEXIS file server.

Final stereo mixdowns and reports are to be uploaded to iLearn. ProTools sessions are to be handed in via NEXIS.

Assessment criteria:

- Depth of conceptual and practical engagement with production analysis
- Adherence to technical and audio quality requirements

Studio Access Access to the department's recording facilities for the completion of assessable practical work will be given following a compulsory competency test. This will be offered in Week 3. Access will only be granted once a student has passed this test. If a student does not pass the competency test, they may retake the test until they have demonstrated competence. This competency test carries no marks. It is a health and safety requirement and ensures the student is capable of operating the studio unsupervised.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Examine scholarship on recording and its relationship to society
- Investigate changes in technology use in the field of sound recording
- Acquire essential production skills to accompany theoretical exploration
- Develop recording strategies to explore relationships between sound and society

Production Portfolio

Due: Week 13. Friday 11pm

Weighting: 30%

A final recorded portfolio containing the 3 completed recorded works based on the student's production research.

Submission via iLearn and NEXIS file server.

Final stereo mixdowns are to be uploaded to iLearn. ProTools sessions are to be handed in via NEXIS.

Assessment criteria:

- Depth of conceptual and practical engagement with production analysis
- Adherence to technical and audio quality requirements

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Acquire essential production skills to accompany theoretical exploration

Exegesis

Due: Week 13. Friday 11pm

Weighting: 25%

Students will submit a 1500 word report which describes their production research and clearly outlines how they have translated that research into practice to inform their approach to producing the recordings. This report should include critical analyses of the 3 case studies used as models, a description of the recording process undertaken (with technical details), and a reflection on the strengths and weaknesses of the final result.

Submission via iLearn/Turnitin

Assessment criteria:

- Communication of production process and problems encountered
- Clarity and quality of writing and appropriateness of style
- Evidence of engagement with core concepts

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Critically evaluate the history of recorded sound and technology
- Examine scholarship on recording and its relationship to society
- Investigate changes in technology use in the field of sound recording
- Develop recording strategies to explore relationships between sound and society

Delivery and Resources

Attendance

Students are expected to attend all scheduled classes. Classes are not optional. They deliver important content and are a central component of meeting the learning outcomes in this unit. Classes provide students with the essential production skills required to successfully complete assignments. Academic and/or technical staff cannot deliver technical instruction to students that is already covered in the timetabled classes. This is why attendance is essential. Students who elect to not attend classes will miss out on unit content and technical demonstrations risk failing the unit. Students who miss classes due to illness should speak with the convenor as soon as possible to discuss how to catch up on the missed content. Attendance will be recorded.

Commencement of teaching

Seminars will commence in Week 1. No advance reading or preparation is required.

Graduate Capabilities

PG - Capable of Professional and Personal Judgment and Initiative

Our postgraduates will demonstrate a high standard of discernment and common sense in their professional and personal judgment. They will have the ability to make informed choices and decisions that reflect both the nature of their professional work and their personal perspectives.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcome

- Acquire essential production skills to accompany theoretical exploration

Assessment tasks

- Production Portfolio Progress
- Production Portfolio

PG - Discipline Knowledge and Skills

Our postgraduates will be able to demonstrate a significantly enhanced depth and breadth of knowledge, scholarly understanding, and specific subject content knowledge in their chosen fields.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Critically evaluate the history of recorded sound and technology
- Investigate changes in technology use in the field of sound recording
- Acquire essential production skills to accompany theoretical exploration
- Develop recording strategies to explore relationships between sound and society

Assessment tasks

- Recording Analysis
- Production Portfolio Progress
- Production Portfolio
- Exegesis

PG - Critical, Analytical and Integrative Thinking

Our postgraduates will be capable of utilising and reflecting on prior knowledge and experience, of applying higher level critical thinking skills, and of integrating and synthesising learning and knowledge from a range of sources and environments. A characteristic of this form of thinking is the generation of new, professionally oriented knowledge through personal or group-based critique of practice and theory.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Examine scholarship on recording and its relationship to society
- Investigate changes in technology use in the field of sound recording
- Develop recording strategies to explore relationships between sound and society

Assessment tasks

- Recording Analysis
- Production Portfolio Progress
- Production Portfolio
- Exegesis

PG - Research and Problem Solving Capability

Our postgraduates will be capable of systematic enquiry; able to use research skills to create new knowledge that can be applied to real world issues, or contribute to a field of study or practice to enhance society. They will be capable of creative questioning, problem finding and problem solving.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Critically evaluate the history of recorded sound and technology
- Examine scholarship on recording and its relationship to society
- Develop recording strategies to explore relationships between sound and society

Assessment tasks

- Recording Analysis
- Production Portfolio Progress
- Production Portfolio
- Exegesis

PG - Effective Communication

Our postgraduates will be able to communicate effectively and convey their views to different social, cultural, and professional audiences. They will be able to use a variety of technologically supported media to communicate with empathy using a range of written, spoken or visual formats.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Examine scholarship on recording and its relationship to society
- Acquire essential production skills to accompany theoretical exploration

Assessment tasks

- Recording Analysis
- Production Portfolio Progress
- Exegesis

PG - Engaged and Responsible, Active and Ethical Citizens

Our postgraduates will be ethically aware and capable of confident transformative action in relation to their professional responsibilities and the wider community. They will have a sense of connectedness with others and country and have a sense of mutual obligation. They will be able to appreciate the impact of their professional roles for social justice and inclusion related to national and global issues

This graduate capability is supported by:

Assessment task

- Production Portfolio
