Unit description

This unit explores the evolution of Russia from the early modern period, through the Soviet period and up to today. After a period of decline since the breakdown of the Soviet Union, Russia is once again becoming a powerful and assertive nation, and it retains a large nuclear arsenal. How did Russia first become a great power? Why was the Tsarist system overthrown and replaced by an entirely new governmental system after 1917? How did the Soviet Union re-build its power and establish itself as a modern superpower? Why did the Soviet Union breakdown? And how powerful and influential is Russia today? In an increasingly multi-polar world, these questions are becoming particularly important.

Important Academic Dates

Information about important academic dates including deadlines for withdrawing from units are available at <https://www.mq.edu.au/study/calendar-of-dates>

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this unit, you will be able to:

Students who have completed this course will be able to demonstrate a nuanced understanding of the major social, economic and political changes in Russian society from the Tsarist era, through the Soviet era, up to the post-Soviet era.

Evaluate different theoretical and historiographical approaches to the Soviet attempt to build a new type of society.

Construct complex historical arguments, and defend and modify them rigorously and persuasively, both in class and in their written work.

Assess, interpret, and make sophisticated use of written and visual evidence, much of which was generated in highly charged polemical environments.

Build their ability to undertake efficient and focused research, to write up their research clearly and logically, and to meet deadlines.

Assess the significance of modern Russian and Soviet history for fundamental discussions within the history discipline about the nature and evolution of modern societies throughout the world.

Delivery and Resources

iLearn site: More information about this unit is available on the iLearn site, which you can find at: <http://ilearn.mq.edu.au>.

Classes: We will meet on Mondays from 10 am to 1 pm in 12SW (Second Way), Room 310. Normally, I will begin by asking students (picked randomly) to offer their answers to the week's main questions. Then there will be a lecture, followed by in-class work, group discussions and discussion of assessment tasks.

Recommended Texts: There is no required textbook for this unit, and you will be encouraged to do much of your own bibliographical research. But I strongly recommend that you buy and use either the book by Figes, or the two books by Weeks and Lovell. Copies should be available in the Coop Bookstore.

- Orlando Figes. Revolutionary Russia, 1891-1991. London: Penguin 2014. An interpretation of modern Russian and Soviet history that focuses mainly on politics, society and culture.
 - If you enjoy this you may also want to use Figes very fine history of the revolutionary era: Orlando Figes. A People's Tragedy: The Russian Revolution 1891-1924. London: Pimlico, 1996
- A pair of books from the Blackwell History of Russia that will work well together:
 - Theodore R. Weeks. Across the Revolutionary Divide: Russia and the USSR 1861-1945. Chichester: Wiley/Blackwell, 2011. Avoids the normal

textbook break at 1917, and covers Russian and early Soviet history thematically, with separate chapters on politics, society, nations, modernization, belief, relations to the wider world, and culture.

- Stephen Lovell. The Shadow of War: Russia and the USSR 1941 to the Present. Chichester: Wiley/Blackwell, 2010. Argues that the most fundamental event in modern Russian/Soviet history may have been World War II (the "Great Patriotic War") rather than 1917.
- I will also make available through the library some chapters from a recent book of my own, which develops many of the arguments I will offer in lectures: David Christian. A History of Russia, Central Asia and Mongolia: Vol 2: Inner Eurasia from the Mongol Empire to today: 1260-2000. UK and US: Wiley Blackwell, 2018.
 - In order to follow the arguments I will be defending in the lectures, you may also find it helpful to use an earlier work of mine (that is in the library but no longer in print): David Christian. Imperial and Soviet Russia: Power, Privilege and the Challenge of Modernity. UK: Macmillan, 1997.

Unit Schedule

Wk 1: Mon, July 29: Organizational: and the idea of "Inner Eurasia". QUESTIONS: "What is meant by "Inner Eurasia" and how can the idea help us better understand Russian and Soviet history?"

Wk 2: Mon, Aug 5: Modernity: The Russian Empire meets the Fossil Fuels Revolution. QUESTIONS: "What is meant by the "Fossil Fuels Revolution", and why did it destabilize traditional states such as the Russian Empire?"

Wk 3: Mon, Aug 12: Challenges for an ancient Empire: Economic, social and political reforms in the late 19th century. QUESTIONS: "How did the Russian government respond to the challenge of the fossil fuels revolution, and what were the main social and economic changes in Russia by 1905?"

Wk 4: Mon, Aug 19: New Ideologies and the 1905 Revolution. QUESTIONS: "What were the main ideologies competing for support in Russia in 1905, and to what extent do they represent responses to the challenges of modernization and the fossil fuels revolution?"

Wk 5: Mon, Aug 26: The Russian Empire in Revolution and War: Problems and Possibilities. QUESTIONS: "What sort of political and economic system emerged from Russia after the 1905 Revolution, and do you see any parallels with Russia today?" ESSAY 1 DUE.

Wk 6: Mon, Sept 2: Breakdown and Revolution: Socialism, Leninism and Utopian hopes for the future. QUESTIONS: "How do you explain the breakdown after the February Revolution and the successful Bolshevik seizure of power in October 1917?"

Wk 7: Mon, Sept 9: Holding on to power: Civil War and the building of a new mobilizational system. QUESTIONS: "Why did the Bolsheviks win the civil war, and to what extent did the methods they used borrow from the Tsarist past and prefigure the Soviet future?"

[RECESS: SEPT 16-27]

Wk 8: Mon, Sept 30: A Turning Point in World History: the 1920s, NEP, and the turn to a Command Economy. QUESTIONS: "What were the major challenges facing the Soviet government in the 1920s, and why, eventually, did they opt for Stalin's solutions to those challenges?"

Wk 9: Mon, Oct 7: Industrialization and the Cauldron of War: A Triumph for the Stalinist System? QUESTIONS: "What were the main achievements of Stalinism in the 1930s and 1940s, and what were its major failures?" DRAFT OF MAJOR ESSAY DUE.

Wk 10: Mon, Oct 14: Post-Stalin reforms and Social and Economic change: A resurgent Communist world? QUESTIONS: "To what extent was the Stalinist system dismantled after Stalin's death, and what were the main changes in Soviet society in the 1950s and 1960s?" ESSAY 2 DUE.

Wk 11: Mon, Oct 21: Stagnation, Perestroika and Collapse. QUESTIONS: "Why did the Soviet government embark on radical changes after 1985, and why did the attempt at reform fail?"

Wk 12: Mon, Oct 28: The 1990s: The End of an Experiment. QUESTIONS: "Was Russian society democratic or capitalist in the 1990s?"

Wk 13: Mon, Nov 4: Russia today: Russian or Capitalist? QUESTIONS: "What do regard as the main achievements of post-Soviet Russia and the major challenges it faces in the future?" MAJOR ESSAY DUE.

Graduate Capabilities

Creative and Innovative

Our graduates will also be capable of creative thinking and of creating knowledge. They will be imaginative and open to experience and capable of innovation at work and in the community. We want them to be engaged in applying their critical, creative thinking.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Assess, interpret, and make sophisticated use of written and visual evidence, much of which was generated in highly charged polemical environments.
- Assess the significance of modern Russian and Soviet history for fundamental discussions within the history discipline about the nature and evolution of modern societies throughout the world.

Assessment tasks

- DRAFT OF MAJOR ESSAY
- ACTIVE TUTORIAL PARTICIPATION

Capable of Professional and Personal Judgement and Initiative

We want our graduates to have emotional intelligence and sound interpersonal skills and to demonstrate discernment and common sense in their professional and personal judgement. They will exercise initiative as needed. They will be capable of risk assessment, and be able to handle ambiguity and complexity, enabling them to be adaptable in diverse and changing environments.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Evaluate different theoretical and historiographical approaches to the Soviet attempt to build a new type of society.
- Build their ability to undertake efficient and focused research, to write up their research clearly and logically, and to meet deadlines.
- Assess the significance of modern Russian and Soviet history for fundamental discussions within the history discipline about the nature and evolution of modern societies throughout the world.

Commitment to Continuous Learning

Our graduates will have enquiring minds and a literate curiosity which will lead them to pursue knowledge for its own sake. They will continue to pursue learning in their careers and as they participate in the world. They will be capable of reflecting on their experiences and relationships with others and the environment, learning from them, and growing - personally, professionally and socially.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Learning outcomes

- Construct complex historical arguments, and defend and modify them rigorously and persuasively, both in class and in their written work.
- Build their ability to undertake efficient and focused research, to write up their research clearly and logically, and to meet deadlines.

Discipline Specific Knowledge and Skills

Our graduates will take with them the intellectual development, depth and breadth of knowledge, scholarly understanding, and specific subject content in their chosen fields to make them competent and confident in their subject or profession. They will be able to demonstrate, where relevant, professional technical competence and meet professional standards. They will be able to articulate the structure of knowledge of their discipline, be able to adapt discipline-specific knowledge to novel situations, and be able to contribute from their discipline to inter-disciplinary solutions to problems.

This graduate capability is supported by:

Engaged and Ethical Local and Global citizens

As local citizens our graduates will be aware of indigenous perspectives and of the nation's historical context. They will be engaged with the challenges of contemporary society and with knowledge and ideas. We want our graduates to have respect for diversity, to be open-minded, sensitive to others and inclusive, and to be open to other cultures and perspectives: they should have a level of cultural literacy. Our graduates should be aware of disadvantage and social justice, and be willing to participate to help create a wiser and better society.
