Unit description

In the sixteenth century, the Mediterranean Ocean appeared to form the contested border between two great empires: the Islamic Ottoman Empire of North Africa and the Middle East and the Christian Habsburg Empire of Europe. But this marine frontier was not simply a place of hostilities but also the point at which different peoples met and coexisted: a place inhabited by merchants and travelers as well as pirates, renegades, and holy warriors. This unit examines the multiple encounters and exchanges that occurred between Christians, Muslims, and Jews in the early modern Mediterranean, exploring questions of identity, geography, empire, and religion in an era of transition and change as the new Atlantic World began eclipse the older Mediterranean world.

Important Academic Dates

Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at <https://www.mq.edu.au/study/calendar-of-dates>

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this unit, you will be able to:

Comprehend, assess, and explain the history of the Mediterranean region in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, with specific reference to six broad themes: space, empire, cities, faith, conflict, coexistence.

Evaluate and explain the utility of "space" as a category of historical analysis.

Comprehend, analyze, and explain the process of historical argumentation by reading and assessing a variety of secondary source materials.

Produce written work that synthesizes understandings and evaluations in clear, specific arguments.

General Assessment Information

Late Submission

Unless a Special Consideration request has been submitted and approved, (a) a penalty for lateness will apply – two (2) marks out of 100 will be deducted per day for assignments submitted after the due date – and (b) no assignment will be accepted more than seven (7) days (incl. weekends) after the original submission deadline. No late submissions will be accepted for timed assessments – e.g. quizzes, online tests.

Turnitin will close at the deadline for submission of each written assessment tasks. Late submissions will need to be emailed direct to Katherine Jacka and accompanied by an explanation for their lateness.

Extensions

Students who encounter difficulties in meeting the deadlines for written assessment tasks should apply for an extension via ask.mq.edu in advance of the due date. Students should familiarize themselves with the University's Special Consideration policy (see Policies and Procedures) before submitting such a request.

Assessment Tasks

Name	Weighting	Hurdle	Due
Reflective Journal Blog	20%	No	Assessed weekly (09/06/19)
Review Paper	20%	No	22/03/19 (Week 4)
Research Paper	30%	No	10/05/19 (Week 9)
Reflective Paper	30%	No	07/06/19 (Week 13)

Reflective Journal Blog

Due: Assessed weekly (09/06/19)

Weighting: 20%

Each week from Week 2 onward students will post a short reflection on the readings and lectures for that week to the External Students' Blog creating a semester-long Individual Reflective Journal. Each post should be around 200 words in length and should address the connections between the lectures, the readings, and the weekly theme. Ten posts will count toward the final grade, so students may miss one week without penalty. Students will receive feedback in the form of comments each week and posts will be graded weekly. The final post must be made by 9 June.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Comprehend, analyze, and explain the process of historical argumentation by reading and assessing a variety of secondary source materials.

Review Paper

Due: 22/03/19 (Week 4)

Weighting: 20%

A 1,000-word critical comparison of the two most significant historical interpretations of the Mediterranean.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Evaluate and explain the utility of "space" as a category of historical analysis.
- Comprehend, analyze, and explain the process of historical argumentation by reading and assessing a variety of secondary source materials.
- Produce written work that synthesizes understandings and evaluations in clear, specific arguments.

Research Paper

Due: 10/05/19 (Week 9)

Weighting: 30%

A 2,500-word research paper on the recent historiography related to one of five unit themes: Empire, Cities, Faith, Conflict, and Coexistence.

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Comprehend, assess, and explain the history of the Mediterranean region in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, with specific reference to six broad themes: space, empire, cities, faith, conflict, coexistence.
- Comprehend, analyze, and explain the process of historical argumentation by reading and assessing a variety of secondary source materials.
- Produce written work that synthesizes understandings and evaluations in clear, specific arguments.

Reflective Paper

Due: 07/06/19 (Week 13)

Weighting: 30%

A comprehensive reflection on the unit themes and material studied over the entire semester in the form of a 2,000-word paper that answers the question: Is the history of the early modern Mediterranean better studied by emphasizing the differences between its various regions and polities or by emphasizing their similarities?

On successful completion you will be able to:

- Comprehend, assess, and explain the history of the Mediterranean region in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, with specific reference to six broad themes: space, empire, cities, faith, conflict, coexistence.
- Evaluate and explain the utility of "space" as a category of historical analysis.
- Produce written work that synthesizes understandings and evaluations in clear, specific arguments.

Delivery and Resources

Classes

An online tutorial will run each week.

Required and Recommended Texts

Required Texts

Required readings will be listed week-by-week on the iLearn site.

Per Faculty of Arts policy, all required readings are available on-line only but it is recommended that students print out the required readings and read them in hard copy as pedagogical research suggests that (given current technology) comprehension and recall are superior when reading hard copy text as opposed to reading on-line.

Recommended Texts

The following general, introductory texts are available on Reserve or in electronic format (*) via the MQ Library:

Fernand Braudel The Mediterranean and the Mediterranean World in the Age of Philip II

*Daniel Goffman The Ottoman Empire and Early Modern Europe

W.V. Harris (ed) Rethinking the Mediterranean

Peregrine Horden and Nicholas Purcell The Corrupting Sea: A Study of Mediterranean History

*Henri Pirenne Mohammed and Charlemagne

*Merry Wiesner-Hanks Early Modern Europe

Technologies Used and Required

This unit uses iLearn. All students are expected to have internet access and use of a computer. All students are expected to have basic computer skills (such as word processing and web browsing).

Graduate Capabilities

Creative and Innovative

Our graduates will also be capable of creative thinking and of creating knowledge. They will be imaginative and open to experience and capable of innovation at work and in the community. We want them to be engaged in applying their critical, creative thinking.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Comprehend, assess, and explain the history of the Mediterranean region in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, with specific reference to six broad themes: space, empire, cities, faith, conflict, coexistence.
- Produce written work that synthesizes understandings and evaluations in clear, specific arguments.

Assessment tasks

- Research Paper
- Reflective Paper

Capable of Professional and Personal Judgement and Initiative

We want our graduates to have emotional intelligence and sound interpersonal skills and to demonstrate discernment and common sense in their professional and personal judgement. They will exercise initiative as needed. They will be capable of risk assessment, and be able to handle ambiguity and complexity, enabling them to be adaptable in diverse and changing environments.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Comprehend, analyze, and explain the process of historical argumentation by reading and assessing a variety of secondary source materials.
- Produce written work that synthesizes understandings and evaluations in clear, specific arguments.

Commitment to Continuous Learning

Our graduates will have enquiring minds and a literate curiosity which will lead them to pursue knowledge for its own sake. They will continue to pursue learning in their careers and as they participate in the world. They will be capable of reflecting on their experiences and relationships with others and the environment, learning from them, and growing - personally, professionally and socially.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Comprehend, analyze, and explain the process of historical argumentation by reading and assessing a variety of secondary source materials.
- Produce written work that synthesizes understandings and evaluations in clear, specific arguments.

Assessment tasks

- Review Paper

Discipline Specific Knowledge and Skills

Our graduates will take with them the intellectual development, depth and breadth of knowledge, scholarly understanding, and specific subject content in their chosen fields to make them competent and confident in their subject or profession. They will be able to demonstrate, where relevant, professional technical competence and meet professional standards. They will be able to articulate the structure of knowledge of their discipline, be able to adapt discipline-specific knowledge to novel situations, and be able to contribute from their discipline to inter-disciplinary solutions to problems.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Comprehend, assess, and explain the history of the Mediterranean region in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, with specific reference to six broad themes: space, empire, cities, faith, conflict, coexistence.
- Evaluate and explain the utility of "space" as a category of historical analysis.

Critical, Analytical and Integrative Thinking

We want our graduates to be capable of reasoning, questioning and analysing, and to integrate and synthesise learning and knowledge from a range of sources and environments; to be able to critique constraints, assumptions and limitations; to be able to think independently and systemically in relation to scholarly activity, in the workplace, and in the world. We want them to have a level of scientific and information technology literacy.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Comprehend, assess, and explain the history of the Mediterranean region in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, with specific reference to six broad themes: space, empire, cities, faith, conflict, coexistence.

Problem Solving and Research Capability

Our graduates should be capable of researching; of analysing, and interpreting and assessing data and information in various forms; of drawing connections across fields of knowledge; and they should be able to relate their knowledge to complex situations at work or in the world, in order to diagnose and solve problems. We want them to have the confidence to take the initiative in doing so, within an awareness of their own limitations.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Comprehend, analyze, and explain the process of historical argumentation by reading and assessing a variety of secondary source materials.
- Produce written work that synthesizes understandings and evaluations in clear, specific arguments.

Effective Communication

We want to develop in our students the ability to communicate and convey their views in forms effective with different audiences. We want our graduates to take with them the capability to read, listen, question, gather and evaluate information resources in a variety of formats, assess, write clearly, speak effectively, and to use visual communication and communication technologies as appropriate.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Comprehend, assess, and explain the history of the Mediterranean region in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, with specific reference to six broad themes: space, empire, cities, faith, conflict, coexistence.

Engaged and Ethical Local and Global citizens

As local citizens our graduates will be aware of indigenous perspectives and of the nation's historical context. They will be engaged with the challenges of contemporary society and with knowledge and ideas. We want our graduates to have respect for diversity, to be open-minded, sensitive to others and inclusive, and to be open to other cultures and perspectives: they should have a level of cultural literacy. Our graduates should be aware of disadvantage and social justice, and be willing to participate to help create a wiser and better society.

This graduate capability is supported by:
